Around Home

W. R. Dewdney has been appointed a stipendiary magistrate.

Joel W. Payne, went to Cranbrook last week to spend the summer.

Nick Kostiw has made a provisional purchase of the Vendome Hotel.

Petty larcenists and hen-house burglars are numerous in Anaconda.

Mrs. Storer, of Nome, Alaska, is the guest of her son, Sid Storer.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Banks returned from England on Saturday last.

R. G. Hargreaves returned to the city after spending a few days in Victoria.

Mrs. C. Æ. Shaw will receive with her sister Mrs. Fleming on Thursday, March 5.

"Chuck" Clark the noted goaltender, left last week for Victoria, where he will enter college.

Gibby McDonald the well-known hockey player of Trail, spent a few days in town this week.

An important meeting of the Agricultural Association will be held at the rink next Tuesday, March 10th at 8 p.m.

Frank Bell died in Portland last Saturday from tubercolosis. He had for several years been proprietor of the Vendome Hotel in Anaconda.

At the Star Theatre on Saturday night The Charge of the Light Brigade will be shown and a two reel feature film in colors, "The Ways of Destiny."

An exceptional chance—30 acres (more or less) on main road between Phoenix and Greenwood, finest soil, price extremely low. C. C. Tilley, Greenwood.

Last Sunday Teddy Oliver fell out of a building on Silver street, and was taken to the hospital suffering from concussion of the brain. He has since recovered.

Dr. McLean and J. L. White returned on Monday from attending the Liberal convention in Victoria. There were 350 delegates present and no riot occurred.

Don't forget the delicious "eats" that will be for sale at the Presbyterian church on Saturday afternoon and evening of this week, tea coffee, sandwiches, cake, ice cream and candy.

The Star Theatre was crowded to the doors on Saturday night with an interested audience to hear the noted Gaumont Talking Motion pictures. The subjects that were shown and heard were of famous artists and their voices synchronize as harmoniously as if one saw them in real life.

If you want to be happy forget yourself and think of some one else and if possible do something for some one else. Read to an old lady; send a bunch of flowers to a sick friend; dry the tears of a lonely child; say a kind word to a poor discouraged washerwoman; speak with a voice which shames the whine and whimpers of another.

One of those bright social events that goes to make life in a small town so pleasant was held on Monday night when a number of Mrs. F. E. Keffer's friends gathered at her residence, Anaconda. It was a real surprise party for when the merry makers arrived Mr. and Mrs. Keffer were preparing to go out and spend the evening at a neighbors house. Tables were quickly put in readiness for cards, Mrs. Keffer winning the first prize for ladies and Wm. Wilson got the first gentlemen's while Mrs. Malcolm the booby prize. Refreshments were then served after which music and singing passed away a very enjoyable evening.

If men had to do the housework they would live in tents and use paper dishes.

Rebecca's At Home

The At Home of the Rebecca's held last Friday night was a very great success from every standpoint. In point the numbers there were as many people as the hall would comfortably accommodate, and everybody came determined to have a good time and to see that everyone else had. At 8.30 the whist drive began and lasted until about 11. Mrs. Malcolm captured the first prize for the ladies, and G. B. Taylor for the gentlemen, while the consolation prizes went to Miss Buckless and Mr. McCollough. Refreshments were served after which the hall was cleared for dancing. Let us have more of these pleasant social evenings, for they draw the community closer together, drive away the care and tribulations of life and are a benefit to all.

Communication

Greenwood, B.C. March 2nd

TO THE EDITOR,
GREENWOOD LEDGE.

DEAR SIR:

(Re Greenwood Hockey)

I trust you will allow me space in your valuable paper to bring to the attention of the citizens of Greenwood and also to all those interested in hockey in the surrounding district the question as to whether it is their intention in future to support a similar aggregation of players as that produced by the local club this season.

Opinions have been freely expressed that in spite of our unfortunate position in the league, the supporters of the game have been well repaid and hockey of this nature has had a material bearing in stimulating the prosperity of the town, if this is the case and I am convinced myself that it is so, there is no reason why we should not arrange for the next season players.

