The Granby smelter at Grand Forks, has dumped large quantities of slag into the north fork of the Kettle river. Since the water went down in the main river this slag has formed a bar two acres in extent in the rear of the old site of the Yale hotel, and diverted the course of the stream, so that the water is cutting away valuable ranch land on the east side of the river. Fish caught in the river are full of slag behind the gills.

Lindsay was 55 years of age, and his remains were shipped to Superior, Wisconsin, where his brothers reside.

Likes the West

"The Canadian West is a wonderful country, pregnant with great possibilities, and contains a happy and prosperous people," said H. M. King, chairman of the London and Dominion Trust Company of London, England, who has been in the west for some time in his capacity of president of the Alberta, Peace River and Eastern Railroad. The railway is projected to run from Contes, on the American border, up the Porcupine Valley to the east end of Lesser Slave Lake, with a spur line between 300 and 500 miles long to Edmonton, a branch east to the Hudson Bay and west to British Columbia and the Pacific Ocean.

"The wonderful development in the West led us to buy the charter for this railway in London, and we will commence construction just as soon as the ice breaks in the spring. 'The farmers in the west are gradually beginning to realize the necessity of mixed farming, and the farms in consequence are becoming more profitable every year. The West should also be a very large fruit-growing district.'"

THE LEDGE

Is located at Greenwood, B. C., and can be traced to many parts of the earth. It comes to the front every Thursday morning, and believes that hell would close up if love ruled the world. It believes in justice to everyone; from the man who mucks in the mine to the king who sits on the cushions of the throne. It believes that advertising is the life of trade; and that one of the noblest works of creation is the man who always pays the printer.

The Ledge is $2.00 a year in advance, or $2.50 when not so paid. It is postage free to all parts of Canada, Mexico, Great Britain and the county of Bruce. To the United States it is $2.50 a year, always in advance.

THE country papers are still being flooded with free publicity schemes. This nuisance will cease when all editors become wise to correct business methods.

SUNS is the name given to cheap keg beer that is sometimes sold in this country. It is poor slop owing to the deleterious ingredients that are used in its manufacture.

SOME people think that hell is a myth, but they should withhold their decisions until England and Germany run their armies face to face, and turn on the machine guns.

BY advertising you educate the public as to who you are, where you are, and what you have to offer in the way of skill, talent or goods. The man in these modern days who does not advertise is only half alive, and is of little use to the community in which he toddles around to save riding in a hearse.

OVER in Coalmont the Courier is still coming to the front, somewhat belated, but always large and full of cayenne paragraphs. The editor has recovered from his recent shock, but has not fortified the office. He will probably do this in a short time by piling cordwood around the building, with a tunnel connection to the wet grocery on the other side of the road. It is a coal camp but wood in short chunks is still adored by the populace. Ed Clark has recently captured Peck MacSwain, and although the water is full of alkali Peck is bearing up bravely, and is firm in the belief that a water wagon is eminently superior to a cushioned beer tank. With Ed and Peck bived in the same office the Arizona Kicker of B. C. should be long paint a halo over the Tulameen that will cast the stars into the discard. It has been reported that a full bottle had been discovered underneath the Courier office, but we are positive that this is but an idle rumor.

IN all unincorporated places in this district, the police have issued orders that baseball must not be played on Sundays. It might be that the fans make too much noise and have been disturbing the prayers and dreams of those who think that one day is more holy than the others. The police have not yet stopped joy riding, fishing, hunting, walking, laughing, the ringing of bells, or tooting of whistles on the holy day. We can still eat, drink water, and chew gum on the Sabbath, so we should rejoice that we have some freedom left, although eventually history may repeat itself, and the "Blue Laws" again become prominent. It is a serious question to trifle with the freedom of the people, in matters that cause no moral, mental or physical harm. Exercise in the open air is no more sinful on Sunday than on any other day of the week, and to seek its prevention is a step in the wrong direction. The people who have a mania for Sunday observance along the lines that they imagine are right, should try and remember that co-ercion does not win many souls. No cause is helped by oppressing that which is harmless.

