BIG BILL LEWIS

The Skagit has lost its most picturesque character in the departure of "Billy the Bear." It was "Bill" Lewis who made the famous midnsght dash through the Sumallow to catch the early morning train at Hope to herald to Vancouver the second "discovery" on Steamboat Mountain.

"Billy the Bear" came out last week with his horses, guns, picks, shovels and axes and converted the Hamlin into a Noah's Ark for the trip down the Frazer to the Coast. He returned to Hope on Tuesday for the last time to settle sundry accounts for himself and for Mahon MacFarland & Proctor, in whose interests he prospected the Skagit Valley.

"I spent six months in the country," said "the Bear," "and the highest assay I got was eighty cents. There are no pay values in the district and I am done with it for ever. I am going now to prospect the Bridge River country."

So went "Billy the Bear" with his grizzled brows and fierce moustache, as grandly solitary as he went that night from the humanesque tent-inn on the Sumallow to the drumming of the partridge and the softened hoof-beats on the needle strewen trail.—Hope News.

ROCK CREEK TRAGEDY

Joe Cartier died at Pittendrigh's Rock Creek hotel a week ago yesterday. In the afternoon he had a mix-up in the bar with Joe Brady and received a blow on the head. He had been drinking and after the trouble was placed in a chair in the sitting room. Later when the bartender locked the bar to go to supper Cartier was placed in a chair on the verandah. He fell off the chair and began to snore while lying on the verandah, Two or three hours later he was found dead. A post-mortem by Dr. McLean did not show what was the cause of his death, but the coroner's jury decided that he came to his death from shock, and Joe Brady is being detained until he can be tried before a magistrate. Cartier was 45 years old and had been working on the railroad. He was a native of France, and buried at Rock Creek.

CONSERVATIVES MEET

At a largely attended meeting of the Greenwood Riding Conservative Association on Monday evening, J. R. Jackson, M. P. P., J. D. McCreath, H. W. Farmer and J. Blake were appointed delegates to the convention at Kamloops for the purpose of electing a candidate for the coming election. The delegates were instructed to vote for Martin Burrell and left on the train Tuesday at noon. The meeting was very enthusiastic and unanimous.

FRANK JONES IN SAN TOY

KNELL OF STEAMBOAT

Mr. Charles Camsell, chief of the Dominion Geological Survey, now in the Skagit valley, has sounded the knell of Steamboat Mountain. Mr. Camsell, who came into Hope last week from his camp on the Steamboat townsite for mail and supplies, gave to the Hope News his first impressions of that section of the Skagit Valley from the International Boundary up to and including Steamboat Mountain.

"We have completed our survey as far up the valley as Steamboat Mountain," said Mr. Camsell, "and have found nothing more favorable than a coal formation. This is true of Lightning and Muddy Creeks as well as of Steamboat. Steamboat Mountain seems to be on the edge of this formation and I am hopeful of a better mineral country higher up the valley.

"In places the coal formation is broken by intrusive dykes of porphry and these have to some extent mineralized the surrounding shales. The quartz lenses have no continuity."

Mr. Camsell inspected the original Steamboat "discovery" and laughed at the idea of finding paying gold there. This week his survey party moves camp to "30-Mile" and next wook to "23-Mile" thence coming into Hope. The Coquahalla River, Ladner Creek and Siwash Creek also are to be examined and charted.

By-law No. 3 was read a third time, and By-law No. 4 was read three times.

Council adjourned until August 28.

B. C. COPPER CO

Directors of British Columbia Copper company at a special meeting last week discussed the matter of dividends, but took no action. President Erb said action on the dividend was deferred until the regular August meeting, scheduled for the 23rd. If the quarterly payment is continued, the next disbursement will be due Sept 1.

The British Columbia Copper company in June produced 816,676 pounds of copper, 11,742 ounces of silver and 2428 ounces of gold.

For the six months ended June 30 the company produced 5,144,365 pounds of copper as compared with 2,978,227 pounds in the corresponding period of last year.

During the past few months it must have cost the B. C. Copper Co., about $27,000 a month more for coke than when that article was obtainable at Coleman. Gold contents of its ores have recently shown substantial improvement which will at least partially offset the greater cost of production.

UNION SCABS

Fernie, B. C., Aug. 8, 1911.