Unfortunately professional hockey cannot exist alone on the enthusiasm of its supporters and unless they are willing to contribute liberally to its financial existence, it will be impossible to undertake this work.

I have been requested to call a General Meeting for the purpose of discussing the question as well as submitting the financial statement.

I trust all those who are interested will find it convenient to attend as a great deal depends on the enthusiasm shown as to whether Greenwood can support a hockey team or not.

The executive would also appreciate an early response from those, who are still in arrears for this season's subscriptions and skating tickets.

Thanking you for your kindness, I remain,

YOURS TRULY.

F. W. McLAINE,
President Greenwood Hockey Club.

Hockey Meeting

A general meeting of the Greenwood Hockey Club will be held in the Auditorium on Friday next, March 6th, at 8 p.m.

The financial statement will be submitted and other business discussed.

A large attendance is requested.

L. D. BURNELL,
Secy-Treas.

It was decided to call for tenders for a heavy wagon running gear.

Instructions were given tu have the chief of police in future attend the council meetings.

Council adjourned until March 16.

Easily Done

Horace was a very enthusiastic hockey player, and his enthusiasm, as often happens, had developed in an extraordinary way since he had been elected captain of the team.

One afternoon he was talking to his sister's best friend—Lucyfi, and holding forth on the merits of various players and the prospects of the season in general.

"By the way," he said. "Do you remember that friend of mine who had tea with us last Sunday?"

"You mean Fisher, don't you? Yes, I remember him."

"Well, he's going to be our best man soon!"

"Oh, Horace! How sweet of you to think of proposing like that!" answered she, as her head dropped on to his shoulder.

Thinking Themes

"It's a fine day," says the traditional Englishman, "let's go out and kill something."

The wild beast in us demands something to pursue and slay.

Even those who have no taste for slaughtering game have somewhat of the hunter lingering in them, which one finds on looking closely.

There are little corner cages in all our minds where we keep bloodthirsty thoughts against certain classes

I had always regarded Mormons for instance, as proper food for the exterminating sword, and was amazed, one time when I went among them, to find them as a rule as genial and human as those of my own sect.

In fact, human nature is about the same in Fez or Tokio, and when you come to know men you see that the difference is only veneer.

Yet the Southerner keeps a little bloody thought for the negro, the Gentile for the Jew, the Christian for the Turk, the white man for the yellow, the North Siders for the South Siders.

It is wholesome for any man to think that under another man's circumstances he might be as bad or worse.

"There goes my wicked self!" exclaimed an English bishop on seeing a criminal led to execution. —Dr. Frank Crane.

Live Now

Forty years ago there came a brilliant, eloquent charmer into public life. His name was Robert Ingersoll. Had he lived in the Sixteenth Century he would have been Milton's dearest foe.

He was not afraid of the Unknown. He had the faith of Darwin, the courage of Martin Luther, the enthusiasm of Dante. It was said of him that he laughed the devil out of court, and that his tears of pity put out the fires of hell.

He held up to ridicule barbaric myths and the terrors of the bogy man, so that even the most conservative smiled. The warmth of his heart and the generosity of his mind relaxed the rigor mortis of hands that held the bonds of orthodox minds.

"Live, and let others live!" said Ingersoll. It is more righteous to give joy than to punish sinners. The past is dead. Let it bury its dead. Tear down the bastile. There is nothing to fear. No one can save you but yourself. No one can harm you but yourself. Be free! Live, love, laugh, play."

We are heirs of the ages. All that is past, all the people who have taught, all the people who have learned, have made this time, this opportunity, this moment, possible for us.

The fact that we are expending, during this fiscal year, seventy-two per cent of our aggregate revenue in preparing for wars, leaving only twenty-eight per cent of our revenue available to meet all other governmental expenditures, including internal improvements, the erection of public buildings, the improvement of rivers and harbors, and the conservation of our natural resources, is to my mind appaling. It should arrest the attention of the American people, and not only cause them to demand a decrease in these unnecessary war expenditures, but also prompt them to aid in every way possible in the creation of public sentiment that would favor the organization of an international federation whose decisions and actions in the peaceful settlement of controversies between nations would be recognized and accepted as the final determination thereof. If this were done, it would not necessarily mean the entire abandonment of armies and navies, but it would so far remove the possibility of international wars as to make unnecessery the expenditure of the stupendous sums now being collected from the people in the form of taxes and expended for the purpose of maintaining armed peace.—Hon. J. A. Tawney.

