THE MAGISTRACY OF VICTORIA

An Investigation Refused the Suspended Officer.

SUCCESSORS APPOINTED

H. G. Hall Will Be City and Stipendary Magistrate and Mr. Lampman Will Take the Small-Debt Court.

Victoria, Nov. 22.—Magistrate MacRae, who, some time ago, was suspended by the attorney general for wrongful conviction of the sailor, Liddy, was today formally dismissed. Mr. MacRae requested an impartial investigation into the affair but this has not been granted him, no answer being returned to either of the two letters in which he made and pressed this request.

THE OFFICE DIVIDED.

The vacancy caused by the dismissal of Police Magistrate MacRae has been filled by the appointment of Hezekiah George Hall, barrister, of this city, to the post of city police magistrate and stipendiary magistrate, and the selection of Peter S. Lampman as magistrate to conduct the small debts court. Hitherto the police magistrate has been paid by the city $200 a month, while for his work at the small debts court, he was reimbursed by the fee system, the income from this source being large. The separate salary for the stipendiary magistrate was $500. By the new arrangement Mr. Hall, while discharging the duties of magistrate, is permitted to follow his provincial practise and the salary is reduced from $200 to $100 a month, payable by the city. He also discharges the duties of stipendiary magistrate without any additional emolument and is ex-officio a member of both licensing and police boards. In reference to the small debts court, the fee system of paying the magistrate has been abolished and henceforth, the fees will revert to the provincial treasury and Mr. Lampman will receive a salary of $400 yearly.

Mr. Hall, the new police magistrate, is 40 years of age and was born in Binbrook, Wentworth county, Ontario. He came to this province in 1880 and to the city of Victoria in 1888. Mr. Hall has long taken a lively interest in moral reform, and the appointment to his present position gives lively satisfaction among those moving for a change in that respect.

Mr. Peter Lampman was born in Thorold, Ont., in 1867, and took his degree as bachelor of arts in Trinity University, Toronto, in 1888. He has been secretary of the law society for three years and official reporter since August 1.

THE DANITES.

Successfully Produced by the R. E. French Theatre Co.

Those whom the inclemency of the weather or the fear of a play in darkness kept from the rink last night missed a real treat. The "Danites" was the attraction billed and it was put on the boards in right good style, but the audience was thin, a fact which appeared to produce an allround depressing effect. R. E. French as Sandy, had all the dash of the man the author intended, and went through the varied scenes, whether as the protector of Nancy Williams or Billy Piper, or the Widder's accepted, with the rough and ready grace of a free miner. Miss Blossom Bordman was particularly pathetic as Billy Piper, especially in the scene where her identity is discovered by the widow or school ma'am. Miss French made up well as Captain Tommy, and acted the part to perfection. The parson was done ample justice to by C. A. Smiley while Kinney McLeod and Fred Richards did effective work as the Danites. Wallace Hoper was a typical judge ever loud in the praises of "this glorious climate of California," but Paul Bordman as Wishee Washee, somewhat overdid the part. He, however, provoked considerable mirth by his interpretation of the character. All the characters were very creditably sustained, and a performance so excellent deserved a better house. There were the usual high class specialties between acts, Miss Blossum, Mamie Holden, Josephine Strong and Paul Bordman being the contributors. Tonight "Dad's Girl" will be produced for the benefit of the Nelson Hockey Club, and on Thursday "A Fair Rebel," with matinee.

NEW WESTMINSTER

Being Restored to Her Former Pestige and Beauty.

Rev. J. Irvine, rector of St. Michael's church, Vancouver, who is here in the interests of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, says that the recent fire at New Westminster has created quite a boom in the Royal city. Building operations are very active, and already some very substantial business blocks are being run up on Columbia avenue and in other quarters. The money which the insurance companies paid on policies is being freely expended, and at no distant date the city by the Fraser will have attained her old prominence. Several water front lots have been secured by the Costello company, who are erecting a large fish curing establishment, and there is every prospect of the Brunette sawmill starting afresh. "There is plenty of money in circulation," added Mr. Irvine, "and the prospects for New Westminster are good."

PENNY POSTAGE.

Toronto, Nov. 22.—A special cable to the Globe says that Ceylon has signified her intention of following the imperial penny postage movement.

AN A. P. MISTAKE.

In a telegraphic report of the Marshall assault case which appeared in yesterday morning's Miner, Judge Forin's name was mentioned as the trial judge. This was a mistake as Judge Spinks was the trial judge, the case being heard in Yale.

ANOTHER BANK.

It is rumored that the Bank of Commerce will open a branch at Nelson before the year is out. An agent of that financial institution has paid the metropolis of the Kootenays a couple of visits of late, and reported favorably. This will be the fifth bank doing business in Nelson.

ACCIDENTALLY SMOTHERED.

Dr. Arthur, coroner, was yesterday apprized of the fact that the seven month old infant of G. H. Beardsley, of Goat Creek, had been smothered while sleeping with its parents. The dead body of the infant was brought to town for interment. Having heard all the circumstances of the case, the coroner decided that an inquest was not necessary.

A. O. U. W. ORGANIZER.

Rev. J. Irvine, grand organizer of the Ancient Order of United Workmen is in town on a tour through the Kootenays, his mission being to stir up the lodges to greater activity. The A. O. U. W. is a modern beneficial society, and though but in operation since 1868, now boasts of a membership of 360,000. The sound financial position of the Workmen makes the order a very popular one, and a talk with the reverend gentleman or any of the members cannot fail to leave a favorable impression. The literature of the A. O. U. W. affords interesting reading.

