Around Home

T. A. Garland is visiting his son in Kaslo. Operations were resumed at the Argo tunnel last week. The public schools in Grand Forks employ ten teachers. No live stock will be shown at the Greenwood Fair this year.

An earthquake was felt in Greenwood at 6:10 a. m., August 18.

The Granby Co. has bonded the Gloucester group in Franklin camp. The Skylark mine yesterday began shipping ore to the Grand Forks smelter.

Monday was a sad day for the children. The schools re-opened upon that date.

Jack Manning moved his family this week, from Phoenix to the Mother Lode.

The crops in this district are the best ever known in the history of the country.

At his ranch near Fish Lake, Ed Rippetoe has had several bouts with the hay fever.

The deer hunting season opens on September first, and the grouse season on the 15th.

Service in the Presbyterian church, Sunday, August 29, at 11 a. m. All welcome.

Frank Wilms is walking around a barber chair, at the Pacific Hotel in Columbia.

Rev. J. H. Hobbins will preach in the Methodist church, Sunday evening next, at 7:30 o'clock.

George Lord killed a rattlesnake on Saturday, near Rock Creek, that had seven rattles.

There are 42 men in the company of Sharpshooters at Grand Forks. More recruits are needed.

Mining is growing active around Chesaw, and the Gold Ax is shipping to Grand Forks.

Representatives of the B. C. Copper C., recently inspected the Mountain Lion mine at Republic.

The big fill that the C.P.R. has been making at Porcupine creek, will be finished next month.

Last week Oscar Lachmund inspected the Gold Ax and Western Star on Copper mountain, near Chesaw.

Mrs. O. R. Matthews arrived safely in England, although she was in poor health during the entire voyage.

George White has taken a lease and bond upon the Elkhorn mine. Operations will begin early next month.

The farmers around Curlew are expecting the U. S. government to furnish them irrigation from Curlew lake.

Hugh Megraw is reported to have made a big gold strike, while prospecting in the territory tributary to Pas, Manitoba.

The merchants at Midway and Rock Creek are doing a big business, with the camps and villages along the Kettle Valley railway.

Until the day of the Fair, the Greenwood Agricultural Association will hold a meeting, every Wednesday evening in the Rink.

Mrs. Bjorn, of Ingham Mountain died last week aged 40 years. She left a husband and seven children to mourn her loss. The funeral took place at Midway.

A. D. McLennan, of Rock Creek went to Revelstoke last week, to attend the funeral of his nephew, John McLennan, who was killed in a railway accident near Golden.

Jim Warburton has the makings of a fine ranch, about 12 miles up Nicholson creek, and has a fine crop of ducks upon it this year. Jim wants to trade his dog for an automobile so that he can slip over to Rock Creek every day and get the war news.

The bartenders in Vernon are not allowed to sell soldiers a drink after nine p. m., and some of the Tommies resort to many schemes after that hour in order to capture the booze. Bart Ingham stepped up to a bar in Vernon along about 9:30 the other evening and asked for a Carmel cocktail. The bartender would not serve him, claiming that Bart was a soldier in disguise. Sandy McAulay eventually identified Bart and saved his life. In future Bart will stay away from soldier towns, or pack his own bottle and sideboard.

A Soldier's Grave

The following extracts are from a letter lately received from an officer at the front:

I buried one of my poor boys last week: there was no parson handy, and as I lacked a Prayer-book I read the chapter in Corinthians (you know, "For this corruptible," &c.) and the doctor said a prayer. Then we lowered him just in his uniform and overcoat, with a waterproof sheet around him. R.I.P. He was only a little Bermondsey guttersnipe, but he gave all he had, and God knows.

