Otto and White have found a twelve foot body of galena on their claims Nudge and No-Water, Hamill creek. The seam is said to be quite rich.

Percy C. Thomas, on behalf of English capitalists, is in the Lemon creek district examining some of the leading properties with a view to purchasing if found satisfactory.

Frank Watson spent the latter part of last week at the Pauper's Dream mine at Whitewater. It is understood that Mr. Watson has let a contract for a long tunnel on this property.

A considerable force of men are now at work on the Ivanhoe, which has enjoyed a rest for some time. This is known to be a good property, and if silver now only keeps up the probabilities are this mine will become a steady shipper.

The trail up to the Canadian group is in good shape until you get within some 400 feet of the mine. Five men are working in the upper tunnel, taking out ore. Work on the lower tunnel will be suspended until some necessary survey work is completed.

Oscar McMillan is putting the trail of the Chapleau mine, near Slocan City in shape. It is the intention of the owners of the property to immediately commence shipping. They have a large quantity of high grade ore on the dump and plenty more in sight.

Allen McDonald has been up doing some development work on the Laura Doone claim, reports the property as looking well. Late last fall a strike of considerable importance was made on this property and considerable mineral exposed. Assays running 70 ounces in silver per ton.

Work is being rapidly pushed forward on the Gold Queen and Mulligan claims which adjoin the Jubilee, near Xmir. The lead on the Gold Queen can be traced for 1,000 yards and is five feet wide between two well defined walls of granite and slate. The pay streak, which is now about 9 inches wide, is getting wider as the work advances. It is the intentions of the owners, Swan Nelson and Joseph Astor, to increase their staff of workmen as soon as possible.

The Mountain Chief and the Mountain Lilly on the second north fork of Lemon creek form a group of claims of which Pete McCune and O. Barber are the owners. They have just completed their assessment work and are very much pleased with the outlook. The ledge is four feet wide and contains a 2-inch paystreak of rose quartz mingled with sulphides. The ore shows pieces of free gold plainly visible to the naked eye. The group is situated between the Centre Star and Two Brothers.

Considerable work is now being done on the various properties on Ten Mile creek and mining is taking a boom in that section just now. The Fairy Queen group, sometimes called the Brindle group, is being developed and a fine showing exposed. Adjoining is the Oregon City claim, on which two men are now engaged doing assessment work. In a few days development work will be recommenced on the Slug-Ten claim, owned by A. E. Smithergale. A good showing of ore s reported on this property. Assays have been obtained from it running as high as 300 ounces in silver per ton. It is stated that before July 1st, the Enterprise mine will be working at full force of miners and heavy shipments are expected to be soon made from his mine.

GOVERNMENT FINANCES.

After all it is upon its management of the public finances that the strength or weakness of any government ought mainly to be measured. Matters of general policy are, of course, important; but no matter what may be their merits, they sink into insignificance when the management of the finances is especially wasteful. It is in this last respect, we especially arraign the Turner government. There are some in every community who say you should support the government; because those constituencies that send supporters to the House get better grants and more favors for their districts. In so far as this is true of any government, it shows a deplorable condition of public morality. At best a government is but a committee of the people's representatives entrusted with the public money; on the honest understanding that they will dispose of it equitably in the public interest. Then when a constituency is done out of its honest share of that money because it sends an opponent to the House, it is defrauded of its right by the very men who have sworn to handle the finances properly; and when a constituency gets more than its right because it sends a supporter to the House, it only gets that more by robbing other sections of the country. These are the naked facts; and the only answers that can be given to the propriety or impropriety of opposing the government. If the public monies were the actual property of the government by divine right or by any act of the people, a plea of favoritism in the distribution might be properly set up; but when they are not, depraved indeed is the foundation sentiment for any such contention.

In this campaign, it is not our intention to deal in any of the public scandals to any marked extent, that at election times especially are hurled at the heads of an administration; we intend to confine our criticism and our grounds for opposition to the most part of what we will unmistakably show to any man who wants to see the gross mismanagement of the government. It matters not whether that mismanagement of public money is intentional or the result of lack of knowledge, it is indefensible all the same and entitled to public condemnation.

We take the governments estimates for the current year, and in them it is set forth they are to receive $442,689 from all sources from the Dominion government; $176,000 from lands; $181,000 from mines and mining; $377,000 from real property, personal property, income and revenue tax, an item that in the other provinces of Canada is collected by the councils and goes to municipal revenues; $211,400 from various other sources yielding a total of $1,388,089, or very nearly twice that of Manitoba, that has more than double our population. We say that by depriving the municipalities of the proper right to tax lands, personal effects, incomes, etc., and having mines and minerals that bring in over a quarter of a million, the province is put in possession of financial effects that are the envy of all other provinces in Confederation.