GREAT BRITAIN'S POWER.

Mr. Henry Norman's cable letter to the Times of Sunday put before the people of this country a vivid picture of the tremendous enginery of war which Great Britain is able to marshal for the defence and support of her policies abroad. That invincible sea power is impressive on paper as we know it in naval annals. It is infinitely more impressive when we see it massed, equipped, and despatched to its station. This power is our closest friend among all the nations of the earth. Its interest, particularly its interests in the far east, are interests it has in common with us. A union of influence and effort would afford a sure protection to those interests. They will be far less easily and surely confirmed and proteeted by independent effort. It passes comprehension how President McKinley could have committed this nation to a policy of colonial enterprise in the far east without first coming to a close understanding with the great power whose alliance with us would have been a guarantee of peace, the open door and industrial progress throughout that joint sphere of influence and beyond.—New York Times

THEY MAY RETIRE THE SEALERS

The Value of the Fleet Appraised BY BOTH GOVERNMENTS

The International Conference May Settle The Behring Sea Difficulty By Retiring the Sealers By Purchase.

Washington, Nov. 22.—The Behring sea question was the main topic before the Anglo-American commission today, when it resumed its session after several days recess. For the first time the two sides were prepared to exchange their estimates on the value of the sealing fleet, the purpose being to arrive at some fair valuation and retire the fleet by purchase. The initia steps in this direcion were taken while the commission was at Quebec, since which time Capt. P. T. Taylor, on behalf of the Canadians, and Thayer on behalf of the Americans, have been making the appraisement of the fleet.

fter several weeks at Victoria, where the sealers rendezvous, Messrs. Taylor and Thayer have arrived here, accompanied by Captain Cox, who represents the sealers. The two appraisers made their reports to their respective governments and these reports in turn were exchanged by the commissioners with a view to common a ground of agreement. It is understood that both appraisals are considerably below what was expected and instead of running into millions, they do not exceed over a half million. Under the circumstances strong hopes are expressed by the members of the commission that a sum may be agreed upon for the buying of this industry and the final settlement of this long pending and vexations controversy. It is said, however, that there is still considerable difference between the appraisals of the Canadian and American experts, which will have to be reconciled before an agreement is possible. After the joint meeting of the commission, a special committee, consisting of Lord Herschell and Sir Louis Davies, Senator Fairbanks and Secretary Foster, took up the Behring sea estimates. Besides the written reports of the appraisers, the latter were called in person and examined regarding the sealing fleet.

SCHOOL ACCOMMODATION.

Furniture Ordered That May Not Arrive This Year.

Dr. Arthur, secretary of the board of school trustees, was seen yesterday by a Miner representative as to the lack of accommodation, numerous complaints having been made as to the inconvenience which the children are called upon to endure. The doctor explained that so far back as August last, when Inspector Wilson visited this district, attention was called to the overcrowded state of the school and the want of additional desks, etc. The requirements not having been attended to, a letter was addressed to the educational department in September, reiterating the wants of the school. This communication appears to have been ignored by the department, and again last month another appeal was forwarded by the board of school trustees. A couple of weeks ago this letter was answered, and the trustees were authorized to secure the necessary furniture for the additional class rooms added to the building, a special appropriation of $350 being made for this purpose. The order was placed in the hands of a local firm, and by them sent on to the Office Specialty Co., of Toronto, with a request for prompt attention.

The firm wrote back to say that they could not fill the order till the end of the month, and then they were wired to place it in the hands of some person who could fill it at once. Since then nothing has been heard of the desks, and the consequence is that in Miss O'Reilly's room the children have no school furniture. A few forms serve all purposes, so that writing is out of the question, and the slate work done on the laps of the little ones is unsatisfactory. When the desks will arrive no one appears to have the slightest idea. There are five teachers on the staff at present, and school is running on full time.

MOLLY GIBSON CO.

The Molly Gibson company, on which Colonel Rufus Pope has been at work for some time past, has been incorporated with a capital of $2,000,000 in $1 shares. The registered office of the company is in Victoria. The specific object mentioned in the charter is to secure the Molly Gibson, the Florence, the Florence fraction, the La Plata, the Little fraction, the Aspen, the Nashville, the Charleston, and the Westminster in the Nelson division.

THE GREAT FIGHT WAS A GREAT FAKE

Sharkey Wins Evidently By Pre-arrangement. McVEY SAVES CORBETT

He Jumps Into the Ring to Interefere With the Fighters—Referee Says the Action Was Pre-arranged

New. York, Nov. 22., at the ringside, Lennox Athletic club.—The 20 round fight between James J. Corbett, of California, the ex-champion heavyweight boxer of the world, and Tom Sharkey, of Dundalk, Ireland, who first showed his prowess as a fighter while serving the United States as a blue jacket in the navy, drew an enormous crowd of sporting men to the Lennox Athletic club house tonight.