Oh, I wish I could come back to England and tell the men who are doing nothing of the tragedy of this land; of the stolid endurance of the peasantry round here, the old men and women, the young wives and little children, the ruined homes, the thousands of Englishmen of all ranks and sorts and ages who daily and nightly go up to the trenches not knowing if they will ever come down the road again. And then I should like to tell them of that little grave, marked by a wooden cross out from a biscuit-box by a comrade (who badly wanted that bit of wood to make a fire to boil some water for his tea), bearing simply his name and number, regiment, and the letters R.I.P. in indelible pencil; and a tin wreath from the ruined churchyard a stone's throw away.

In perhaps three weeks his name will appear in a list of casualties, which will not be read by the man in the street, and yet, although he may not have been a good man—he may rarely have spoken without an obscenity (meaning nothing to him), although perhaps he was a poor soldier, yet—there are hearts very sore for him in some tenement building in Tooley-street, in some slum of Tabard-street.

That man was doing two men's work, his own and that of the man who stayed at home, the latter perhaps a model citizen in every other way, and yet, when these two men go up to the final adjustment of accounts I would rather not be the man who stayed at home.

We are so sick here of our reading—the tramway strike, the cry for more money, the lack of ammunition, the short hours on Army work—we who in our little way know that it is only more work, more men, millions of shells, the last ounce that the nation can give in everything wanted, that is going to break through the defences of these Hell-begotten Germans. I am writing this within a few yards of them, and do you know that the bit of ground we are holding now has changed hands nine times since the beginning of the war. It is surprising how the men have changed towards the Germans. At first they spoke almost kindly of them, now they simply hate them with a terrific and devilish hatred.

Midway Concert

The garden party last Thursday evening at Mrs. Lundy's residence in Midway, was a decided success, and the sum of $25 was cleared for Grandma Sutton. The program was furnished by Messrs. Bush, Stuart Crowell, and Mesdames Lundy, and Peck, ably assisted by the following charming young ladies: May McMynn, Madge Brown, Alice Peck, Helena Hilcher, Alice Kerr, Lottie Borders, and Glendine Davison.

Red Cross Society

The Boundary Women's Institute wish to thank all those who so kindly donated flowers to be sold for the Red Cross society. $21.55 was made in Phoenix and $12.75 in Greenwood, as a result of the sale. They also wish to acknowledge $9.00 received from Mrs. Cruse, Boundary Falls, and old linen from Mrs. Morris, Boundary Falls.

Even if a woman has naturally curly hair she can always find something else to worry about, everywhere.

Western Float

Canada will not issue any three cent stamps.

Dr. Williams has moved from Merritt to Rossland.

Meal ticket prize fights have been prohibited in Merritt.

Last term 13 children attended the school in Ferguson.

A big find of copper ore at Jones' lake is reported at Hope.

The Foster hotel building at Soda Creek is 50 years old.

The city ferries of North Vancouver are losing $50 a day.

Quite a number of bedbugs have recently settled in Rossland.

The Granby is looking for copper properties around Hazelton.

The traders at Peace River Crossing are charging hold up prices.

The market is growing in England for B. C. frozen salmon and halibut.

A cabbage that weighed 25 pounds was recently shipped from Creston to Fernie.

The Tacoma smelter will build nine more furnaces, and make other improvements.

Considerable placer and hydraulic gold is being taken out of the Big Bend this summer.

There is evidence of an approaching mining boom around Windermere in East Kootenay.

Cal. Walker, of Calgary has staked several zinc claims on Ice river in East Kootenay.

At the Old Dominion mine near Colville silver ore has been struck that is worth $400 to the ton.

Beginning in New York on September 20, Sarah Bernhardt will make another American tour.

Henri Bernbe died in Rossland last month aged 68. He was one of the oldest prospectors in the west.

George Chataway is in a fair way to make some money out of his copper claims in the Highland Valley.

J. L. Stamford should make good his past promises, before he attempts to do any more mining around Nelson.

This year the acreage devoted to growing vegetables in B.C. was 17,000. All but 2,000 acres were devoted to growing spuds.

Three diamond drills are working at Copper Mountain near Princeton, and more than 6,000,000 tons of ore are in sight.

