In Memoriam

Died at the hospital in Oroville, Wash., on Wednesday, Sept. 16th, Miss Katholeen Rosa Horridge at the early age of 14 years. She was the daughter of Mrs. John Walker of Rock Creek. That Katholeen is dead sounds very strange in the ears of her many friends yet they repeat it o'er and o'er and think: A short time ago she was young, fresh and full of life. Did we say that she was dead? Yes, but we change that and say that she is at rest. She will be missed. How can we forget—forget! Does the sun forget to keep its appointed time, or the stars to shine in their bright orbs? Nay, neither does image stamped upon our hearts by those we love perish or decay. No, her friends cannot forget Katholeen. She was a noble, true girl and we delight to pay tribute to her memory. She lived a consecrated Christian life and died a happy and triumphant death. She was happy in her teens, the time when youth stands waiting before the half-open door that leads to a fairer and more promising land of dreams and flowers. As she would have entered a messenger came up and said: Come this way. It is best.

A chair at the table is vacant, a place in the school is left to be filled. We extend our sympathy and bow humbly to the will of God. Deceased young girl had scarlet fever some time ago. which left her heart weak which was the cause of her demise and, as stated above, she fell asleep on Wednesday, Sept. 16 and on Friday, Sept. 18, was buried at Midway. She is gone but not forgotten.

Now that the long winter evenings are drawing near the young people are wondering what they are going to do with themselves this winter to keep from becoming dormant. There are no attractions to keep the young men off the streets. Why not get together boys and form a club, hold a fornightly dance and every other week, perhaps meet at some home and hove a literary or musical evening. This would be something to do, something to talk about, and something to look forward to. The latter project is, we believe, the duty of the older people to take in hand. and thus show that they have some interest in the young people of our community. But in the meantime call a meeting, forget the cliques and petty jealousies and let us all live as one large family this winter. Already many have been favorably talking about this scheme, but action not words, is what is required.

If you are bothered with headaches, squint or cross-eye, or if the glasses you now wear are unsatisfactory, consult with Dr. Hirschberg, Specialist in the Imperial Hotel, Greenwood, Wednesday, Oct. 7th. Hours, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Waiter! This fowl is like rubber. Yes, sir. That's why we call it spring chicken.

Patriotic Concert.

The honor of being first is always coveted, in peace and war. The first man to invent wireless or airships goes down in history. And the first man to answer his country's call is deserving of special mention in the hall of fame, and so all honor and praise is due the Rebeceas for being the first to give a patriotic concert, which was held in the Oddfellows hall on Monday night. The programme was good, the crowd large and enthusiastic and the financial returns highly satisfactory. Much favorable comment was expressed regarding the very effective and appropriate decorations of the hall. The walls were neatly draped with bunting, the many festoons being in the colors of the various nations co-operating with Britain, while the Union Jack, the Tri-color of France and the Canadian Ensign were draped together, which with "Our Empire" entwined in maple leaves, and hanging above the Belgian and Russian flag with the British between and the sympathetic American flag in the background signifying "watchful waiting" patriotic songs and speeches pleased the eye and ear, and aroused the loyalty of everyone. The program though prepared on short notice merited the warm approval given every number of which was deservedly encored. The address by Dr. J. D. McLean appealed strongly to the assembly, as the speaker outlined the principles for which the British have always stood and for the preservation of which the nation is now involved in war.

Mayor McLaine stated that all should be proud to be residents of Greenwood for he believed that few places had responded so quickly and nobly as Greenwood. He also paid a high tribute to the Rebecca's.

The programme opened with a quartette singing "Rule Britannia" the audience joining in the chorus. Cards were then played till eleven o'clock, Mrs. Greig winning first prize and Mrs. J. D. McLean got low. Thos. Cuddeford got high for the gentlemen and Ward Storer low. A lunch provided by the Rebeccas and Oddfellows wives was then served. Rev. J. H. Hobbins sang with great effect "The Deathless Army." Mr. W. Phillips sang that rousing patriotic song written by F. B. Fenwick and dedicated to the Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, "The Canadian Jack" and for an encore rendered the song "Under the Same Old Flag." Rev. R. D. Porter pleased everybody with his splendid singing of "The Sleeping Camp." God Save the King was heartily sung by the audience. At the close the chairman, Robt. Halcrow announced that the receipts amounted to $60. The hall was cleared and those who wished to stay enjoyed a nice social dance.

The Rebeccas desire to thank all who so ably assisted in the decorations, with the programme and otherwise contributed to make the affair so successful.

Patriotism is a common virtue in this empire of ours and bravery in battle is the chief ingredient in the character of the British soldier. But the ladies of the Empire are also doing a noble work, one that will do much to smash a tyrant and encourage the brave men who are fighting for honor and for the Empire.

One-third of the fools in the country think they can beat a lawyer in expounding the law. One-half think they can beat the doctor in healing the sick. Two thirds think they can put the minister in a hole in preaching the gospel; and all of them think they can beat the editor in running a newspaper.

WAR NOTES

No retreat can last forever. After it is continued to a certain point it ceases to be a retreat, and becomes an emigration. Berlin and Vienna papers please copy.

As far as the layman can understand it, the wings of the German army now closely resemble the Kaiser's moustache.

Austria has proved to be a liability rather than a military asset for Germany.

That is rather a happy idea to give the German prisoners the job of sweeping up the mines laid in the North Sea by their fellow-countrymen.

Every few days when we are forgetting that Servia is also at war she recalls herself to memory by capturing six or seven million Austrians.

Apparently war experts have missed a possible explanation of Germany's retreat from Paris and from the Russian border. Her idea may be to get the Russians and the other Allies so close that they will presently be shooting each other.

We are warned by an evening paper not to say or do anything that will make the resumption of friendly relations with Germany more difficult. Apart from killing any armed Germans in France or Belgium this advice will not pass unheeded.

There is reason to believe that the withdrawal of the French capital to Bordeaux was undertaken as a part of a general plan that had for its object the luring of the German army to a prearranged point where it could be decisively defeated.

Judging from the strong reluctance of the German army to confront their pursuers, we suppose that Ter Tag we have heard so much about is something like the old school game of tag.

An American paper remarks:—"It is not too much to say that had the British failed at any single point the Germans would by this time have invested Paris."

Those who are worrying and wondering as to the duration of the war might take comfort from the thought that all the nations engaged in it are equally anxious to get it over as soon as possible. That is one thing all are agreed upon.

Marie Corelli in her book "The Life Everlasting" says: "War is necessary. Without strife of some sort the world would become like a stagnant pool breeding nothing but weeds and the slimy creatures pertaining to foulness.

A tumultuous noise of the kingdoms of nations gather together, for the Lord mustereth the host of battle. Howl ye, for the day of the Lord is at hand; and they shall be afraid. Pangs and sorrow shall take hold of them. They shall be amazed at one another. And I will punish the world for their evil, and I will cause the arrogance of the proud to cease and will lay low the hautiness of the terrible.—Isaiah 13; 4-12.

Up to date the Germans have set two world's records for speed, one at the advance and the other at retreat.

Those mines in the North Sea are still working.

Now we understand the purpose of the German army wings. They are used for flying.

A few days ago we should have been relieved to hear of a German retreat. Now, oddly enough, we shall be disappointed if it is permitted to continue much longer.

It is very clear that the city now in the Kaiser's mind is not Paris, but Berlin.

The kaiser has succeeded in stirring up trouble in India for himself.

It is said that Austria is about ready to sue for peace. What is the good of suing while the moratorium is in force?