The other day a teacher in a school showed a little girl a picture of a fan, and asked her what it was. The little girl didn't appear to know. What does your mother do to keep cool in hot weather? asked the teacher. "Drink beer!" was the prompt reply.

Cloak of Religion

The Dervish as a rule live in utter squalor. Many of them have no clothes at all from the day of their birth until their death. They smear their bodies in mud made from wood ashes, and twist their matted hair into a sort of turban. Some of them travel, not by camel or by foot, but by turning handsprings, which they will keep up for hours at a time, and many are known to have travelled hundreds of miles in this remarkable fashion. Whether they are really religious, or merely assume the cloak of religion to impose upon the devout Mohammedans upon whom they live in times of peace, is more or less a mystery. The fact that they do not work, and that hundreds of them make their living by the sale of noxious drugs, does not bear out the theory of a devout if mistaken fanaticism. Whatever may be their character, they are ever ready to seize the opportunity of robbing and killing a Christian. In times of peace they have to work more steathily, but when war breaks out or the country is not properly protected their crimes become more glaring.

Dentists in Hades

An evangelist was exhorting his hearers to flee from the wrath to come. "I warn you," he thundered, "that there will be weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth!"

At this moment an old woman in the gallery stood up. "Sir," she shouted, "I have no teeth."

"Madam," returned the evangelist severely "they will be provided."

Deadliest Game Alive

Sandy was having his first taste of life in the African forests. Borrowing a gun, he set off one day in search of game. A little later his companions spied in the distance Sandy running at full speed for home, with a huge lion behind him, gaining at every step.

Quick quick, Jock!" he cried, "open the door. I'm bringing him home alive."

To achieve success in any business undertaking, you must have certain essential elements present. One is opportunity, but opportunity does not always mean success. Another thing you must have is ability and integrity, but ability and integrity, with opportunity, mean nothing unless you also have financial power. And when you have opportunity, and ability, and integrity, and character, and money, why, then your problem is a simple one and success is assured. —W. E. Robertson.

Too Mean to Hang

No one at Golden Flats suspected Jim Trueman of being an over-particular man and willing to upset the routine of things until he killed Abner Parks and had been sentenced to be hanged. He probably didn't mean to kill Parks when he hurled a rock at him, but death resulted, the jury said he was guilty, and Judge Watkins rose and observed:

"Jim, it's a hangin case. You've bin with us a long time, and you've got heaps of friends in camp, and we'll leave this mostly to you. When d'ye want to hang!"

"On a full moon and at midnight." replied Jim, who seemed to have already laid out his programme.

"Shoo! That's three weeks away, and you can't ask us to turn out at midnight and fool around for an hour."

"But I do. And I want seven men to walk ahead of me and sing a sad song as we march. Then I want to be hung in a white shirt."

"How kin we do it, Jim, bein' as thar hant one within four hundred miles of us?"

"Dunno, but this won't be no scrub hangin.' I also want some b'ar's grease for my hair, and I wan to be buried under that tree down whar the Yuba trail cuts in."

"B'ar's grease! How we goin' to get it?" demanded the judge. "And don't you think this crowd is going to lug yer dead body three miles to plant it? Jim, ye hain't playin' us f'ar. Why can't ye take things as they be?

"It's my hangin', ain't it?" asked Jim.

"Of course."

"I'm the deeply injured party I reckon?"

"Yaas, that's so."

"Wall, then, I want things my way. I want the bar'l which will be kicked from under me to be a whiskey bar'l. I ain't goin' to step from no pork barrel into eternity. And I want ye to send back to Illinoy fur my brother-in-lay. He allus said I'd be hung, and I want him yere to see the fun. And I wan't to know how my grave's to be fixed up, and what's going to be said on the head-board."