Real estate is still of some value in Alberta towns. This summer a real estate agent at MacLeod had tomatoes grown in his garden.

Copper ore is being shipped from Highland Valley to the Tacoma smelter. The freight rates must be cheaper than to Greenwood.

J. H. Johnson is building an hotel at Prince George that will contain 53 rooms. At one time he built an hotel in Spokane that contained 180 rooms.

Vosberg & Carlson have a contract to build 32 bridges on the Western end of the Kettle Valley railway. They have already built 26 of the number.

Last month Tom Rookes was very ill in Edmonton from hemorrhage of the brain. At one time he was an hotel manager in Fernie and Cranbrook.

In June, 1914, the Lake Louise hotel served 6,000 meals. In June this year it served 16,000 meals, an indication that the tourists are beginning to discover B.C.

A large eagle was recently seen flying over Three Forks. In the Okanagan such birds are taken for flying machines by people whose nerves are shaky with tea and booze.

A plant to utilize the by-products of coal will be built in Fernie. It is estimated that every year in B. C. $15,000,000 worth of coal by-products are wasted. How about the by-products of Trail, Grand Forks and Greenwood smelters.

In Prince George recently Pete Wilson's little daughter, Janet, was nearly burned to death. The child is now slowly recovering. Her brother Jack had skin removed from his arm to be grafted on to the burns of his little sister.

H. G. Knight, formerly a printer in Molson, Nelson, Revelstoke and elsewhere is now running a paper in Three Hills, Alberta. He admits that since he has gone to Three Hills he has done nothing bad, except getting drunk occasionally and trying to collect some accounts. Still somebody in that burg wants to run him out of town. This is nothing strange. Animals of that kind can be found everywhere.

Rock Creek Mines

Some Chinks are working the old bar claim of Tom Rabys. One of them recently found a $21 nugget.

Above White's Bar, A. B. Bennett and his partner are ground sluicing, and making about $7 each a day.

Gold is still being shipped from Rock Creek. From half a mile to further up the creek 15 Chinamen are placering for the yellow stuff.

Jimmy Copland is still working his claim on the south fork, and expects to make a clean up this season. He first worked on Rock Creek in 1860.

Camp McKinney

Charles Austinberg of Okanagan, Wash., is working 4,000 tons of tailings from the Cariboo mill.

The mills and buildings in this old camp have been robbed of many articles during recent years.

Wm. Younken, Joe Frank, Charles Hamilton and two others are working a group of claims below the Old England, but have not yet reached bedrock.

Judge Grevy, of Altoona, Pa., spent some time in the camp this summer, and his son will remain until November assaying and examining properties. If his observations are satisfactory Altoona men are ready to expend $50,000 in the camp. They already own the Gold Standard, Iowa, Gold Top, Last Chance and Gold Sea claims, and may acquire such claims as the Victoria, Snowden, Dayton, Old England and others.

Peace River

At the junction of the Parsnip and the Findlay rivers, which form the Peace, Mount Selwin, a huge mountain of low-grade free-milling ore is now being systematically prospected by the agents of claim holders with most satisfactory results. There are several groups of claims on this mountain, which appears to carry distributed values throughout the entire formation of its vast bulk. An engineer named Fetherstonough is on the mountain this summer with an assay outfit, and has assayed the result of test holes drilled all over its surface by his assistants. The engineer states that the Mount Selwin properties promise to overshadow such mines as the Granby property or the famous Tredwell property off Alaska. The rock carried free-milling gold and silver values. Several groups of claims have already been surveyed on the mountain, and Mr. Burden made the survey of one of these on his recent trip.—Prince George Post.