Under circumstances like these, the government should be in a shape to liberally aid public undertakings and keep the country clear of bonded debt; but what are the facts? With the power taken to borrow $5,000,000 the past session for railways, the country will owe an aggregate debenture debt of $10,738,686, calling for about $450,000 a year for interest. There is one-third of our yearly income gone in interest on public debt. Now what have we got for this debt, and what do the effects bring us in return for this enormous interest? If the five millions is spent on schemes like the Yukon R.R., we will get 4 per cent. on the gross earnings of the road, which may mean something or it may mean nothing. We, however, know that on the $5,738,686 of debenture debt, independent of this last loaning proposition, we now pay $281,084 a year interest. More than one-sixth of our entire revenue, and what we get for it is very easily explained.

Although the government made an estimate of $600,000 for government buildings, so far they have cost $1,100,000, and the end is not yet. Here is one asset altogether uncalled for that is now, and ever will remain, entirely non-productive. There is some $18,000 a year coming in from sinking fund investments, a fraction of what ought to be, from drainage, irrigation and railway investments and the rest is "nil." In future issues we will take up the different institutions of the country, the civil service and other such expenditures, and show where our monies are annually wasted on them and their maintenance.

UNTRUE WHOLLY.

Some of Mr. Retallack's friends, and especially his subsidised press, are circulating the report that Mr. Green called the Sandom convention on the jilt that gave him the nomination. We have to characterise the statement as wholly untrue. The Editor of this paper assumes the whole responsibility of originating the idea. Through his correspondence with prominent men in the constituency it was decided on to do Mr. Green absolute justice, we may say he was not, at first favorable to it, for two reasons—first, that it could not be called in time, and secondly, because in the absence of a voters' list it could not be made indisputably representative. When, however, he learned the idea was popular he gave it his encouragement. What correspondence he had with prominent men, previous to his nomination, we of course do not know, but we know of no effort on his part to forestall the convention, and we are further certain that, unlike Mr. Retallack, he was not made a candidate by the government and forced on the constituency in any shape or form.

What may or may not have been Mr. Green's opinions of the government in days gone by is a matter of no moment, when in this country the main issue before the people is the government's policy from session to session. As their position and policy are as changeable as the tail of a weathercock, individual electors may be excused if their opinions change also.

Mr. Green's position now is an independent opponent of the government, that is he will support the present opposition in the right; and on all questions wherein he considers opposition to the government the best for the people and the country; but he does not want to bind himself to oppose a government measure that he is convinced is proper and just. This is his position in a nutshell, and in a few days he will lay it before the electors at public meetings over the constituency. In one particular then his position is in marked contrast with that of his opponent. The latter stands tied to the government: neck and heels, even to taking $1,600,000 of public money to build a railway to the Klondyke and to expend a million and a quarter on parliament buildings at Victoria, that were estimated to cost but half that sum.

ANOMALIES.

The election laws of this province present many peculiarities, and many of them are not for the improvement of public morality. For instance, up to April last, no declaration was required to go on the list, so that a man might place himself on as many lists as he liked, and vote as often on polling days as the proximity of constituencies would allow him to do. Under that law there are now many names on the lists that should not be there, and as there is no revision before the courts, many of the lists must be pretty well stuffed. Take our own constituency for instance. There appear on the list to be 571 votes at Kaslo, 155 at Sandom and 98 at Three Forks. The explanation for that is this: On the list of 1894 there were 322 at Kaslo, 70 at Three Forks and but one at Sandom. There has been no revision of that list since, and the numbers that have been added within the past few months go to supplement the figures of four years ago. There have then been about 235 added in Kaslo, 155 in Sandom and some 28 at Three Forks. The facts show, however, that many of the original 322 at Kaslo and 70 at Three Forks have moved to Sandom within the past four years and will vote here, though their names stand at those places. Many more at those places are dead and many left the country. Were there a revision by a judge before polling next month, all these anomalies would be changed.

Another anomaly is that if a man is on at one end of a constituency, say at Kaslo, he can vote at Sandom City if he wants to. This, of course, is a convenience to honest voters who are a distance from where their names are registered; but it is also a convenience to the rascal who wants to personate a dead man or stuff a ballot box for payment. In the present election we would advise all scrutineers to swear all offering to vote who are not personally known and as entitled to vote, and to take an accurate outline of their personal appearance so they can be traced and identified. It may be a considerable task, but it may serve a useful end.