To the Editor of Free Press:

Sir: I would like to draw your attention, and the public also, to the results occurring from the strike of the miners, stultifying the principal of unionism.

At present there are sixty-seven (67) miners working at one local institution at a very small wage, at least 50 cents per day less than paid by the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., which has the result of lowering wages all around.

I know men today who are working for $2.40 per day that always commanded and received $3 and $3.50 prior to the strike, notably bricklayers' and plasterers' laborers. It is a well-known fact that as soon as the work stopped at the mines the miners invaded every industry and sought work and offered themselves for reduced wages. For instance, they went to Olson, where men were receiving $3 per day and offered themselves for $1.75, but to the credit of the employer there, he would not accept them.

Now, sir, I think the miners are a very inconsistent lot.

Incidental to the work at the local industry, $3 was stopped for poll tax, and that was the time that 67 men came forward with receipts already paid at Coal Creek. Each man was working under an assumed name. All of these men worked 5½ days per week so that they could go in person to draw their rations.—Thomas Griffith.

"Why do you call your boy 'Flannel'?" "Because he always seems to shrink from washing."—Pittsburg Leader.

THE LEDGE

Is located at Greenwood, B. C., and can be traced to many parts of the earth. It comes to the front every Thursday morning, and believes that hell would close up if love ruled the world. It believes in justice to everyone; from the man who mucks in the mine to the king who sits on the cushions of the throne. It believes that advertising is the life of trade; and that one of the noblest works of creation is the man who always pays the printer.

The Ledge is $2.00 a year in advance, or $2.50 when not so paid. It is postage free to all parts of Canada, Mexico, Great Britain and the county of Bruce. To the United States it is $2.50 a year, always in advance.

GREENWOOD'S FALL FAIR

THE Greenwood Agricultural Society intends holding its first fall fair on October 3, 4 and 5. $3,000 are at the disposal of the society for prizes and premiums. Committees are already appointed and working and Mr. C. C. Tilley is manager and secretary. The season is already well advanced and if this fair is to be a success it will require the help and sympathy of every one of Greenwood's population. We hear that even now there is considerable stir in some of the out-lying districts amongst the farmers and ranchers and if the prize list is so framed that they will have a chance to exhibit their produce there is no doubt they will avail themselves of the opportunity.

We suppose that there will be a mining section and in that department there should be a great exhibit, as no part of British Columbia can show anything to equal what is to be found in the Boundary country in the shape of minerals.

As already stated the time is short, and as this fair has to be a success, it will require the united efforts of every person with the interests of the district at heart, to bring it to that happy conclusion.

Thinking Themes

There is a peculiarly invigorating intellectual result produced by studying a thing that is perfectly useless. It gives that tonic effect of Play, which children find in their games and which anything like a Purpose destroys.

Every one ought to have some sort of diversion to which he is addicted, that will do nothing but divert. To prove that a game improves the mind or is "good for you" in any sort of way is to demonstrate that, in so far, it is stupid. The glorious element in golf is its monumental silliness—consider a grown man chasing a little ball over half a township and counting religiously how many licks it takes to get it into nine holes. That the game incidentally draws one outdoors and shakes up the liver, simply classes it with sawing wood. It is the idiocy of the thing that does the "tired business man" good, even more than its physiological phase.

I have in my library Charles Dodgron's "Curious Mathimatica" (he was that strange professor of mathimatics in "Wonderland"), and Paul Carus' book on "Magic Squares," and a number of similar works that I prize highly. And, speaking of Dodgron, was there ever more delicious nonsense than his Alice books? One can imagine with what abandon of fun the mathematician threw himself into their composition.

Even so, of all games, chess appears to me to be the very cap and crown. It is the only game that human ingenuity has never fathomed and exhausted. Two expert checker players will draw every time; the game is known, to the bottom. But chess is greater than the human mind. It is pure skill. And then, best of all, it isn't the slightest bit of use; hence it is a real game.

Not a Chance

Gambling is an evil that has fastened itself on both old and young in most countries. Many a player goes into a game where he thinks he has just as much chance to win as the other fellow. Perhaps he does win. If there be bills or "white money" on the table there is a fascination that is seductive, win or lose.