REAL ESTATE GAMBLING

An Englishman after reading an editorial in The Ledge about the evils of real estate gambling, writes from Penticton as follows:

"I came out from England last April. I was eight days in Toronto and three days in Winnipeg before coming to Vancouver. There I was for eighteen days before I got work on a fruit farm at Maple Ridge, where I worked over two months. My intention is to see something of the fruit growing lands in British Columbia before settling down. I have bought five acres in Pitt Meadows, three miles from Westminster Junction. Of course that land is not suitable for fruit growing, but I want to go in for vegetable growing and market my produce in a new way. I paid $165 an acre for my land. On the other side of the Pitt river, exactly opposite my land, $600 are asked for an acre. Of course this land is nearer to Coquitlam and will be "ripe" for sub-division in a year or so—according to the real estate man. I have written to an Ontario periodical about the land speculation out here in fruit and farm lands, and he wrote to me he will write a leader on it. I shall also write to two weekly papers in London, England, and if my letters are not good enough, I think of going back myself and holding public meetings. My intention is not to run the country down, but to warn people against investments without seeing the properties.

"I have letters from real estate men in Regina, Sask., giving the value of one and the same town lot at $550, $800, $1,000 and $1,200; and of another lot at $150 and $250. And some of these men are so called reliable men, in fact, one of them is a partner in the firm of McArns Bros., (one of the brothers is acting mayor of Regina.)

"I thought speculation was bad in Toronto, but it is nothing if compared with the West.

"But where comes the so-called sound advice in, when a man gets values of one lot at $550 to $1,200. I have been a regular reader of the weekly papers 'Canada,' 'Standard of Empire' and 'Canadian Mail,' published in London, England, and I have found out that those papers favor the buying of town lots too much. I went from New Westminster to Langley and was surprised at the small percentage of cleared land along the B. C. E. R., but as long as the speculators ask $150 to $250 per acre for heavy timbered land, which costs $250 to clear, farmers have no desire to buy at town lot prices.

"Many Boards of Trade and leading men seem to break their heads about the remedies for the high cost of living. Well, in my opinion, the high cost of living in Canadian towns is due to the holding up of all the land in and near the towns by speculators who leave the land in a disgraceful state. Near the towns in England and all over Western and Central Europe we find the land close to the towns cultivated on the inclusive method. Near London, England and Southend-on-Sea, a great deal of building is going on on the outskirts of the cities, but that does not prevent the owners of the land to cultivate it or have it cultivated up to the time the builders take possession of the land, and so in every town in civilized Europe.

"Some people will say that the Canadian cities are growing so fast if compared with Europe, but London, England and Southend-on-Sea, I know well, grow faster than any Canadian city. London is losing her population in the centre parts for the suburbs, and so do nearly all the big English and Scotch cities."

THREE OLD HYPOCRITES

We recall a story told by Dan McDearmid of the Vendome hotel in New Glasgow in connection with a good Presbyterian divine and two elders of his church who were returning from the Synod, which met that year in Moncton. Their homes were in Cape Breton but they spent the night at the Vendome, and were to take the early train for their homes the next day. They sat around the rotunda of the hotel until rather a late hour, when the minister remarked to his elders that he thought it would be well to retire, although for his part he wanted to read a few chapters in the "Book" before he went to bed. The elders took the hint and went to their different rooms. The parson then turned to Mr. McDearmid and remarked that he did not go to sleep well in a strange bed, and if he could give him about two glasses of Scotch whiskey with a little hot water and sugar that it aid him in having a quiet night's rest. The parson slept sound that night.

Early in the morning while Mr. McDearmid was at his desk, one of the elders came downstairs and complained of having very severe cramps and asked him if he had anything in the house that would give him relief. McDearmid suggested Jamaica ginger, painkiller and cayenne pepper, but elder remarked that none of these agreed with him. Finally McDearmid asked him if he could take a glass of brandy at which the elder's face brightened and he remarked, "It is just what I was after but I am travelling with two good temperance men and I would not want them to know that I took it." He got the necessary decoction and went away.

A short time afterwards McDearmid went upstairs and was passing through the corridor when the room door of elder No. 2 quietly opened and Mr. McDearmid was beckoned into the room. The elder No. 2 said, "I have long drive to-night, Mr. McDearmid. After reaching Sydney Mines I have 13 miles to go, and would just like a small flask of whiskey to keep the chill out of me on the country roads. If you could get it for me I would be very much obliged, but I hope that you won't mention it to the other men travelling with me for they are both good temperance men."—Amherst News.