The contentions of government newspapers are amusing. Here are some of them from the Kaslo News as a sample: "The constituency has had experience with opposition and independent candidates, and neither has been satisfactory. * * * Kelly was without influence until he declared himself with the opposition, and then his influence was limited. * * * Hume carried no weight and he could do nothing except as he got it through government sources (as if it was a fact that the opposition held half the Treasury) * * * Of course the government party has the magnanimity to see that positive injustice should not be done this session of the country." It closes by asserting the duties of the department of mines will be divided, and if we elect Mr. Retallack that another $4,000 a year will be added to the country by a separate minister of mines, and we will have the honor of being responsible for that additional expense on the country. We are told that Turner & Co. while handling the public money—that is no more theirs than the capital of the B. C. Bank—have the "magnanimity" to see that positive injustice is not done this country. It must be a wonderful stroke of magnanimity surely in a public servant, sworn to do justice to all, to see that positive injustice has not been done West Kootenay. "Rah for magnanimity. Suppose now we were to carry this kind of argument to its logical conclusion, that to get absolute justice, or as some call it favors, we must send a supporter to the House. A favor of any kind to one constituency means a fraud on other constituencies. Then if every constituency sent in supporters they would all defraud what? There's the rub. If the Turner government cannot see justice except through the magnanimity of a man would indulge in pelting a bone to a begging dog at his door, the sooner the people find it out the better; and the sooner the people starve to death shysters of newspapers that encourage that principle in governments, the better for the country. If it were not that we were told otherwise by the prints that defend the administration, we would be disposed to assume that the government treated all parts of the country alike, and we would have to criticise it on its policy merely; but when the suspicion is forced on us by its newspaper apologists, that inequality of treatment is meted out, opposing constituencies being punished for opposition, our grounds for denunciation are doubly intensified.

One explanation for the frequent trips of our finance minister, the Hon. Mr. Turner, to the money markets, mortgage in hand, is the excessive waste of public money in our civil service. Take our insane asylum, for instance. In it there are constantly employed a medical superintendent, a steward, a clerk, FOURTEEN male attendants, FOUR female attendants, a matron, a night watchman, a cook and a laundress. That is double the number of attendants at the institution in Selkirk where there are double the number of inmates. The crazy at Westminster must be crazy indeed if they require so much watching. This staff in salaries alone costs the country $15,521. But if the loans run up this way, and mortgaging and indebtedness increasing, the country will soon require more asylums and poor-houses.

The Slokan News says The Review misunderstands it. There is nothing surprising in this surely. It next says The Review makes a base insinuation in attributing mercenary motives to a couple of papers for supporting Mr. Retallack. If we are not mistaken, Mr. Young in his late peregrination through the constituency told some people he was not working for nothing.

One of the main objections to Mr. Retallack's candidature is that he is the nominee of the Turner government. When three or four ministers will show a divine right they profess to have to thrust a candidate on any constituency the public will look into the matter. We always thought this was a right of the people.

AN EERIE EPISODE.

It was at a masquerade at Galinber's studio in one of the old Roman palaces. There were music, the tripping sound of dancing feet, laughter and the unintelligible hum of conversation mingled in a gay medley.

Carson, an American, a new arrival in the city and a stranger to that colony of sculptors and painters, had been accidentally separated from the friend who brought him in the crowd shortly after his entrance to the ballroom.

He was wandering listlessly among the merry musketeers, quite regardless of their glances and laughter at his expense. Thirst for lengths of his aimless peregrinations, he turned aside from the glaring lights and bent to the shade and coolness of the balcony.

The wide easements at the end of the room were open and gave an unobstructed view of the kaleidoscopic scene within. A divan near the balustrade offered a place for repose, but it was not until he was seated that he was aware of the presence of a lady. She occupied the further end of the divan and was partially concealed by the drooping ivy ferns and palms with which the balcony was decorated. She moved slightly in her nest of tricolored cushions, and her fan fell with a slight clatter upon the stone floor.

Carson picked it up and gave it to her with a courteous bow. She thanked him, looking in English, with just the slightest Italian accent.

"I fear that I am intruding, signora," he said.

"Not so. The balcony is free to all who come. There can be no intrusion."

She reached up her hand as she spoke and pushed aside the feathery branches that swayed between them. Then he saw that she was young and very fair to look upon.