Usually, little sympathy should be bestowed on the chap who relates a sorry tale about being seperated from his hard-earned wages or his savings by gambling. If he play roulette, faro, dice or poker he enters into the chance contest with the idea of beating his opponents. Somebody must win and somebody lose, except where there is a percentage that goes to "the house," in which event the players will leave penniless if they continue in the game long enough.

Gambling has become such a fine art, however, that a warning to the unwary may not come amiss. Like everything else there have been inventions and "improvements"—crooked devices by which the element of chance is removed. In a number of sensational raids made in New York it was found that players were systematically robbed by the "switched number" in roulette, the "killed card" in faro, "brush and line work" in poker and shaved cubes in dice.

The man who thinks he can go into a professional gambling house these days and get anything like a square deal is deluding himself. All that he can hope to win is "experience," and this to his own personal loss.—Windsor Record.

Apples As Medicine

A modern scoffer has recently asked whether it would be possibie that Eve yielded to the serpent because he told her that apples were good for the complexion. Whether this argument was needed or not, there is no question that it is a true one. Nothing in all our varied and fascinating range of fruits holds quite the same quality as the apple.

A raw, ripe apple, at its best is digested in 85 minutes, and the malic acid which gives it its distinctive character, stimulates the liver, assists digestion and neutralizes much obnoxious matter which, if not eliminated, produces eruptions of the skin. "They do not satisfy like potatoes," some people have said to whom they have been recommended as food; but the starch of the potato, added to the surplus of starch we are always eating, renders it undesirable as an article of too frequent consumption.

The more fruit we add to our dietary the clearer brain and clearer skin we are likely to have.

The End of the Line

One cold wintry morning a man of tall and angular build was walking down a steep hill at a quick pace. A treacherous piece of ice under the snow caused him to lose control of his feet; he began to slide and was unable to stop.

At a cross-street half-way down the decline he encountered a large, heavy woman, with her arms full of bundles. The meeting was sudden, and before either realized it a collision ensued and both were sliding down hill, a grand ensemble—the thin man underneath, the fat woman and bundles on top. When the bottom was reached and the woman was trying in vain to recover her breath and feet, these faint words were borne to her ear:

"Pardon me, madam, but you will have to get off here. This is as far as I go."

Bad Bandit

Tchakirdji, the bad bandit of Turkey, is on the move again. For a little while he had been inactive, leading a life of luxurious ease, with a band of faithful followers about him, in the foothills and deserted places, far from the haunts of men. But now, writes a correspondent of the London Daily Mail, Tchakirdji is terrorizing Turkey as of old, and only a few days ago he appeared suddenly in the marketplace of the village of Gureli, in the province of Smyrna, accompanied by eight "most evil-looking" men. Then immediately and quite fearlessly:

Going to the house of the head man, he ordered that the inhabitants—there are only some fifty families in the village—should be assembled.

With fear and trembling the order was obeyed. Standing contemptuously with his little group of followers in the midst of the crowd, Tchakirdji intimated that the first business of the evening would be the provision of supper for himself and his men. The elders explained with deep obeisance that the resources of the village were so low that nothing but the most meagre provisions were available.

Tchakirdji humbly waived his rights to a supper. He would however, he now said, proceed to the main object of his visit.

He gave a sign to his men and in a few moments the heads of ten of the leading inhabitants of Gureli were rolling on their own marketplace amid the wailing of their fellow townsmen.

"I am fairly sure" explained Tchakirdji, in a brief address with which he closed the proceedings, "that it was through the denunciations of one of you that my comrade, Sinan Mehmet, was surrounded and killed by the soldiers near here some months ago. I have not avenged him, and I hope that this will serve as a lesson to any that may be tempted to betray me or my companions. I will kill informers without pity, and, if necessary, the innocient shall pay for the guilty."

With this the brigand and his friends withdrew, and, except for a futile expedition of a company of soldiers into the mountains after him, which returned with nothing but marching to its credit, this has been the end of the affair.

Not long ago the correspondent of The Daily Mail met at dinner a Turkish Government official who unknowingly had met and chatted with the brigand. He tells of his narrow escape:

I was carrying out a Government survey in the mountains behind Smyrna. As I sat in my tent one evening, a young man came in, saluted me, sat down, took a cigaret I offered him, and began to talk. I thought he was some local notable paying me a call. He was about thirty, tall, with a frank and open expression and a straight forward bearing, and he spoke like an educated man. He stayed about ten minutes, and when he had gone my servant came to me and said, "Do you know who that was, Effendi? It was Tchakirdji, who has killed in the last twelve years 700 men."