AFTER THE SALOONS

The Rev. Dr. Kramer thinks the time has arrived to put the saloons on the hike in Spokane. He said last Sunday in a sermon that Spokane has not forgotten the assassination of her chief of police, and the saloon must go because it is inhuman, dishonest and murderous.

"It is the most auspicious time to vote on the saloon. With the saloons, the few foreigners in our city, the franchise in the hands of the women and our uncaught and unpunished murderers from these saloons, the time is ripe for the vote. All these crimes and saloons go to make perdition sure in Spokane if the saloon stays.

"The saloonkeeper violates every principle of equity. The Masons, Odd Fellows, Elks, bonding companies, railroads and insurance companies have given him the black eye. The saloonkeepers can no longer flimflam the people with their tommyrot. They are trying to make their business respectable, but they have sinned away their day of grace.

"The hottest fight ever initiated in heaven, earth or hell will be launched against the saloon in Spokane this fall. I know we cannot make the people good by legislation, but in the name of God, let us not legislate to make them bad. The saloonkeepers of Spokane had better hunt another job."

A BIG PRICE

The following despatch proves that the east is still alive, and that values in Montreal are still going up:

"The Mount Royal Hotel property at the corner of St. Catherine and Peel streets was sold recently for $1,252,550, or at the rate of $65.50 a square foot. The property has been purchased from the Mount Royal Hotel Company by a syndicate of three, one of the members being a well-known local financier, and another one of Toronto's leading financial men.

This property was originally the eight of the Hamilton Stores, and was owned by Robert Simpson Co., who sold it to J. A. Jacobs for $480,000. Mr. Jacobs in turn sold it to Messrs Carrick, Limited, for $650,000, who resold it to the Mount Royal Hotel Company for $850,000, and the latter have now sold it at an advance of over $400,000.

Trail to Hades

Chicago.—The path from the kitchen to the lunch counter is the road to perdition. Gaily furnished hotels are but houses of temptation for the girls who keep them in order, overworked, underpaid, and poorly housed. Poorly fed waitresses and chambermaids, forced to slave, subject to the insult of patrons, will sooner or later travel the path to ruin. These are the facts as found by charitable women, who acting as detectives for the Juvenile Protective association, delved beneath a smiling surface, and found sorrow and suffering. Even their report turned over to Edgar T. Davis, state factory inspector, might have remained a secret had he not prosecuted numerous restaurant keepers upon the strength of their findings.

The resume of the investigation now has been issued. According to these reports the ten-hour law is unknown to hundreds of women because their employers intimidate them by threats of dismissal should they discuss their work.

"The majority of girls who work in hotels go wrong sooner or later," is one of the assertions of the association's report, and it is backed by the statements which all go to the fifty hotels investigated. Reports on the seventy-two restaurants visited are no less emphatic on this score.

CARMI is situated on the West Fork of the Kettle river, at its junction with Wilkinson creek. It is 57 miles from Greenwood and 75 miles from Grand Forks. It is located on a large plateau on the west bank of the Kettle river and will be the central town for a dozen smaller mining camps. For the next two years it will be the supply point for the Kettle Valley railway during the construction of that road to Penticton, 87 miles.

CARMI has mining, timber and agricultural resources of great value. It has gold mines right at the townsite, and is a good smelter site.

Lots are being sold at from $50 to $250 each. Invest your money at home.

Newspaper Law

1—A postmaster is required to give notice by letter (returning the paper does not answer the law) when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office and state the reason for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publisher for payments.

2—If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrearages, or the publishers may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until payment is made.

3—Any person who takes a paper out of the Post Office, whether directed to his name or not, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the pay.

4—If a subscriber orders his paper stopped and the publisher continues to send, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the Post Office. This proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.