Her face was decidedly English. She wore an indescribable swathing garment of soft texture that was gathered up closely about her neck and fell to her feet in long, clinging folds—strongly suggestive of a Berubard costume. Two beautifully shaped arms were bare to the shoulder, and the small hands that lay in her lap looked as though they had been modeled in wax.

She leaned back, resting her head upon the stuccoed pillar, her fan waving languidly to and fro.

"Permit me," said the American, taking the dainty lace and ivory trifle from her hand and fanning her gently. She smiled a gracious assent, and then began talking.

It was so warm in the ballroom and so grew so tired dancing, she said. Did the gentleman dance? Perhaps he was not acquainted with many ladies in Rome? Was he an artist or a sculptor?

"Neither, signora. I am an attaché."

"From what country—England?"

"No—America."

"America! Ah, that marvelous land!" She chatted on in an open, friendly manner until a boy of tired dancers invaded their retreat. Among them was his friend Turro.

"Great heavens, Carson! Where have you been? I have looked everywhere for you. Everybody is unmasking, and it is time for supper. No doubt you are starving. Come, I have secured a table, and you are to meet some charming women. What have you been doing here all alone? It was exceedingly stupid in us to get separated."

"I have not been alone," replied Mr. Carson. He glanced around, but the lady was gone.

"Not alone? Why, who was with you?"

"The lady. Did you not see her when you came?"

"A caprice, my dear boy. I saw no lady. No, you sat there moaning, staring in a most sentimental manner at that Moorish lantern hanging over there. Come along. They are waiting for us."

They lingered long over their supper. They were merry, high pitched talking and much laughter, but Carson was not in a state of hilarity. His restless, bored glance wandered over the assembly, and once he started and turned sharply in his chair at the low voice of a woman who, with her escort, passed close beside him.

Turro tried to rally him on his abstraction, but his brow contracted fretfully, and he nervously fingered a spray of flowers that lay by his plate. He was not sorry when the ball was over and he found himself on the pavement outside of the palace.

A cab was waiting, but without knowing why he declined to accompany his friend, saying he preferred to walk to his hotel. He sauntered along slowly, with bowed head, absently staring at the dim shadows cast by the waning moon. As he was passing across the Piazza de Farnese he heard a low voice speaking:

"So we meet again!"

He halted. She, his new acquaintance, was beside him.

"Signora! You here at this hour and alone? Where are your friends?"

She smiled. "You will walk with me to the street below, will you not?"

"Certainly. But your friends—their carelessness is criminal."

"They walked through the square and down several streets almost in silence. Presently she stopped before the entrance of a house."

"Here, signor!" she said.

Almost simultaneously she swung forward and caught his arm, at the same time uttering a smothered cry.

"You are hurt!" he exclaimed anxiously. "You have twisted your ankle on those wretched stones."

"I fear so." She pressed her hand upon her bosom and looked into his eyes with a mute appeal.

"You cannot walk." He stooped and gathered her up into his arms. "I will carry you. Which floor?"

"The fourth," she replied, her face flushing as the light of the early day fell upon it.

A crowsy janitor answered his ring. He ascended the flight of stairs without pausing, carrying her as a nurse might a child, happy at the delicious touch of her bare arms against his neck as she clasped him.

On the second flight ascent was not so easy. Her weight grew heavier, and the head that had now fallen on his shoulder pressed like a ball of iron, her arms were relaxing their clasp and lay against his neck with a startling coldness. She seemed to be letting herself go, and at each step grew heavier in proportion.

When a man gets down flat on his back, so that he has to be carried about like a baby, he finally realizes that he is a sick man. Very frequently he has been a sick man for years, but has recklessly refused to recognize nature's warnings. Severe illness is something that does not strike a man like a flash of lightning. It creeps upon him by degrees, and at every step warns him with a new danger signal.

When a man feels "out of sorts" or "knocked out" or whatever he may call it, he is a sick man. It is time to take warning. Headaches, drowsiness, loss of sleep at night, loss of appetite, nervousness, bad taste in the mouth in the morning, and frequent dreams—all these are warnings of overreaching illness. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery creates appetite, cures dyspepsia, stimulates the liver, purifies the blood, quickens the circulation and tones the nerves. It makes rich, red, tissue-building blood. It builds arm flesh, but does not make corpulent people more corpulent. Unlike cod liver oil, it does not make flabby flesh. On the contrary, it tears down and exerts the invincibly tissues that constitute corpulence, and replaces them with the firm, muscular tissues of good health. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. All bronchial, throat and kindred ailments, as lingering coughs, spitting of blood and weak lungs are cured by it. Thousands have testified to its merits. At all medicine stores.