Tchakirdji is a "bad man" by heredity, following in the steps of his father, who was killed in an encounter with the troops. But he has often aided the poor, and last year sent a dowry of $1,000 to a beautiful but dowerless girl, whose poverty prevented her marrying the man of her choice. Still says the correspondent:

Tchakirdji lives by blackmail varied with plunder. Last year he took £7,000 in specie from a Government mail in the Smyrnan vilayet, but his more usual resource is to write, courteously enough, to local personages of means, requesting the dispatch to places of rendezvous in the mountains of sums varying from £100 to £500.

And he employs the same methods, too, to interest his patrons in works of public good. Once, we read:

"A village bridge badly required repair. Tchakirdji pointed out by letter to a wealthy Turk of the neighborhood that the benefit of an entirely new bridge could be conferred on the locality at a cost of £1,000. Three times this message was repeated without effect. Then one evening, as the rich man was gathered with the rest of the village on the mosque at the time of the sunset prayer, Tchakridji, with a dozen armed men, appeared at the door. Leaning his rifle against the wall he took of his shoes and joined the kneeling throng in their silent prostrations. When his prayer was finished, Tchakirdji walked quietly over to the rich man, who had not seen him enter the mosque, and touched him gently on the arm. The man started up, but Tchakirdji nodded towards the little escort waiting outside the open door, and in a few moments the tardy public benefactor was on horseback on the way to an unknown destination in the mountains. He returned thinner in a few weeks' time, when his friends had sent £2,000 in gold to a secluded meeting-place. Then at last began the construction of the ruined bridge. A gang of workmen appeared under the direction of a young Greek. The latter was at once arrested as an accomplice of Tchakirdji. He denied all knowledge of the brigand. He was a young master builder; he had received written instructions with a remittance of money, he said, to carry out this work. It was his first big job, and he had asked no questions.

The young Greek was shut up in an insanitary goal at Thera as a measure of precaution, and the work on the bridge was stopped. Three days afterwards there was an alarm of fire at a village three miles from Thera, and half the garrison was sent of there to put it out. Hardly had they gone when there came a call to help at another fire five miles away on the other side. The rest of the troops hurried of to the scene of the second alarm.

Then into the empty town dashed Tchakirdji and his men. They slew the few sentries that were left, carried of the local governor and the commander of the garrison together with the imprisoned Greek, and were on the way back to the mountains before the weary troops got back to Thera from their false alarms. The negotiations that led to the release of the captured officials arranged also for the completion of the bridge.

Like most successful men, Tchakirdji is not lacking in a sense of humor, as this account of the writer shows:

Once he was tracking a party of soldiers who were chasing him in the depth of winter. He came upon them, all wearied out, sleeping with no guard posted, in a stable. Entering quietly himself Tchakirdji first took away their arms and then awakened them.

"Who are you looking for? he asked.

"The brigand Tchakirdji," they answered.

"Well, you have found him," Tchakirdji replied, "but you must still be punished for your carelessness in not posting a guard." Then, calling in his men, he first had a sound trashing administered to his pursuers for the offense of sleeping while on duty, and sent them back through the snow rifleless to their headquarters.

Agreed

"I have a very dear old housekeeper—she is aged, but she has been like a mother to me," said a solid citizen. "A little while ago I noticed that my silver shaving mug was slightly tarnished, and I asked the old lady to polish it for me. The next morning I found it shining like the sun. I completed my toilet and then went into the kitchen to thank her for her kindness.

"'Mrs. Gorman,' I said, 'my mug looks a lot nicer this morning'

"'It surely does, sir,' she replied, glancing up at me. 'You always look a lot better with a clean shave.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

LOWERY'S CLAIM
During the 37 months that Lowery's Claim was on earth it did business all over the world. It was the most unique, independent ond fearless journal ever produced in Canada. Political and theological enemies pursued it with the venom of a rattlesnake until the government shut it out of the mails, and its editor ceasad to publish it, partly on account of a lazy liver and partly because it takes a pile of money to run a paper that is outlawed. There are still 25 different editions of this condemned journal in print. Send 10 cents and get one or $2 50 and get the bunch.