5—The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the Post Office or removing, leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

It's up to You

While the local newspapers of this and every other town in the Ottawa Valley are "boosting" week in and week out for the benefit of their several communities, what are the business men and people doing for the newspapers, for the latter cannot exist on words of praise alone. The best booster a town can have is the local paper and it should fairly represent the enterprise of the place in which it is published. For instance at the present time we are trying to attract attention abroad and draw people here. A glance at the advertising columns of the local papers should give an outsider some idea of the town's business interests that do not carry a line of advertising in their home paper. Not one half of the business men of the town merchants and manufacturers appear in the local papers. The papers push and boost week in and week out in the interests of all, but far from all help to support the papers.

Imagine the mental picture this town would present to the outsider picking up this paper and glancing over it, if the name of every business firm appeared in its advertising columns in a space large or small.

Every man for his own and general good should advertise regularly in the local papers, even if he only takes an inch space.

The local newspaper should be a business directory of the town.

The town has, however, several good advertisers who constantly keep themselves and their town to the front, and their example should be generally followed.—Ex.

An Easy Price

Ledgers recently discovered at Palos, Spain, contain interesting facts concerning the outlay made by Christopher Columbus on his expedition to the new world. The personal expenses of Columbus and his officers were $400, and $125 a month sufficed for the crew, so that $4,400 was spent for the expedition during the time that the voyage lasted. The armament of the little fleet cost $2,800. The cost of discovering America was about $7,600 all told.

LAND OF REVOLUTIONS

More Rebellions Have Taken Place in China than in any other Country on Record.

There are probably more revolts and rebellions recorded in the annals of China than can be resurrected from the histories of all the nations of the west. This is partly because Chinese annals of an authentic character go back much further than western annals and partly because the Chinese, inoffensive and docile though they seem, are predisposed to insurrection.

The tendency has persisted since the first of the eighteen emperors of the Hia dynasty mounted his throne away back in the dim mists of antiquity when the early Pharaohs were building their pyramids by the Nile and erecting their pyramids in the desert.

The Hia dynasty issued from 2205 to 1766 B.C., when it was overthrown by the Shang, or Yin, dynasty, an equally active race, which ruled until 1122 years before the Christian era. Disaster overtook the Shang Emperors at last from a rising of the people under the leadership of King Chou. Although Rome had not been built and the Greeks were still scattered tribes when they gave way to the princes of the Chou line. A protracted period of unrest followed.

In many respects the greatest of all the Chinese Emperors, Kubla Khan began his reign in 1267, and held the throne until his death in 1294. In these years the nation was more illustrious and powerful than ever before. A succession of Mongol emperors followed Kubla Khan, principally remembered for their sanction of the introduction of Christianity. In 1368 the Ming dynasty was proclaimed upon the ashes of the political structure built up by the warlike Mongols, and it ruled successfully until the Manchus of the North, the fierce, well-built, and Chinese, swept down upon Peking and installed their own princes in 1651.

The Manchus have never been numerous, and although they have managed to keep their saddles by dint of cowering the peoples under them, they have been unable to preserve absolute order and tranquillity. One of the first steps they took to impress their sovereignty upon the country was the publication of an edict compelling the people to adopt the pig-tail. The Manchus were horsemen, and the pig-tail was prescribed as a national institution because the Manchus contemptuously said, "The Chinese were of the same status as their horses."

Rebellion after rebellion marked the troubled reigns of the Manchu Emperors, and in most cases the germ of revolt was first in evidence in one or other of the provinces that are causing trouble to-day. Sze Chuen, Hu-nan, and Hu-nan have always been centres of discord.

Most Remarkable Piano.

An artist, Jan van Beers, designed a piano of a magnificent nature. The body is of natural wood, the legs and ornaments being of bronze, chiselled and gilded by the most expert artists in bronze work that could be found in Paris. Set into the front and sides are five Van Beers paintings, depicting the four seasons and a minute scene in the time of Louis Quinze. It was a present given by Napoleon to Josephine, and many years later the Empress Eugenie took great delight in playing upon it. When the Tuileries were sacked the piano was stolen; it was eventually recovered and put up to auction, when it was bought by a representative of the firm who originally built the instrument.

Nervousness in Children

Nervousness takes many forms, and parents should be on the look-out for any signs of it in a growing boy or girl. It is usually indicated that something is wrong—the child's work or play, or companions, or food, or general health. To trace it to its real source sometimes needs both great tact and much firmness on the mother's part, but no trouble must be spared to remove the cause, as excessive nervousness in childhood may, later on, reappear in a very serious form.