"Prisoner," said the Judge, after looking him over, "ain't ye playin' this crowd low down?"

"I'm a-playin' my own hand." was the retort.

"This yere case was left to the joory brung ye in guilty, but as Jedge of this court I'm goin' to make a change, Jim Trueman, we won't hang ye."

"But I've rights."

"No use, Jim; ye've got to go. This yere camp o' Golden Flats hangs a man for fun and not for hard work. It does it to obleege, and not out of rights in the case. I thought I knowed ye before, but I didn't. Ye ar' a blamed mean and over partickler kuss and this crowd can be jes as mulish as ye are'. The hangin' is off, and if ye don't leave camp within two hours we" roll ye down hill in a bar'l."

Jim growled, and kicked and quoted law, but the boys were firm, and at sundown Golden Flats knew him no more.

On the Face of It

The editor received this letter from a youth:

"Kindly tell me why a girl always closes her eyes when a fellow kisses her."

The editor replies:

"If you will send us your photograph we may be able to tell you the reason."

It is no compliment when a woman says, 'Oh all men are alike."

The Preacher

Last eve I sought the church and heard a gifted pastor preach the Word. He talked of men whose days were over two thousand years ago or more. He talked of kings whose bones were dust, whose sceptres were reduced to rust so long ago their stories seem like fragments of a summer dream. He said no word of those who strive in this old world, intense, alive, who fight their battles every day, obscurely, in their feeble way. I'd just as soon be in the dark concerning Father Noah's ark; I care not for the tents of Baal, or Joseph's corn, or Joanah's whale; I want to hear my pastor talk about the people on this block, whose lives are full of stings and smarts' whose problems often break their hearts. I'd rather learn some way to cheer some hopeless toiler struggling here, and learn how Pharaoh blew his dough about five thousand years ago. The dust of kings in ancient ground is worth a half a cent a pound; and Ashur's widows' tears were dried before old Julius Caesar died; the things of which my pastor talks are dead as Adam's brindled ox, but all around us there are cries and wringing hands and weeping eyes. He'll have to get his text on straight, and bring his gospel up-to-date. — Walt Mason.

From the States comes the story of how a statue of George Washington, was approached by an interested American.

"I think you will agree with me, sir," said the American, "that he was a great and good man. A lie never passed his lips."

"Weel," said the Scot, "I s'pose he talked through his nose like the rest of ye."

LOWERY'S CLAIM.
During the 87 months that Lowery's Claim was on earth it did business all over the world. It was the most unique, independent and fearless journal ever produced in Canada. Political and theological enemies pursued it with the venom of a rattlesnake until the government shut it out of the mails, and its editor ceasad to publish it partly on account of a lazy liver and partly because it takes a pile of money to run a paper that is outlawed. There are still 20 different editions of this condemned journal in print. Send 10 cents and get one or $2 and get the bunch,

Synopsis of Coal Mining Regulations.

COAL mining rights of the Dominion, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the Northwest Territories and in a portion of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal sub-divisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon: If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10.00 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy Minister of the Interior.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself has said:
'My trade of late is getting bad,
I'll try another ten-inch ad!"

If there be, go mark him well,
For him no bank account shall swell!,
No angels watch the golden stair,
To welcome home the millionaire.

The man who never asks for trade,
By local line, or add displayed,
Cares more for rest than worldly gain,
And patronage but gives him pain.

Tread lightly, friends; let no rude sound
Disturb his solitude profound,
Here let him lie in calm repose,
Unsought except by men he owes.

And when he dies, go plant him deep
That nothing may disturb his sleep,
Where no rude clamor may dispel
That quiet that he loved so well.

And that the world may know its loss
Place on a stone a wreath of moss,
And on a stone above "Here lies
A fossil, who did not advertise."

THE HOME CIRCLE

Pleasant Evening Reveries. A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as they Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

GO TO WORK.

Young man, go to work! There is no time to be idle now. You must carve out your own way if it is ever successfully carved. You must carve out your own way through energy, perseverance and pluck. Labor is honorable and the ignoble are those who will not work. Again we would reiterate. young man, go to work. While ten men watch for chances, one man makes a chance. While ten men wait for something to turn up, one turns something up; so while ten fail, one succeeds ond is called a man of luck, the favorite of fortune. Luck and fortune is the result of honest endeavor, work and toil, and if you would succeed, go to work.