At Perry Creek

Capt. E. E. Rogers, the general manager of the Cranbrook Homestake Co., was in town on Tuesday the guest of General Manager Wilson. Capt. Rogers, who has big mining interests in Idaho, has lately taken over the old place formerly operated by the Perry Creek Hydraulic Co. Dr. S. J. Schofield, who has had charge of the government geological work in that district for the past five or six years, has recently issued the following statement about the property:

The gold quartz vein occurs in the most part on Perry Creek. A great many claims were located on the north side of Perry Creek in 1896 by prospectors in search of the source of the placer gold which had been worked with much success in the same creek. The deposits occur in true fissure veins. Their width averages about 8 feet, but some are as wide as 20 feet. They can be traced for long distances along their strike. The mineralogy is very simple and consists of free gold, pyrite and quartz. From the width of the veins and their great extension along the strike, it is almost certain that they persist in depth, although workings have as yet proven to point.—Fernie Free Press.

THOSE DEAR MULES

EVERY rural editor has troubles. In that beautiful dimple of America, New Denver, the horses walk on the sidewalk in front of the print shop at night, and disturb the editor's dreams. He is training a huge dog to herd the equines and in time the canine will have command of the situation. We sympathize with Jim, for we know how it feels to be coddled in the arms of Morpheus, gently dreaming of that ethereal land where the delinquent subscriber never butts in, only to be awakened abruptly by the noisy antics of embryonic cavalry. Years ago when the down of the first boom was still sticking to Kaslo we slumbered in a building that was surrounded by George Hughes' mules. They had the ears of the camp and were natural kickers. Like other animals in the town at that time they would stay up all night. They loved the smell of printer's ink, and every night they would bunch around the office and sniff it, much the same as Venus would the attar of roses, every now and again kicking the sides of the building in a sort of fiendish mule-like glee. Eventually they jarred all the plaster and brickwork from the walls, and chewed the external coating of our stately edifice, until it looked like a church in Rheims. Still we grew to love the mules in their playful antics and never threw even a curse word at them, so when John Daly lead them away up to the snowy hills of Sandon our soul was tinged with sadness, and we almost dropped a tear in their tracks as their beautiful forms faded away in the distance of the Three Forks trail. We were alone some for those mules for many a long night, but they never returned. So be kind to the horses, Jim, for the night will come when they will no longer be with you.

In this submarine age, how inglorious it must be to die in a swimming hole. Most of people eat from ten to twenty times too much salt. Too much salt makes even "fresh" people look aged. BUSINESS is just as good with us as it was 21 years ago. That was the year in which the people of Kootenay sent a tracer after Noah. AN editor in Alberta recently refused to print a poem from Flat Creek, because the subject was too old. Must have been something about the "Beautiful Snow," or the man who does not advertise. THE trench fighting in the present unpleasant conditions in Flanders is something like redskin warfare in the early days of America. If all the fighting was done in the open the blush in the face of Mars would sooner end. WAR does not cause all the casualties. As usual, this year, the reckless auto driver, the fool in the boat, and the swimming hole have done their bit in the way of cutting heart strings, and causing the shadow of sorrow to blanket many a happy home. Helps the French Writing from Paris Carolyn Wilson says: "But during this last two weeks the real fighters have been streaming into Paris. The men have a four days' leave of absence. They are the men who have been through all the campaign without a scratch, the soldiers and officers that the war has hardened and strengthened until they seem invulnerable to you as you see them march with the free, easy gait down the boulevards, and you see the fine, healthy glow that open air life has put in their faces.

Most of these men have never slept in a room with window open in their lives. They never traveled in a train in which there was two windows open at the same time. They all wore cotton in their ears in the winter, and generally coddled themselves.

Now they stifle in the shut up Paris buildings, and if one wishes to be really comfortable on a railroad journey he must choose a compartment with only soldiers in it, for they are sure to open everything up wide.

All this is going to be good for the next generation of Frenchmen: this love of open air will lead to outdoor sports and camping and mountain life, which is so very common at home and so good for young boys.

Already the French have followed the English in their love of sports and all over France you find the school children learning to play games of which they had only dimly heard the names.

A man who used to live here 20 years ago said that it was very noticeable to see the actual increase in stature that compulsory military service had brought about. He said that uniformly the men were two to three inches taller and about 40 pounds heavier.