Boiling is, of course, the worst possible treatment for nervousness of any kind, though excessive sympathy is almost as bad. The child should be made to understand that his fears and shyness are the results of ill-health, and must be conquered by vigorous daily exercises, by nourishing diet, plenty of sleep, and plenty of enjoyed exercise outdoors.

Playing His Cards

It was the custom of Mr. Cameron to fall into an easy attitude wherever he might be. This habit led to an occasional dialogue of a spicy nature, and the dialogues led to a small square package which Mr. Cameron presented to his wife one night.

"What in the world are those?" inquired Mrs. Cameron, as the unwrapping of the package revealed a few cards neatly marked "For Use," and two or three dozen marked, "For Show."

"Those, my dear," said Mr. Cameron, "are for you to attach, by the small pin on the under side, to the various sofa cushions, chair-backs, and unoccupied wall spaces in this house. Then, whenever my head rests on any chair or sofa, or on any object designed for ornament, and once more, even with Christmas coming every year, and your friends as loving and generous as ever, we shall have a happy home."

NOT SUCH AN AWFUL WHIRL!

By Campbell Raymond.
(Copyright by Publishers Press Ltd.)

The clerks and officials in one of the smaller bureaux at Washington would, about now, seem to be a casual visitor, to be afflicted with a chronic grin. Even the somewhat sedate Chief sometimes "breaks into a solemn chuckle. The joke was rather on them, so they tried to keep it quiet, but it leaked out, of course. Briefly, it was nothing less than a grand, red paint whirl by the most circumspect clerk on Uncle Sam's payroll that caused that grin.

"Uncle Charlie," as he is called by everyone from the Chief to the messenger, is a meek, patient little man, weighing about one hundred and fifty pounds, with a mop of white hair, and a mustache of white whiskers, who has struggled along for fifteen years on a salary of $1,200. Twelve hundred dollars does not mean affluence down there where one has a family of five girls, and Uncle Charlie has always been seedy.

One by one the girls were married, however, and it came about that with the June roses the last of Uncle Charlie's responsibilities as to his family vanished. For several days after this event he was observed to wear a peculiar look. Slowly his air of abstraction gave way to one of determination, and one sweltering afternoon, suddenly laying down his pen, he announced to the man at the desk that he proposed to have a whirl.

The news ran like wildfire through the bureau, and presently employees began to pause casually beside Uncle Charlie's desk.

"Say," the office sport whispered. "You take my tip. Drink about an ounce of olive oil before you start in. You will last twice as long." He winked and went on.

"I wonder what that young man really meant?" Uncle Charlie pondered.

"I hear that you are going to give yourself a little recreation, Uncle Charlie," the Disbursing Clerk said, and gave him a playful dig in the ribs. "Of course you know that it is not exactly regular, but if you would like to have a little advance, why, er, I guess we could fix it up between us."

"That's very kind of you, sir, but I really don't think I shall need any advance," Uncle Charlie said, sorely perplexed. "Perhaps you'd better leave the number of days blank on your application for leave," Uncle Charlie, the Chief advised, meeting him in the corridor. "But then," he added with sudden indulgence, "if you should happen to overstay the time coming to you, why, er, we'll just consider that you are sick and charge it up to sick leave."

That was on Tuesday. On Thursday Uncle Charlie's rusty alpaca coat was hanging on its usual hook and Uncle Charlie was at his old desk when the rest of the clerks came racing in at one minute to nine. Uncle Charlie was chipper and smiling, though his nose was curiously peeled. The office sport dropped his hat with its fancy band in his astonishment and walked round and round Uncle Charlie, eyeing him from head to foot.

"Nary headache, as I live!" he finally gasped. "Say, Uncle Charlie, put me wise to that dope, will you? You look as fresh as a daisy!"

It was no use trying to disguise their curiosity, and presently half the office force, including the Chief, had gathered about Uncle Charlie's desk. "Now, look here, Uncle Charlie," the Chief said, "we just want to know what you did, anyway. I guess we sort of—well, misunderstood your intentions."