In fact such a representative gathering of the sporting element from all over the country was never within the city limits at one time before. When the contest was certain to take place without any legal intereference many hundred admirers of the art of self defence were induced to make long journeys in order to be at the ring side when the fight took place. Nearly every city of any prominence in the United States and Canada was represented by parties of at last a dozen and in many instances delegations numbered over a hundred came from the different sporting centers. A week ago when the tickets for seats were first put on sale, the shrewd people who lived quite a long distance from this city either wrote or wired for seats to be reserved and by doing so they saved themselves a lot of trouble on their arrival here. Those who saw far enough ahead to do this were only comparatively few, however, and for the past few days there was a lively scramble to secure good seats. Today not a seat was to be had at the club house after 1 o'clock and those who had not made early provision had to pay exorbitant prices to the wide awake speculators who had snapped up the best seats early in the game. Tickets for seats in the immediate vicinity of the ring brought fabulous prices tonight. The original cost of these paste boards was $20 each, but tonight twice that sum could not purchase one of them and in two instances they brought $100 apiece. The other tickets costing from $5 to $15 brought prices increased two and three fold and the club management did not put any of the $3 admission tickets on sale. The anxious sports who clamored for admission at the entrances gladly paid $5 and in many cases $8 for the privilege of standing up at the extreme ends of the building. The doors of the big building were thrown open shortly after 5 o'clock. At that early hour hundreds of people were waiting patiently in front of the club house on Lexington avenue. As soon as the first comers passed through the turnstiles others took their places on the outside and this continued for over three hours. The crowds were kept in check by a large force of police under the command of Inspector McLaughlin and Captain Brown.

Inside the building all was bustle and excitment, but at 8 o'clock the house was scarcely filled. This was easily accounted for by the fact that as the big event was not scheduled to take place until about 10 o'clock, the holders of coupons for reserved seats were in no hurry to get up town to be cooped up for any unnecessary length of time. The gambling instinct was in evidence as soon as the sports began to gather in the boxes.

The betting on the fight was $100 to $80 in favor of Corbett and big wagers were made. Both men were in splendid condition. Kid McCoy was admitted as a spectator under disguise. He was immediately ejected by two police detectives and he left quietly though under protest. Sharkey weighed this afternoon 175 and Corbett 183 pounds.

WAITING ON THE PRINCIPALS.

10:28 p. m.—The great crowd is notably patient and waiting without complaint for what is expected to be the greatest battle since the Sullivan-Corbett dispute in New Orleans. Corbett arrived at the Club house at 10:10 p. m. with McVey and Considine. Charlie Harvey, official announcer, entered the ring at 10:25 followed by Sharkey. Corbett bowed and smiled to the crowd as he passed through to his dressing room. At 10:30 Sharkey and Corbett were both in the ring and when Referee Kelly entered he shook hands with both men. Sharkey's seconds were Tom O'Rourke, Geo. Dixon and Jack Doherty. Corbett's seconds were Charley White, George Considine and Jack McVey. Sharkey had both his hands bandaged when he came on. Chief Deveny in full uniform took a seat at the side of the stage. "Honest John" Kelly, the referee, mounted the platform and shook hands with both men. Corbett provided his own gloves, which Sharkey pronounced satisfactory. The men discussed as to the rules to be observed, Corbett arguing his own case. The announcer stated the terms of the contest to be 20 rounds, catch weights, for heavy weight championship of the world.

The men stripped at 10:55, both looking well. Corbett wore a belt of the national colors, which he removed before the fight began. Sharkey wore green trunks with a flag for a belt. Corbett wore white trunks. The referee warned them that there must be no hitting in the clinches.

BY ROUNDS.

First Round.—The men fiddled for several seconds and Jim made a left lead for the head. Tom responded with a left and right on the same spot. Corbett led again, Tom responding with a left swing for the head, which landed. Sharkey ripped in left and rights for the body with some effect. He kept forcing Jim into the various corners, punching with right and left on the body, which seemed to be his objective point. Jim feinted and tried to draw his man on. Sharkey was always ready with his left jab and right swing, which invariably landed on the body. Corbett failed to show any of the great cleverness which he has been credited with. The round ended with Sharkey at his man.

Second Round.—Corbett landed with the left lightly. Then there was an exchange with lefts and rights on the head, in which Sharkey showed to advantage. Jim kept trying to push his left mit into Tom's face and the sailor would come right back with a swing on the body. He was inclined to be a trifle wild and was frequently cautioned by O'Rourke, his chief second. Tom put a straight right on Jim's nose, which seemed to bring the blood to that member and then he put in a right hand smash on the jaw which sent Corbett down. He attempted to repeat the dose, but was foiled, as Jim clinched. The round closed with Tom all over his man.

Third Round.—Corbett led with his right for the body, landing, and Sharkey responded in kind. Jim reached the body several times, but Tom came right back with lefts for the head. A right on the body staggered Jim. Sharkey whipped over a tremendous right hand smash on the jaw. The sailor's leads were ineffective, his counters being the blows which cut the figure. Corbett kept jabbing lightly for the head and Sharkey came back at him with a right smasher on the wind.

Sixth Round.—Sharkey rushes and they exchange lefts on the head. Tom lands his right on the ribs and then jabs his left on Corbett's face. He then swings his left to the jaw and pounds his right on Corbett's ribs. Jim lands his right on the stomach. Jim lands twice on the stomach and Tom winces. Jim jabs Sharkey's cheek and Tom puts his left on Corbett's jaw. Jim lands his left on the stomach, while Tom chops his left on Jims shoulder. Jim reached his left on Sharkey's ear and jabs his nose with the left. Tom gets back with a good left on the chin. Corbett ducks a left lead and jabs his left on Tom's mouth. Sharkey plants his right on Jim's ribs as the bell sounds.