* * *

There is no happiness in life, there is no misery like that growing out of the dispositions which consecrate or desecrate the home. Home should be so truly home that the weary, tempted heart could turn to it anywhere on the dusty highway of life and receive light and strength. What a blessing it is when weary with care and burdened with sorrow, to have a home to which we can go, and there in the midst of friends we love, forget our troubles and dwell in peace and quietness. Home is the chief school of human virtue. Its responsibilities, joys, sorrows, smiles, tears, hopes and solicitudes form the chief interest of human life.

* * *

Sometimes a person's tongue gets them into trouble, watch the tongue; it is your tongue, it belongs to you, and is the only one for which you are responsible. Your neighbor's tongue may need care also, but that is his business: this is yours to see to. Watch your tongue; it needs watching. It is a fire—watch it. It is the helm which guides the vessel. Let the Helmsmen keep wide awake. It can bless or it can curse; it can poison or heal; it can pierce hearts or blight hopes; it can sow discord or separate chief friends. Watch your tongue, no one but you can take care of that tongue. Your neighbors may wish they could bridle it, but they can't do it.

* * *

We avoid these aches and bad memories of the past by striving to make the most of our friends while we have them with us. If we have a friend in whom we have all confidence and trust, why don't we let them know these things by telling them how much we love and appreciate them, and showing by our acts that our words are not vain? Trust your friends, have confidence in them, for friendship abhorreth doubt. Never doubt your friends' word. In a time of trouble never fail to lend a helping hand. Scatter roses aloug the pathways and remove every visible thorn, so that when our friends are with us no more we will have no sad thoughts of unspoken words and duties which we have left undone.

STRENGTH FOR OLD PEOPLE

A Simple Remedy Which Favors Longevity.

You act as though you just wondered how you are going to get through this trying season and do your work.

You may be overworked or have had a bad cold which has left you without strength, ambition or much interest in life; in fact you are all run-down.

Let us tell you that Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, is just the remedy you need to rebuild wasting tissues and replace weakness with strength.

A prominent Boston lawyer says: "My mother, who is 76 years of age, owes her good health to Vinol as since taking it she can walk farther and do more than she has for years. I consider it a wonderful blood making and strength creating tonic."

We have such faith in Vinol that if it does not quickly build you up, restore your strength and make you feel well again, we will return your money. Try Vinol on our guarantee.

About Float.

Float is not a periodical. It is a book containing 86 illustrations all told, and is filled with sketches and stories of western life. It tells how a gambler cashed in after the flush days of Sandon; how it rained in New Denver long after Noah was dead; how a parson took a drink at Bear Lake in early days; how justice was dealt in Kaslo in '93; how the saloon man outprayed the women in Kalamazoo, and graphically depicts the roamings of a western editor among the tenderfeet in the cent belt. It contains the early history of Nelson and a romance of the Silver King mine. In it are printed three western poems, and dozens of articles too numerous to mention. Send for one before it is too late. The price is 25 cents, postpaid to any part of the world. Address all letters to

B. C. MINING NEWS

The mining prosperity of Rossland is thus described in the Vancouver Province:

Rossland mines are in better shape than ever, and the camp is now assured of a long life ahead. Rossland has produced since 1896 ore to the value of about $54.000,000. Of this large production the War Eagle-Centre Star Group, owned by the Consolidated Mining Company, Limited, leads with $26-500,000; the Le Roi owned by the same company, comes next with over $22,500,000; and the production of Le Roi No. 2 has amounted to about $5,000,000. Last year saw the largest production since 1908, the total output of the camp being little short of $3.500,000 made up of 135,300 ounces gold, 105 ounces silver silver and 2.200,000 pounds copper. Present development is giving better results than have been expected, the ore reserves on the War Eagle having been largely increased during the past year, particularly on levels Nos. 13 and 14 where the gold values show an increase in large shoots. On the Le Roi the ore reserves were doubled during the past year. In his preliminary report on the operations of the past year the provincial mineralogist estimates the new development work done on the Centre Star at 10,600 feet, and that done on the Le Roi at over 44,000 feet. Near the Black Bear powerhouse the company has established a concentrating plant for testing ores, this plant including flotation and cyanide processes. A 40 drill compressor this powerhouse has been changed from steam to electric drive.