WATER NOTICE

I, Edward Pope of Greenwood, in British Columbia, miner, give notice that on the 20th day of September, 1911, I intend to apply to the Water Commissioner, at his office in Fairview, B.C., for a licence to take and use one-half cubic foot of water per second from a spring arising on the "Ruby Fraction" mineral claim, situate in Kimberly Camp, and being Lot 778s, in the Similkameen Division of Yale District. The water is to be taken from said spring or within 100 feet therefrom, and is to be used on Lots 452s and 778s for irrigation purposes.

About Float.

Float is not a periodical. It is a book containing 86 illustrations all told, and is filled with sketches and stories of western life. It tells how a gambler cashed in after the flush days of Sandon; how it rained in New Denver long after Noah was dead; how a parson took a drink at Bear Lake in early days; how justice was dealt in Kaslo in '93; how the saloon man outprayed the women in Kalamazoo, and graphically depicts the roamings of a western editor among the tenderfeet in the cent belt. It contains the early history of Nelson and a romance of the Silver King mine. In it are printed three western poems, and dozens of articles too numerous to mention. Send for one before it is too late. The price is 25 cents, postpaid to any part of the world. Address all letters to

HOTEL BROOKLYN
PHOENIX, B. C.
Is opposite the Great Northern depot and is a delightful haven for the weary traveler. Great veins of hot water run through the entire house, and bathrooms are always at the service of those in search of material cleanliness. The dining room is an enemy to dyspepsia, while the artistic appointment of the liquid refreshment makes the drinks go down like eating fruit in a flower garden. The sample rooms are the largest in the mountains and a pleasure to drummers with big trunks.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGE

Tobacco Culture in B. C

Mr. Louis Holman, a successful tobacco planter of Kelowna, has much to say in favor of British Columbia agriculturists going in extensively for this important industry and in order that ranchers may give it a trail has offered to provide 200 plants free of charge except the express from his own plantation, where he has made as much as $537 per acre over all expenses in a good season, a figure not many fruit growers in the province are able to show. Mr. Holman states that with White Burley leaf he can hold his own with any tobacco planter in America, north or south, and instance the fact that last year another Kelowna rancher netted $487 for one load declaring it the biggest price ever received by him for a load of anything. To encourage the industry Mr. Holman is willing in addition to providing free plants to come and show ranchers exactly what procedure to take in planting, cultivating and harvesting their crops.

The tobacco industry has been taken up with considerable success on Vancouver Island, where 42 men are busily engaged in the business, more especially in the immediate vicinity of Nanaimo. The interior district is said to be superior for tobacco raising both in soil and climate to Vancouver Island, and if they find it profitable for the growth of "my lady Nicotine" it should prove a veritable gold mine to the rancher taking it up over here. According to Mr. Holman we have the same kind of soil here as is found in the tobacco districts of Cuba and with cultivation could get the same fine flavor to our products.

Despite the ban placed on the weed in cities, states and countries it is is interesting to note that the consumption of tobacco increases every year, while, on the other hand, the supply is diminishing and it is harder each season for the manufactures to meet the demand and the big houses are sending men all over the world to discover new fields. A director of the Imperial Tobacco Co., of London, recently visited Mr. Holman's ranch, expressed himself as both surprised and pleased at the quality of the tobacco grown and wished to sign up a contract there and then for 2,000,000 pounds a year but he had to be satisfied with a smaller contract as Mr. Holman could not guarantee delivery of such a large order. The Imperial representative had just come up from Kentucky, where he closed a deal for over $100,000 worth of the staple brand of that state, which is only suitable for pipe use, whereas the British Columbia variety is distinctly a cigar tobacco and naturally of a higher grade.

This Kelowna rancher has also received recently offers of contracts from two Montreal firms, one calling for 500,000 and the other for 600,000 pounds a year. He is of the opinion that 5,000,000 pounds can be raised between Salmon Arm and Keremeos, estimating it to fetch the growers 14 or 15 cents a pound.

Another important point to ranchers in this matter is that in the case of fruit culture they have to wait four or five years for their initial crop, whereas in the case of tobacco they can harvest their crop the year it is planted. Tobacco growers down in frigid Quebec make pretty good money out of a rough leaf variety and we see no reason why the industry should not be given a fair trial in this province under obviously more auspicious conditions.—Merritt Herald.