Seventh Round.—Sharkey ran across the ring and planted a right and left on the head. Corbett acted on defensive and seemed unable to withstand Sharkey's rushes. The latter whipped in a beautiful hook on the wind and followed it up with a right on the jaw. The sailor kept doing all the work and was always ready to mix up on the slightest provocation. He alternately threw his left and right on the head and body, occasionally changing to left hooks on the wind which were slowly but surely attending to Corbett's case. It was Sharkey's fight so far and the pace was terrific.

Eighth Round.—Sharkey was the first to land a left chop on the neck. They clinched frequently and the referee was kept busy separating them. Tom tried a left chop blow which fell short and Jim jabbed his left hard on the nose. Sharkey sent a right straight to the face which made Jim's head rock, but Jim was ready with a left hook which grazed Sharkey's ear. Both men fouled and clinched repeatedly. Jim hooked his right hard on Tom's jaw, half dazing him. He quickly recuperated and went back at his man, hammer and tongs.

Ninth Round.—Corbett landed with his left, Tom getting right back at the same moment. Clinches were frequent and the men refused to break together. Corbett struck Tom rather low on the belly and Tom appealed to the referee. Corbett shoved Tom from him and said: "Oh, you go away." The men were in the centre of the ring mixing it up in a lively manner. O'Rourke calling to Tom not to mind Corbett's low hitting. Just at this moment, for some unaccountable reason McVey, one of Corkbett's seconds, jumped through the ropes, protesting that Sharkey had done something wrong to

DIED UNATTENDED IN THE LOCK-UP

A Case at Kamloops to Be Investigated. DAN TOOMEY'S SAD END

He Went to Town Very Ill, Could Not Get Admission to the Hospital and Died as Stated.

Victoria, Nov. 22.—An inquiry is to be held by the attorney-general respecting th death at Kamloops last Saturday, of Dan Toomey, a rancher of Denman creek, near Savonas. The story of the case has been laid before the attorney-general by Mr. Deane, member elect for North Yale. Toomey, it is said, arrived at Kamloops very ill on Saturday morning, and took refuge in Costley's livery stable, where he was visited by Dr. Wade, who gave him some medicine to ease the pain. An attempt was made to get him into the hospital, but during the delay caused by the formalities required, the man died unattended in the lockup, to which he had been removed.

AS TO THE GALICIANS.

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—Rev. A. J. Vining, superintendent of Baptist missions in Manitoba, the N. W. T. and B. C., spoke on mission work in the Baptist church yesterday. He said that the progress of the Galician immigrants would surprise Canada and that these people were rapidly acquiring the spirit of the west. He entered a protest against what he described as a union of church and state involved in the large contributions by the Dominion to denominational mission work among the Indians.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 22.—After a hard struggle for legislative and executive approval, and after varying success in the lower courts, the so-called anti-scalpers law has been declared unconstitutional by the court of appeals and is, therefore, inoperative.

HURT IN A RUNAWAY.

Paris, Nov. 22.—Senor Castillo, the Spanish ambassador to France, was seriously injured in a runaway yesterday.

DEATH OF COL. PANET.

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—Colonel Panet, deputy minister of militia and defence, died at 1 o'clock this morning.

ST. ANDREW'S NIGHT.

Dinner to Be Held at the Queen's Hotel in Honor of the Patron Saint.

A meeting of the members of the Nelson St. Andrew's and Caledonian society was held at the Phair hotel last night for the purpose of arranging for the St. Andrew's dinner on Wednesday night, Nov. 30. Those present at the meeting were Messrs. A. L. McKillop, W. W. Howe, J. Burnett, J. R. McLaren, R. S. Kinghorn, J. Bannerman, J. A. Gibson, Rev. R. Frew, G. Kydd, A. Stewart and J. N. McDonald. A bill of fare for the St. Andrew's dinner was submitted by Mrs. Clarke of the Queen's hotel and was on motion adopted. The dinner will therefore be held at the Queen's hotel.

The tickets and the bills of fare for the dinner will be issued in a few days. The committee of the society who have charge of the programme, guarantee an entertaining Scotch "Nicht". On the Sunday night following St. Andrew's day, Dec. 4, the chaplain of the society, Rev. R. Frew, will preach a sermon suitable to the occasion in the Presbyterian church, to which all Scotchmen in the city are invited.

THANKSGIVING.

Tomorrow, Thursday Nov. 24, has been set aside by the Governor-General as a day of thanksgiving to God, for the blessings he has bestowed on this fair land. On the same day the people of the great nation to the south of us will also render thanks for the great benefits they have received from Him who said "seed time and harvest shall not cease." In Canada this has been an extremely prosperous year. From one end of the country to the other there has been general activity. Miners, farmers, merchants, and laboring men have profited as they never did before. There has been an immense yield of grain in the agricultural districts; there has been a general revival in trade; lands foreign in their remoteness if not in their relations, have taken more from us and sent us more in return than for many years past and the good effect has been felt everywhere. The year has also seen a great expansion of the mining industry, placing Canada among the foremost mining countries in the world. And it is in these two lines that Canada will win great eminence—in agriculture and in mining, the only callings that produce something from nothing, the only callings that are deserving of all the protection possible at the hands of the government.