"Well, it wasn't such an awful whirl, maybe, for one of you boys, but it was a right smart one for me," Uncle Charlie told them as they pressed eagerly forward. "You see, for quite a long while I have had to look after things about the house—there were always so many little jobs that the girls couldn't do—and I used all my leave working at home. And I wouldn't have felt like being extravagant while they were dependent on me and required so many things. But after Louise was married—she was the last one, and their mother has been dead several years—why, I felt like letting myself out a little. It was one of the most delightful days I have ever experienced."

"But what did you do, Uncle Charlie?" they demanded in chorus. "Why," he said, "first of all I went down town and bought this red necktie—I've always wanted one, he added bashfully. "And then I went out to the ball park, and bought a bag of peanuts, and sat on the bleachers in the sun, and drank pop, and watched the game. And say," Uncle Charlie concluded impressively, "Do you know, I really believe it was a better game than the one I saw fifteen years ago when our home town beat the Carter Corners' team thirty-seven to twenty-eight!"

Parental Tactics.

A worried parent is sometimes obliged to do something like this:—"Pa, what is a transcendentalist?" "Have you chained up the dog, as I told you?" "Not yet, pa." "Well, do that, and when you come back I will tell you what a transcendentalist is." While Bobby was gone his parent dug the needed information out of a dictionary.

A man's ideal woman is simply one who believes everything he tells her.

Sons of the King.

The Prince of Wales, much to his disappointment, it is said, is not destined for a naval career. He may spend only six months on the "Hindustan," and after that enter a cavalry regiment.

The future of the King's next son, Prince Albert, has been engaging the King's attention lately, and it is understood that he will eventually become a midshipman. In his case the navy will furnish him with a career. Prince Henry, the third son, is not fitted for the strenuous life of a sailor and he may, after spending some years at Eton, be gazetted to a cavalry regiment.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

Deputy Minister of the Interior.

About Float.

Float is not a periodical. It is a book containing 86 illustrations all told, and is filled with sketches and stories of western life. It tells how a gambler cashed in after the flush days of Sandon; how it rained in New Denver long after Noah was dead; how a parson took a drink at Bear Lake in early days; how justice was dealt in Kaslo in '93; how the saloon man outprayed the women in Kalamazoo; and graphically depicts the roamings of a western editor among the tenderfeet in the cent belt. It contains the early history of Nelson and a romance of the Silver King mine. In it are printed three western poems, and dozens of articles too numerous to mention. Send for one before it is too late. The price is 25 cents, postpaid to any part of the world. Address all letters to

Last week the Rawhide shipped 5,507 tons of ore.

Last week the Lone Star mine shipped 664 tons of ore.

Last week the Granby mine shipped 25,002 tons of ore.

Last week the Granby smelter treated 23,940 tons of ore.

Last week the Mother Lode mine shipped 6,892 tons of ore.

Last week the Greenwood smelter treated 13,620 tons of ore.

Last week the Napoleon mine shipped 390 tons of ore.

Last week the shipments of blister copper from the Granby smelter amounted to 436,500, a total for the year of 12,902,500 pounds.

A carload of ore is being shipped this week to the Granby from the Big Copper.

Last week the B. C. Copper Co. bonded the Bureka group of claims for $50,000. These claims are on Eagle creek, near Nelson, and in the past have shipped about 2,000 tons of ore that averaged 5.5 per cent. copper, 2.1 ounces of silver and .21 ounces of gold. The property will now be rapidly developed and ore shipped to the Greenwood smelter.

B. C. MINING NEWS

There are 40 men working at the No. 1 in the Ainsworth camp, and a tramway is being built to the Highland mill.

At the Bluebell mine on Kootenay lake a force of 70 men, are mining and milling about 175 tons of ore a day.

Zinc concentrates are being sent from the Standard at Silverton to Oklahoma.

In the Slocan a deep-level tunnel is being run on the Idaho-Alamo.

Nearly 200 men are working in the mines at Ainsworth, including those employed at the Bluebell, across the lake.

At the Panama in the Slocan, three men are mining and sacking a ton of ore every day.

J. A. Carter has taken a lease and bond on the Martin group, on the South Fork of Kaslo creek.

The Cork mine on the South Fork of Kaslo creek will resume operations in a short time. The bondholders of the Selkirk Mining Co. are taking over the property.