A Mule's Testimony

A correspondent sends the following clipping, believing that it will interest many of our readers as the incident related actually occurred in a Massachusetts court:

A driver had been brought before the judge, charged with cruelty to animals in that he had been driving a galled mule. The prisoner had an expert witness in a veterinarian, who testified that the sore on the mule's back did not pain the animal in the least.

The judge listened attentively to the long technical opinion, and then demanded to know where the mule was. He was informed that it was harnessed to a wagon on the street in front of the court building. The judge ordered that court be adjourned for five minutes.

He took his cain and proceeded to the street. He approached the mule, and with the end of his cain touched the sore spot on the animal's back. The mule almost kicked the dashboard off the wagon. Once again the judge touched the sore with his cain, and the franatic beast almost demolished the wagon with his kicking.

The judge returned to the bench. The prisoner was called before him.

"With all due respect to the expert testimony you have had introduced in your behalf to show that the sore on the mule's back does not pain him I will fine you $50," announced the judge. "I asked the mule if the sore hurt him and he said it did."

By virtue of a warrant given in pursuance of the Municipal Clauses Act and the provisions of the By-laws of the Corporation of the City of Greenwood, under the hand of Duncan McIntosh, Mayor of the said Corporation, dated the 31st day of July 1911, and of all other powers me in that behalf enabling, I hereby give notice that I will proceed to sell by public Auction at the City Hall, Greenwood, on the 6th day of September, 1911, at 10 o'clock a. m. the above mentioned lands unless the full amount of taxes, interest, costs and expenses as above are sooner paid.

G. B. TAYLOR,
Collector.

Dated this 3rd day of August, 1911.

BOUNDARY MINES

An experienced force of miners are now working in the Argo tunnel and the workings never looked better than they do this week.

Colonel Burritt has become interested in the Midway coal mine, and he reports that in 90 days this property will be on a shipping basis. Buildings are now being erected at the mine.

The Emma mine has been unwatered.

The Granby has closed its mines and smelter until more satisfactory arrangements can be made for a supply of coke. The coke from the east has proved unsuitable in regard to price and quality, or at least that is the common report.

The Greenwood smelter is still in operation, and regular shipments of coke are being received from the east. No definite information can be obtained as to the future operations of the B. C. Copper Co.

B. C. MINING NEWS

E. H. Lee has returned to Vancouver from a prospecting trip on Graham Island, one of the Queen Charlotte group. He says that a man does not want to be an oil expert in that country; all he has to do is to wait for a hot day and then follow his nose. He brought back a large quantity of oil shale which he says crops over a large area. It is so heavily impregnated with coal tar that when heat is applied large bubbles appear on the surface, and the odor of burning oil gives further unmistakable evidence that the shale is thoroughly saturated with the goods.—Phoenix Pioneer.

The Bosun mine in the Slocan under the management of Monty Davys is being cleared up and examined, with the view of ascertaining if it can be operated at a profit.

Kootenay marble will be used in the construction of the $200,000 artifical ice rink in Vancouver. This rink will seat 10,000 people, and will be the largest in Canada.

Near Hazelton the silver-lead ores assay about 2½ ounces of silver to each unit of lead in the ore.

A deposit of oil-shales has been found on the North Thompson river, which carries a fair percentage of oil, and is probable that serious attempts will be made to prove the value of the deposits from a commercial point of view, as soon as the Canadian Northern railway up the valley, is in operation.

During the last months of 1910 there were some eighty mineral locations made on the upper portion of Siwash creek, which flows into the Fraser some two miles above Yale; the locations themselves are five miles from the village. Specimens showing free gold have been brought in. The ore is quartz, from both dykes and smaller veins intersecting the slates. As the lower portions of this creek have produced coarse gold in the past, and always been favorite hydraulic grounds, the country higher up is well worth prospecting.

Development work on the mica claims in the Big Bend district has been prosecuted during the past summer, work having been done on the Thistle, Maple Leaf and Shamrock claims. The Big Bend Mica Mines, limited, is the only company doing any real development work in the Big Bend, having employed about twenty men throughout the summer stripping and prospecting and bringing out about a ton of very high-grade mica at the close of the season as samples. The company intends to prosecute its development work during the coming season, and, if possible to arrange transportation, will make regular shipments.