There are few countries in the world where there is so much prosperity, so much comfort, as there is at the present time in Canada; no land of the same population where so many, from the highest to the lowest, own there homes and where the home life is so staid, so peaceful, so happy, and the home with the Anglo-Saxon is the foundation of the state. Through the mountains, over the great plains and by the lakes and rivers of the east, from ocean to ocean it may be said, there is a buoyant, hopeful, confident population, patiently and persistently working out the great destiny of this country under the guidance of Him who holds the world in the hollow of His hand; as virile, as true, as trustworthy a race of men as any country could present. Their land has been productive and the work of their hands has been rewarded. Pestilence and famine, great calamities and persecutions, have troubled other parts of the world and the dismal roar of war is heard around the earth, but they have dwelt in peace, secure under God's providence from the afflictions and misfortunes that beset the nations leading wayward lives.

Canada has every reason to observe this day of special thanksgiving, enfolding as it does the principle that men do not live and prosper of their own wills, but that there is some great directing power that it is eminently proper that we should recognize with praise and gratitude and devoutly render thanks to for guiding us with unseen hands into paths of pleasantness and peace.

ACTION IS NECESSARY.

The people of Nelson are desirous that this city should become a divisional point on the Crow's Nest Pass railway, and the city council and the board of trade will take action with that end in view. As these matters are regulated by distance, the railway company may not be found willing to acquiesce in Nelson's wishes in this respect. Divisional points are placed from one hundred to one hundred and twenty miles apart, that being deemed sufficient run for an engine. Nelson is more than this distance from Cranbrook, which has been decided upon as a divisonal point, and is a much less distance from Kootenay landing. However, the company could stretch a point in favor of Nelson if it wished. Still, to make this departure from rule, it is probable that the company will look for some inducement and what that shall be lies with the board of trade and the city council to say. If an arrangement can be entered into through concessions upon both sides so much the better, but we do not see how the company could be forced to do what Nelson wants done. The Canadian Pacific railway is a very powerful corporation and experience teaches that when one comes into dispute with one stronger force, the very best course to take is to compromise in some way. Nelson should avail itself of all the advantages that can be got out of the Crow's Nest Pass railway, and it can do this only immediately opening negotiations with the company to, if possible, make this the western terminal of that railway and the eastern terminal of the Robson-Penticton line.

SHOULD BE INVESTIGATED.

An investigation should be held into the granting of bail to McGinty, one of the men arrested in connection with the outrageous attempt to forcibly expel Chinese from the Sandon district. It appears that he made application for bail to one official who refused it, but that a second one, a magistrate, to whom application was made, granted an order. McGinty, upon regaining his liberty, immediately disappeared and as there is little likelihood of his return, he thus escapes punishment for his offence, if he be guilty, which he probably is. Bail should not have been given in this case, and why it was given, thus affording opportunity to the accused to escape, should be enquired into.

The Chinese are not wanted here and there would be no regret if they were deported in a body and told never to return. But the law allows them to come here and they purchase their admission at the port of entry. This certificate entitles them to the same protection as any other denizen of the country can claim. Those who undertook to drive them out of the Sandon district were from the Coeur d'Alene country, where men are accustomed to take the law into their own hands, but here they set themselves in defiance to British law, which is a very different matter. Whenever a mob in China assails English or American missionaries or travellers the representative of either country at Peking demands an apology, compensation, and the punishment of the offenders. A man of war drops around to give emphasis to the demand. On the same principle the Chinese government would have good cause to demand reparation from Canadians and Americans for any wrongs perpetrated on the Chinese in this country. But they happen to be weak and such a demand on their part would be laughed at. But the law here is no respecter of persons and whoever offends against it must take the consequences.

THE SHOW IS OVER.

The Emperor William has taken his departure from the domains of the Sultan, and the unhappy subjects of that potentate are now left to reckon up the cost and settle with the tax-collectors. The festivities incidental to the visit of the imperial freak have eaten the people up. The magnificent presents which the Sultan gave his royal friend will be remembered for many a day by the Turks who will have to pay for them. The generosity of the Sultan cannot be doubted, but it is of the same order as that of the philanthropist, who out of compassion, gives his overcoat to some coatless man he meets in the street and then borrows $20 of his nearest acquaintance with which to get another. Whatever the Emperor admired the Sultan gave to him. The piece of land at Jerusalem which was graciously presented to the German, was forcibly taken from the owner, who will not only not receive anything to cover his loss, but may be severely punished for disputing the Sultan's will. This is a way absolute monarchs have. No wonder Europe laughs at the royal pilgrimage. The Sultan is the hobo of continental royalties, and like the common hobo he was extremely liberal with that which he filched from those about him, and the Emperor gravely accepted everything as a tribute to his greatness. And he leaves an impoverished people and deep curses behind him.

One is reminded of his unwelcome visit to Italy some years ago. When King Humbert and Queen Marguerite arranged for the celebration of their silver wedding, they decided that those invited should be confined to their immediate connections of the house of Savoy, because they were poor and could not afford an entertainment consistent with their purse, they were astonished to receive from Berlin an intimation that the Emperor and his suite would attend the proceedings. Their feelings can be imagined. And the emperor went to Rome with forty five persons in his suite and nearly eat and drank poor Humbert out of house and home. In presents and items of entertainment it must have cost the economical king a fine penny, all of which William accepted as his due. But in private when Humbert and his estimable queen came to go through their depleted bank book there must have been comments strong enough to warrant penal servitude for life for lese majeste.