The encouragaing feature of the development of the Rossland camp is that the ore bodies have been found to improve in size and value with depth. As an instance of this Le Roi No. 2 Limited has developed unusually good ore at a depth of 1500 feet, and on the northern portion of that company's ground, to which little attention has hitherto been paid, encouraging results are attending development. Development work on the Josie totalled 5,010 feet and diamond drilling 15,075 feet. Le Roi No. 2 increased its shipments to Trail smelter for the year to 22,300 tons of ore and concentrates, as compared with 18,257 tons for previous year. The provincial mineralogist reports: "From nearly 40,500 tons of mixed ore that was 500 tons of mill ore. In addition 1,700 tons of ore came from the deep level development. The mill ore yielded 1,600 tons of concentrate."

The value of crude ore from the Le Roi No. 2 shipped to Trail smelter ran 0.643 ounces of gold, 1.19 ounces of silver, and 1.94 per cent copper per ton. The concentrates carried 0.81 ounces of gold, and 181 pounds copper per ton. Ore is mined from all levels from 200 feet to 900 feet inclusive and on 1100 feet and 1500 feet levels, the last corresponding in depth with the 1650 feet level of the Le Roi adjoining, and the 1100 feet level corresponding with No. 9 of the War Eagle.

Other properties operated at Rossland were the Giant-California, which shipped 162 tons; Nickel Plate shipping 96 tons, and the Phoenix, shipping 23 tons. In the South Belt the Richmond Consolidated erected mine buildings, constructed head frame over Lily May shaft; installed 16-drill compressor and steam hoist and continued in proving up ore on the 200-foot level of the Lily May.

At Paulson in Rossland mining division, the Inland Empire kept its mill running.

Ten carloads of high-grade silver-lead ore were shipped the past week from the Silver Standard mine on Glen mountain, seven miles from New Hazelton. This makes a total of twenty-four carloads, or seven hundred and twenty-one tons. The last loads were brought down from the mine on Monday afternoon last and the last cars were shipped from this point on Wednesday's freight,

Last year the Silver Standard shipped just a little over three hundred tons and it is safe to predict that this year's shipment, while more than double in size, will also be much more valuable, as greater pains were taken in sorting.

Besides the seven hundred tons shipped the company has on the dumps in the neighborhood of two thousand tons of concentrating ore that will return an immense amount of money after treatment. Just when the concentrator will be installed has not yet been decided.

Speaking to D. McLeod, general manager for the company, the Herald was informed that there will be another carload or two shipped out this winter providing the sleighing remains. At the present time the mine force is cleaning out the bunkers and sacking up what ore is left, preparatory to resuming development work to be undertaken first. It is most likely that the shaft on the No. 3 vein will be continued to another level. Other work will be announced later.—Hazelton Herald.

Ouch!

Mary had a little shoe,
It certainly looked swell;
But when she went out for a walk
Her corns would give her—Hail Columbia.

A Good Performance.

Owing to many other attractions there was not a large attendance at the Star Theatre last Friday night when the Lyric Amateur Dramatic society of Grand Forks presented in a very finished manner "What Happened to Jones." Those who were present, however, were very appreciative and the members of the society are entitled to great credit for the excellent presentation of this comedy. The hearty applause and roars of laughter which greeted each comical situation did in a measure compensate this talented company for their trouble in giving Greenwood a really first class show.