THE COMING ELECTION

Martin Burrell arrived home at Grand Forks on Friday and speaking of political matters to the Gazette reporter he said:

"Everywhere, on trains, boats and in the hotels, the coming election forms a constant theme for discussion, and the contest is undoubtedly creating more interest than any election in recent years. Much, very much, hinges on the results, and I do not know that one can better express it than our friend President Taft when he truly said that Canada was 'at the parting of the ways.' It is hard, I suppose, for a conservative member, or more strictly speaking, ex-member, to express what is called an unbiassed opinion, but this I can say, that the conservative party which is opposing reciprocity with all its strength, was never imbued with more confidence, never more systematically organized for the fight, and never more convinced as to the absolute rightness of their cause. The government dissolved parliament in a semi-panic. They never even asked for sufficient supply to carry on the business of the country; they made no serious effort to meet the demand of the west for redistribution, and they broke faith in a most unprecedented manner by refusing to continue the investigation of the serious charges against their own Minister by a committee which the Prime Minister himself appointed. It is certain that the hopes which the government at one time entertained of sweeping the prairie country have been dissipated. Their western members are now admitting that they cannot expect to gain more than one or two seats west of the lakes, and I will venture the prediction that even such slender hopes will not be fulfilled.

"Nothing is of course more gratuitous than prophecy, though at election times we all insist on being prophets. I will join the ranks and prophesy, what I have good reason for believing will happen, that the government will be defeated on September 21st, and defeated in a marked and unmistakable manner."

SAN TOY

Seats are now on sale at Logan's jewelery store for the Royal Lilliputian Opera Company's production of "San Toy." This is one of the successful comic operas of modern times. It ran for two solid years at Daly's Theatre, London, England, and the tremendous hit of the piece at Daly's Theatre, New York brought to the late Augustin Daly fame and fortune. With the passing of Mr. Daly the American rights of the piece were secured by Mr. J. C. Dufft. Although it is some eight years since Mr. Dufft's company toured America, the box office records established have never been eclipsed. When one takes into consideration the fact that the "Merry Widow," "Madam Sherry," and the "Chocolate Soldier" followed closely on the heels of "San Toy," one can gain an idea of the tremendous popularity of "San Toy." It would not be fair to the clever children of the Royal Lilliputians Opera Company to say their performance would favorably compare with that of the adult organization, however, the Canadian managers are being continually beseiged by their patrons to secure return bookings of the Royal Lilliputians. The company consist of thirty clever youngsters, under the capable direction of Madam Simpson Hogg. Pearl Carlyle, a miss of fourteen summers, has the title roll in "San Toy." Baby Grace plays "Wun Lung," the Chinaman. Louise Condon is the Emperor and the other twenty parts are in capable hands. The company carries its own orchestra and will play here two nights commencing Monday, Aug. 21.

Howes' Great London Show

A street parade, which will be a veritable horse fair, is promised by the Great London Shows, which exhibit at Greenwood, August 18th.

The pageant will leave the show grounds promptly at 10 o'clock day of the show, follow a line of march to be announced later. First will come the World Famous Dublin Grays, the $25,000 prize winners.

The band wagons, floats, and other paraphernalia will be drawn by 400 well groomed, well matched dapple grey horses. The stock is all in pink of condition. The racers are of undisputed lineage, the steeds attached to the Roman chariots are particularly beautiful, the Kentucky high school horses are the greatest equines on earth, and half a hundred Shetland ponies will delight the children.

When the show comes to the city the work of unloading will be well under way with the rising of the sun, and there is little chance of the street display being late in leaving the grounds. There is no doubt the display will be worth seeing as the places through which the show has passed have all spoken in the highest praise of its worth. The great Dublin $25,000 prize team will be an unusual feature to be seen with this great show.

WATER NOTICE

I, Kenneth R. Davies of Rock Creek, rancher, give notice, that on the 15th day of September, 1911, I intend to apply to the Water Commissioner, at his office at Fairview, B. C., for a licence to take and use four cubic feet per second from a lake situated in a N. E. direction about 1½ miles from P. R. 692, in the vicinity of Nicholson Creek. The point of diversion is at the outlet of the lake, and the water is to be conveyed to Lot 1638 by means of ditch, flume or pipe-line, for irrigation purposes.