CITY AND VICINITY

Condensed News of the Happenings of the Week In and Around Our Busy City and Kootenay.

Typhoid fever is very prevalent in Nelson at present. Most of the cases come from outside districts.

There were no cases at the police court yesterday, which is very creditable to a city of Nelson's size and importance.

The last of the bodies were removed from the old burial ground to the new cemetery yesterday. Men are now at work clearing up the old grounds.

There is a new town building up at the foot of Moyie lake, about 26 miles from Cranbrook, which is called Moyiell. One of the big buildings under way is an hotel.

About thirty-five of the young people of the Methodist church gathered last night at the meeting of the Epworth League of Christian Endeavor. The meeting was led by Miss Lillie.

D. Clark, of the Clark hotel, Pilot Bay, was in town yesterday. He has heard the rumor as t the opening up of the smelter, but says that there are no visible evidences of furnace smoke as yet.

A prominent contractor of the city yesterday informed a Miner representative that he estimated that there would be close on a million dollars expended next year in new buidings in Nelson.

Thanksgiving day will be observed as a holiday in the city and as all the stores will be closed, patrons of the concret to be held at the Presbyterian church are requested to secure their seats today.

Tomorrow, Thanksgiving day, being a statutory holiday, the business office of The Miner will be closed, and advertisers are requested to hand in their changes of advertisements before 4 o'clock this evening.

Dr. Quinlan returned on Tuesday night from Rossland where he took part in the institution of a Royal Arch Chapter of Free Masonry. There were 12 chapter members and 21 applications for admission were received.

Tonight at the Skating rink the R. E. French company will give a benefit for the Nelson hockey club. Already a large number of tickets have been sold and the benefit promises to be a great success. The play will be "Dad's Girl."

Drs. La Bau and Forin have performed a most successful operation on a case of appendicitis at Miss Crickmay's hospital. The sufferer was Miss Myrtle Hagar, and it is pleasing to know that the young lady is on the high road to recovery.

There is said to be some trouble in securing the services of a gold commissioner for the Nelson division. A reward of $100 per month is offered for the job, but no responsible man seems inclined to take it. In the meantime Mr. W. J. Goepel, is looking after the work of the office.

There will be a special matinee by French's Theatre company tomorrow, Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, when a fine performance may be expected, the management promising one of their strongest plays. The doors will be open at 2 p. m. and the performance will begin at 2:30.

Dr. Forin has built a toboggan slide on the vacant lot opposite his residence, and intends to make it available for all well behaved little ones. The slide is a safe one, and if the privilege be not abused, it ought to add to the sport of the children of the neighborhood and keep them out of danger.

In another column will be seen the programme of the Thanksgiving concert to be held on Thursday evening, Nov. 24. Besides the best local talent of the city Mons. Bernard Walther, the celebrated violinist will take part in the programme. Seats are on sale at the Canada Drug & Book Company's store.

Mr. F. M. Henneburg, architect, Victoria, has been in the city for the past couple of days. Mr. Henneburg is here in connection with the plans for the new building to be erected by the Bank of Montreal next spring at the corner of Ward and Baker streets. The cost of the building will be in the neighborhood of $50,000.

J. H. Sibbeld was in from Cranbrook yesterday, and reports that the timber is on the ground for the building of the round house for which the piles have been driven. Work will be continued during the winter. The railway depot is receiving its finishing touches from the plasterers, and things generally are lively at Cranbrook.

Harry Williams, the anti-Chinese enthusiast who assisted in driving the almond-eyed intruders out of the Slocan country, and who pleaded guilty to the charge, was brought before Judge Forin yesterday and sentenced to a week's imprisonment. His friend McGinty, who also played a prominent part in the undertaking, is still at large, but will probably be gathered in today.

A party of youngsters monopolized the Hall street sidewalk yesterday afternoon, and found it to be an ideal toboggan slide. Starting from the corner of Baker street they enjoyed a splendid slide almost to the water front, and as they glided at lightning speed down the steep incline, unfortunate pedestrians had to clear the way. Hall street is no exception to the rule—venturesome boys with their sleds are encountered on all hands.

PERSONAL.

F. London, Victoria, is at the Queen's.

Chas. Gray and A. Walles, Cranbrook are at the Queen's.

B. Thomas, wife and child of Silverton, are at the Phair.

A. A. Young, Spokane, is at the Hume, as is also John Dower, jr., Toronto.

D. J Beeton, Winnipeg, arrived by last night's train, and is registered at the Phair.

T. E. Ehnerberg, Portland, Ore., representing the Standard Oil Co., is visiting Nelson.

Thos. Tomilson, Silverton, and G. H. Ireland, Toronto, registered at the Phair yesterday.

D. McLeod, Brooklyn, is in town, and reports everything as encouraging in the new town by the lake.

Capt. Fitzstubbs is confined to his bed as a result of the injuries he sustained on Monday by falling on Ward street. He is likely to be on the sick list for several weeks to come.

James Cronin, Moyie City; Leslie Hill, Vancouver; J. McKinnon, Ferguson; Alex Munn, Ferguson, and R. H. Jameson, Victoria, were among the arrivals by last night's delayed train, registering at the Phair.

Mickey Burns has left town—at least he has not been seen in public for some days past, and his more intimate friends say that Michael has shaken the dust of Nelson off his feet and started out for fields and pastures new. Mickey was one of the best known men in town and one of Nelson's oldest settlers.