He claims that without compulsory service the race degenerated physically as well as morally, and elaborating on his theory says that the citizens of the United States are not as large men as they used to be and that they are moral cowards."

Hope Mining News

Oscar Nelson is in receipt of the following assay from samples taken from ore of one of the claims at 23-mile: Gold, 0.4; silver, 32.8 oz; copper, 11.5 per cent.

Jack Brady was in town the other day and showed some rough nuggets taken from the placer ground which is being operated by himself and W. L. Cherry up the Coquihalla. The partners are making an endeavour to get down to bedrock where they expect to strike rich deposits of gold.

W. M. Ogden, a mining expert, along with Fred Bears as guide, made a trip to Summit camp from Hope last Monday to inspect a group of five claims in which Robert Stevenson is interested. The examiner declared himself fully satisfied with what he had seen and, providing that assay reports are favorable, work will be commenced at an early date. This is a silver-lead proposition, and it is reported that on one of the showings there is a vein three feet in width of massive galena.

A number of prospectors who have staked on the copper lead beyond Jones' Lake were in Hope this week for fresh supplies. All have the same story to tell regarding the huge body of ore already reported in these columns and copied by many of the leading papers in the province. The lead is claimed to be 50 feet in width and has been followed over the left peak of Cheam Mountain and down on the opposite side. It is stated that some sixteen years ago a party of prospectors, hearing of a big body of ore in the district of this discovery, set out with Indian guides but failed to reach the desired altitude on account of deep snow. For prospecting at high altitudes this season has been exceptionally favourable, owing to the very light snowfall. Local mining men who have seen samples taken from the property declare that there are indications of tin. There is said to be many tons of rich looking "float" nearer the mountain. The examination of the slide led to the discovery of the ore in place.—Hope Review.

Farm Laborers

Excursion rates to Saskatchewan. The Canadian Pacific Railway have named a special rate of one cent per mile from Nelson, Greenwood, Midway and Grand Forks for Harvest Laborers either male or female. Rate for the return journey to starting point is one and one half cents per mile. Tickets good going daily till September 4th returning till November 30th. Full details from J. S. Carter, D. P. A., C. P. Ry., Nelson, B. C.

Ainsworth-Slocan Mines

The Florence mine at Ainsworth expects to have a zinc output of about 200 tons per month as soon as milling of Florence ore with the Highland mill is commenced.

Probably the only woman prospector and miner in the province is Mrs. A. E. Jowett, of Trout Lake. Mrs. Jowett has lately been out in the hills back of Ferguson on her annual prospecting and mining expedition, being interested in claims in that vicinity.

W. E. Zwicky was a Sandon visitor on Monday, going up to see how things are getting on at the Payne. The raise being driven to connect up the long tunnel with No. 8 level he states is up 550 feet, and denies that work has been discontinued on the raise as rumored. No trouble is being experienced now from water in the raise, he states, the ground being quite dry. It is anticipated that unless the vein has flattened out to a certain amount that it will be encountered by the raise when another hundred feet has been proceeded with.

According to the street corner gossip, but which is not always reliable, the value per car of ore being taken out at the Mountain Con is in the neighborhood of $12,000. The Con was considered by many as having petered out in 1903, just after McLeod & Thompson had made a clean-up out of this Carpenter creek property that aggregated in the neighborhood of $45,000, all made in operations extending over a couple of seasons. Development done since then has, however, resulted in the opening up of a new ore body and it appears as if Bill Bennett will make a clean-up as large as that made by the former owners.—Kaslo Kootenaiian.

"What animal," asked the teacher, "is satisfied with the least nourishment?" Looking over the raised hands, she said: "Well, Harry, you may answer."

"Please ma'am, the moth. It eats nothing but holes."

Synopsis of Coal Mining Regulations.

COAL, mining rights of the Dominion in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the Northwest Territories and in a portion of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,500 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the marketable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of marketable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10.00 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.