The result of development on the Red Elephant group on Hall Creek has been very encouraging according to reports brought down from there by Hughie MacKay, part owner of the property. The work this season has been confined mostly to open cutting and demonstrated that there is plenty of gold bearing rock on the property. In all of the ore taken out this summer native gold can be easily seen and assay averages over 12 feet give something over $17 to the ton in yellow metal. Mr. McKay is having a considerable quantity of specimens brought down for exhibition purposes and it is expected to arrive in Kaslo shortly. The need of such a large gold proposition as the Red Elephant is transportation. There is not much improvement in this respect over a few years ago. It is true that a splendid trail on a wagon road grade extends from Hall creek's junction with the Upper Duncan to the basin in which the Red Elephant, Bannockburn, Wagner, and other big prospects of the Upper Duncan are situated. But this is by no means all that is required. The trail between Haly landing and Hall creek is an early day one and practically in an impassable condition for pack animals. With a good trail over this section of the route supplies could be packed in and there is a possibility that

WATER NOTICE

NOTICE is hereby given that Robert Williamson of Anaconda, will apply for a licence to take and use one-half of a cubic foot of water per second out of an underground spring on his property, which flows in an easterly direction and empties into Boundary Creek. The water will be used for irrigation purposes on Lot 1015, T.P. 70, Sub-division B.

This notice was posted on the ground on the 13th day of July, 1912. The application will be filed in the office of the Water Recorder at Fairview.

Objections may be filed with the said Water Recorder or with the Comptroller of Water Rights, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B. C.

ROBERT WILLIAMSON, Applicant.

ore could be brought down. In fact, according to Mr. MacKay, it is intended to pack ore down to Haly's landing and from there by barges down the Duncan river and over Howser lake to Lardo. The value of the rock is believed to be high enough to stand even this heavy transportation charge and a few shipments would do much to secure better facilities. Another thing badly needed in the opinion of those interested in that section is the continuation of the Dominion government work of clearing the snags out of the Duncan to Haly's landing. This would result in making the river navigable for a distance of several miles and would enable small steamers to ply from Lardo to the upper river point, and make it possible for the claims to ship ore at a profit.—Kootenaiian.

THE PEACE RIVER

A big party of prospectors has made its way through the Rockies by way of the Yellowhead Pass, and they are understood to have searched with the scrutiny of a fine tooth-comb for evidences of the mineral wealth supposed to lie within the Rockies at the Yellowhead.

They have made their way through them, and now look for treasures they hope to find on the prairies which unfold from the foothills out of the mountains. They believe the Peace River country offers great mineral opportunities. One of the prospectors said that people have not yet begun rightly to understand what the Peace River country really means.

Gold has been found in it. The party of prospectors now coming out of the mountains expect to find more gold in it. The prospector a graduate of McGill, and a plodder of silent places for ten years, believes gold will be found there in richly paying quantities.

Gold is not the only metal hoped to be found in the north country. Gypsum has been found near Dunvegan. An English syndicate bot a piece of gypsum land near there for a big sum, some hundreds of thousands, a year or so ago. Mica has been found in the mountains and more of it is looked for on the plateau prairies of the Peace. It is not thought that there is much coal in the country, but copper, silver and lead are expected to show up. Some day the rarity of a tin mine in the vicinity of the Rockies will be unearthed.

Time enough always proves little enough.

Truth, as some people understand it, is a wonderfully elastic thing.

LOWERY'S CLAIM

During the 37 months that Lowery's Claim was on earth it did business all over the world. It was the most unique, independent and fearless journal ever produced in Canada. Political and theological enemies pursued it with the venom of a rattlesnake until the government shut it out of the mails, and its editor ceased to publish it, partly on account of a lazy liver and partly because it takes a pile of money to run a paper that is outlawed. There are still 30 different editions of this condemned journal in print. Send 10 cents and get one or 25 and get the bunch.

ARGO TUNNEL

The workings of the Argo mine are only a short distance from the centre of Greenwood making it easy for tourists and strangers to see a mine in full operation. The indications are that the Argo will eventually become a great mine, and add materially to the prosperity of the entire district. Come up and see it for yourself.