Mr. "Goldie" Goldstein, the energetic agent of the R. E. French Theatre Co., was confined to his room in the Hume yesterday, from what his friends hope is nothing more than a cold. Miss Mamie Holden, another member of the company, became suddenly ill after last night's performance and was removed to her hotel in a carriage.

Corbett. The moment McVey climbed through the ropes Police Inspector McLuughlin grabbed hold of him, while the corwd frantically yelled, "Foul, Corbett loses." "Look at his second in the ring." Referee Kelly seemed to pay no attention to the matter, but stood looking at the fighters, who continued their aggressive work. McVey tried to pull away from the inspector, while the spectators kept yelling at the referee, who finally separated the fighters and ordered them to their corners. Corbett seemed not to understand why the referee should interfere and protested, but Kelly was obdurate and stopped the bout.

Meanwhile the spectators stood up and yelled that bets should be declared off, as they believed McVey committed the breach of ring rules intentionally. It looked for a while as if a riot would ensue, but as soon as the referee declared Sharkey the winner on a technicality, he announced that all bets were off, stating that McVey's action was undoubtedly prearranged. As soon as this announcement was made the spectators resumed their seats and awaited the departure of the men from the ring.

One of the greatest fights of the century was a disappointment to the vast crowd assembletd to see it. The referee's decision declaring all bets off is taken as an indication that he believes the fight to have been a fake. Sharkey's admirers are greatly pleased.

A SERGEANT'S LOVE.

We met her at the railroad station, ten miles from the fort—a captain and sergeant and his squad—and she made the rest of the journey in an ambulance, seated beside the officer. It may have been known among the officers and their families for weeks that she was coming—a blue eyed, fair haired girl of 18 from the east named Miss Bell—but the first we heard of it was when we went to the depot as an escort. We did not know whether we were to meet man or woman until Captain Johnson came out of the building with her. We could use our eyes and talk to each other, and we were not two minutes in deciding that the new arrival was a "peach" and that we were glad she was going to honor the fort with her presence. The escort was more a matter of form than necessity, although there were rough, rude men on the frontier in those days, and there had been instances where half drunken men had to be severely handled.

Miss Bell was a regular chatterbox and full of natural curiosity, and she'd have had a word with every soldier in the escort but for the captain's admonition. She couldn't understand the wide gulf separating officer from private, but in her awful ignorance a soldier was a soldier, no matter whether he carried a saber or a sword. Being left alone with Sergeant Larkins for a few minutes while the captain sent off a telegram for her, she did not hesitate to chatter away as if she had been formally introduced and had met before, and this action of hers was to have a strange bearing on after events. After a couple of days we noticed a change in Sergeant Larkins. He was a young man of 30, well educated and evidently something above the common, and there were rumors that his father was a wealthy New Yorker and that the son had entered the army because of a quarrel between them. He had been speedily promoted from private to sergeant, and there were those who said that outside influence was the cause of this. However that may have been, the sergeant was prompt in his duties, respectful to his superiors and liked by all the men. I repeat that we saw a change in him, and pretty soon it came to us that he had fallen in love with Miss Bell at first sight. It was the sheerest folly under the circumstances, but these things are generally beyond control. The feeling was likely all on his part, and military discipline would scarcely permit him to use his eyes to see her across the parade ground.

A little ring of us laughed and made merry behind the sergeant's back, but later on it sobered us to realize that he was seriously in earnest. He committed a breach of discipline in placing himself where he could speak to her, and he was sharply reprimanded for neglecting his duties, and by and by half a hundred men got to know that the sergeant had lost his head over Miss Bell. If she had ever even mentioned his name after arriving at the fort, no one had heard of the incident. We came to know that she was of a stylish, wealthy family, and we voted that Sergeant Larkins ought to have his head sandpapered for making a dunce of himself.

Miss Bell had been at the fort about a month when the Sioux on the reservation began to make trouble, and the Indian police reported that a number of them had broken away and were marauding in the foothills. Such stories were always afloat, and no credence was given them until some deed of violence had been committed. It had been planned by half a dozen officers and their wives to hold a picnic at the falls of Buffalo river, and but for the reports from the reservation they would have gone without escort. The colonel favored the picnic, but insisted that an escort go along, and so Sergeant Larkins and the same half dozen of us were again detailed. Without the knowledge of the ladies we were ordered to take 50 rounds of cartridges per man, and all the officers were armed with revolvers. It was 12 miles to the falls, and the picnickers were loaded into two ambulances. There were five officers, seven ladies and three children, and the escort was ordered to keep them in sight. While we were nominally under command of Sergeant Larkins, Captain Williams would have charge in case of any trouble arising. We gave the ambulance half a mile the start, and then trotted after, and nothing worthy of note happened on the march out. To reach the falls one had to enter a gorge from a small valley and proceed up a narrow and rocky path on foot for half a mile. The ambulance and our horses were left in this valley, and after two of the escorts had carried up the baskets of provisions they returned to us and we prepared for a comfortable day.