Jones was the man who made the best of opportunities and the character was taken to a nicety by E. Harrison. It was a series of mirth provoking situations cleverly taken. Ebenezer Goodly, a professor of anatomy, with a latent streak of a love of sport which leads to his undoing and a series of amusing complications, was impersonated by William Walker in a manner which displayed rare histrionic ability, while the original Bishop of Ballarat, who was the innocent victim of a heap of trouble, E. C. Coy was especially good. Mrs. Goodly Ebenezer's wife, was played by Miss E. Best in excellent style, giving a faithful interpretation of the wife who nearly drives her husband distracted with mistaken kindness. Mrs. C. M. Keron as Alvina Starlight, portrayed the romantic spinster of uncertain age in a way that brought forth much laughter from the audience. Helma a Swedish girl, gave Mrs. F. J. Lake an excellent opportunity to show what could be done with a small part in good hands. Cissy, Ebenezer's ward, in charge of Miss Marjorie Mann, gave a part that suited her well. Miss J. Barlee and Miss M. Frost as Ebenezer's two daughters, filled their respective parts in a manner that allows of no criticism. G. C. Broad, as Richard Heatherly, engaged to Marjorie took the part in capital style. Mr. Fray, as a policeman; H. F. Broad, an inmate of a sanitarium, and F. J. Lake, as head of a sanitarium, all said their lines in good dramatic taste.

We hope when the Grand Forks Lyric Amateur Dramatic society has another production they will come to Greenwood when under more favorable circumstances they will be welcomed with a bumper house.

One Never Can Tell

There were seven men, there were seven minds,
There were seven humans of seven kinds;
And none who had known in early days
These men who travelled their seven ways
Would have thought that the crook would a parson be
Or the knave would take up humanity.
But you never can tell—and the moral is here:]
Don't accept things always as they appear,
For under the gristle and skin and bone
Is something that works in a way of its own—
An you never know the saint from the knave
This side of the age of the common grave.

—Baltimore Sun.

Grand Forks Relinquishes Cups to Trail

AS RECEIVED OVER THE PHONE

We would rather have seen the Nelson News and the McBride cups remain in the Boundary and thus prove to the world that the very best of hockey is played in this part of the country, but when the Boundary champions let them go by default to Trail, then we think, that Grand Forks is again showing that poor sportsmanship which they have exhibited all winter. Not only does this give Grand Forks another black eye but the whole Boundary must perforce bear part of the shame in not defending the title. Trail defeated Grand Forks at the latter's rink on Friday last by a score of 3-2. Grand Forks promised to play home and home games if ice permitted, but after getting the gate receipts on Friday night, they absolutely refused to play in Trail. It is regrettable and deplorable that the Grand Forks officials could not show a better brand of sportsmanship. It is a pity that so noble a game and one that calls for the exercise of the finest instincts of human nature should be subjected to the selfish squabbles of officials. Trail has proved themselves to be good sports and are entitled to the Interior Championship. Here's to you, Trail, and let us hope you will meet Greenwood next year.

Emblems of Boundary Championship let go out of Boundary country by default.

Grand Forks lost to Trail and then were not sports enough to go through with the series of games agreed upon.

Grand Forks groused and whined at every turn all winter. They had dates for exhibitions and league games all their own way.

They got one game from Greenwood through having their own referee. It was a steal.

They started to protest the next one before it was finished, but they won, so this squeal did not get out of the bag.

They misrepresented the returns of games to at least one of their local papers.

After winning the cups from Phoenix and overflowing with the wine of good fellowship they refused to play Trail in Phoenix although Phoenix had good ice.

Trail met Grand Forks on their own water pool and won. Grand Forks had the gate receipts and then refused to go to Trail.

The cups are gone from the Boundary but worst of all the honor of Grand Forks is in doubt.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion

It Is the Best Remedy

When you are run-down, no matter what the cause.

It doesn't merely stimulate you and make you feel good for a few hours, but takes hold of the weakness, and builds you up to a healthy, normal condition.

It is a real nerve-food tonic, a real builder of healthy nerves, rich blood, strong muscles, good digestion.

It contains the Hypophosphites, to tone the nerves and give energy, and pure Olive Oil, to nourish the nerves, the blood, the entire system, and give vitality, strength and health.

It is pleasant to take, the greasy flavor of the Olive Oil having been removed.

For you who are tired out, nervous, run-down, debilitated, weak, emaciated—for convalescents—for old people—for puny children—we recommend Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion as the best medicine we know of to make and keep you well and strong.