From the first Sergeant Larkins sat apart from us and seemed moody and taciturn. There was no question but what jealousy was at work, and he hadn't the strength of mind to throw it off and realize the situation. We had many a wink and laugh at his expense, and yet we felt to pity him. As the wind blew down the gorge we caught the laughter of the women and the shouts of the children now and then, and the hours passed away and we had no thought of danger. We had been told to go up for the empty baskets at 4 o'clock, and the hour had just gone 2 when a fusillade of revolver shots, followed by the warwhoops of Indians, jumped every man to his feet. Ten seconds later we were following the sergeant up the gorge, and in five minutes we came upon the women and children hidden away among the rocks and stricken with terror. A quarter of an hour before the five officers had caught sight of a cub bear on the other side of the falls. They had gone up stream a few rods and crossed on a log, but the shots we heard had not been fired at the cub. A band of 20 or more renegades who were hiding in the foothills had discovered the picnickers half an hour before and were planning a wipe out of every soul when the officers moved. They played right into the hands of the red men. In their chase after the cub they left the falls half a mile behind, and as they came slowly back they found the Indians confronting them. There was but one course—to make a dash for it—and it was gallantly done. The Indians were too strong and too well posted, however. A lieutenant was dropped dead in his tracks and a major and a captain wounded. That would have left but two men against 20 but for our presence.

The first move on our part, seeing that the women and children were safe, was to secure cover behind the bowlders and open fire on the Indians. They had counted on a sure thing, and their yells of rage when they knew of our presence were loud and long. We had them between two fires, and yet so well were they sheltered that we could not get sight of a head. The redskins knew that we had no means of knowing that they had only two unwounded men in front of them armed with revolvers. The women told us about the officers going away in a body, but although there had been severe firing we hoped none of them had been hit.

After we had fired three or four rounds apiece the sergeant called out to know how it was with the officers. The major answered, giving the names of the killed and wounded. Three of the five were behind the same bowlder and could use their revolvers. It was a curious position in which the three parties were placed, but as the Indians were in such strong force they could defend their front and rear at the same time. If we left cover to cross the creek, we would be exposed to certain death. If they left cover to attack the camp, we had only to shoot them down. What we feared was that they would get out of the trap by dashing upon the officers in front, or work to the left, and finally take them in the rear. The women and children could have been assisted down the gorge and sent off at once, but no one thought of retreat until the order came from the major. Three-quarters of an hour after our arrival he hailed us to say that Captain Johnson, wounded by the first volley, was dead. Lieutenant Blaine, wounded at the same time, was now helpless, and the Indians were working to their rear on both flanks. The two unwounded men must fall back, carrying the lieutenant with them, and hope to reach a more secure spot. The sergeant was ordered to send a messenger to the fort and at the same time get the women and children to the ambulance and off. The escort was to see them to the fort, and the colonel would order out a company to return.

A messenger was hurried off, and while three men remained at the falls, the other three helped the women and children down and soon had them loaded up. Then two of the three men left at the falls appeared. Sergeant Larkins had remained behind to hold the bridge. The sharp eyed Indians would get on to the retreat in front and rear, and they would no sooner become aware of the movement from the falls than they would follow on. Both of the other two had offered to remain, but the sergeant had ordered them on. The ambulance had scarcely turned a wheel before we heard the report of his carbine and realized that the Indians were seeking to force the crossing. We counted a second and third shot, and then started off, every woman and child weeping and wailing. At any moment we might run upon more Indians, and it was not until we met a company of troopers within a mile of the fort that we felt safe. They halted for a few seconds to ask for particulars, and then tore ahead, and it was midnight before we knew the result of their ride. As they reached the valley where we of the escort had dismounted, they heard occasional shots from up the gorge. Mostly them were the reports of winchesters, but now and then they caught the heavier sounds of an army carbine.

Sergeant Larkin was still holding the bridge, still waiting and hoping. First dismounted men rushed up the gorge yelling and cheering as they went, and four or five Indians rose up from behind as many bowlders and took to flight. Two of them were brought down as they ran. The others escaped. The sergeant, having scarcely been left alone when the Indians attempted to cross by the log. He shot two of them, and then a dozen or more of them worked up stream to another crossing and came crawling down on his side. He soon discovered what they were at, but he would not retreat. They said he could have passed down the gorge to the valley and hidden away and saved his life, but he probably held his place under the idea that he was giving the retreating officers a chance for their lives. Foot by foot the Indians had crept upon him, and as the cheers of the rescuers were heard he received the fatal bullet. He could speak when they lifted his head.

"They are over that way," he replied as they asked about the major's party.

Two minutes later, as his own captain bent over him and spoke words of sympathy and wiped the bloody foam from his lips, the sergeant asked:

"Did they reach the fort safely?"

"Yes."

"I was afraid they would be wiped out unless I held the crossing. She—she never spoke to me once, and yet I—I did it for her sake—for her sake!"

"For whose sake?" asked the captain.

But the sergeant was dead.

They found the major and his two comrades posted in the woods a mile away waiting for rescue, but ready to fight to the last, while the dead officers had been spared the mutilation usually inflicted by the heartless fiends. At the fort some said that Sergeant Larkins did not act with good judgment, others that he was a hero. What Miss Bell said, if anything, we never heard. She was doubtless thankful, as were the other ladies, but she never suspected that the soldier loved her and died thinking of her alone. Some one could have told her, but he never did.—C. B. Lewis.

Life Is Good.

After all regrets, life is good. To see the face of truth and enjoy the beauty of tears and smiles, to know oneself a man and love what belongs to manhood—all this is a blessing that may console us for all wants, and that sickness and sorrow and, one may trust, death cannot take away.—John Sterling.