It is a dealer's business to give you what you ask for, not to tell you what you want.

maiden, but something hard and horrible—something that was bearing him down and enfolding him with a sensation as though his chest was bursting.

On the third landing he felt her slipping.

"Signora," he faltered.

He sought to renew his hold, but the burden, now a dead weight, slid from his arms, and she fell with a heavy thud on the floor.

"What noise is this?" called a masculine voice in Italian.

Carson began a hasty explanation to the man, whose head protruded from a partially open door.

The man came forward and bent over her.

"She does not belong here," he said. "She is a stranger. She is pale as death. Unfasten her clothing. She must have fainted. Where is the janitor? The fool! He never is here when he is needed. Call him, signor, and send for a physician."

His hasty hand broke the knot of ribbon that confined her bodice. With a wild exclamation he instantly loosened his hold on her dress and started backward. The fall throat and white bust were exposed. There were deep bluish purple bands around the throat and a quivering danger wound, dark with congealed blood, on the snowy bosom.

Their cries aroused the janitor, who hastened to call the police. Presently he returned, panting up the stairs, accompanied by an officer. Carson drew aside the curtain, and the bright light of day fell upon the body.

"Holy Virgin!" cried the policeman as he saw the dead woman.

"Can you identify her?" asked Carson.

"Yes," returned the man. "She is the woman who was found murdered on the Corso night before last. How came she here?"—M. M. Hahn in Argonaut.

SMELTER CONDITIONS.

Are Changing for the Better In British Columbia.

The following notes on the changes that have taken place in the smelting conditions in the Rossland district are of interest just now when the matter of a local smelter is under consideration. From these it will be seen what an important part advantages of location and transportation; such as Vancouver possesses, plays in the smelting business. The Miner outlines the situation as follows:

For the past two years the War Eagle company has actively applied itself to the task of developing its mine and for over a year it has been in a position to market its ore, but did not elect to do so. The management when approached on the situation would say that it was waiting till the cost of smelting was reduced. Its patience has at last been rewarded, and instead of a $11, the old rate, the price of freight and treatment has been reduced to $7 per ton. This is a saving of $4 per ton. The contract of the War Eagle with the Trail smelter calls for the delivery of 200 tons per day. On this quantity the company saves $800 per day more than it would have had it marketed its ores under the operation of the old rate of $11. A saving of $800 a day would in a year amount to $292,000. This amount would be a tidy sum to divide among the stockholders.

There are reasons for this reduction. It was impossible for the company that formerly operated the smelter to quote the low rate, which is now a comparatively easy matter for the present operators to grant.

In the first place, the cost of lime laid down at Trail was $2.50 per ton, where it is now less than one-half that sum. In the second place, the cost of coke was $12 per ton; and besides this there were other conditions and restrictions in the way of transportation that made it unprofitable to smelt ore for less than the figure then in existence. Now the C. P. R. can bring in the coke and flux much cheaper than any private firm or individual can, because it owns and operates lines of railway. It is naturally interested in building up the smelting industry because it enjoys a monopoly of the handling to and from the smelter and also of the traffic of the people of the Smelter City. This company has on several occasions announced that it did not care to make anything out of the smelting—that its money would be made in transportation. It is no wonder, therefore, that the cost of smelting ore has been reduced to the present price. It is a good thing for the camp, however, that the present condition of affairs exists for the reason that the low grade ores of the camp can now be marketed. This is going to add greatly to the importance of the camp, because it will greatly increase the output.

A Good Scheme.

Frank Watson passed through the city Tuesday on his way to Spokane. He stated that he expected to return to-day and remain in Slocan City until the Springer creek road is completed to the Arlington basin. The government has appropriated $8,000 for the construction of a wagon road up Six Mile to Lemon creek, and Mr. Watson said that he intends to use his influence to get the government to use the same upon the extension of the Springer creek road and that he believed that he would be successful in accomplishing that result. Should his efforts be attended with success there would be a sufficient sum of money to build a splendid road from Slocan City to Lemon creek which would be within close proximity to all the rich properties en route, and would answer all purposes far better than to have the funds expended upon the building of two roads and neither one of them made complete or serviceable.—Slocan City News.

The Mining Review.

Orders taken for Printing at Cliffe's Bookstore will receive prompt attention.

Rosebery Townsite.

The many advantages enjoyed by Rosebery put before the public, CLAIMED WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

Its Advantages as a Distributing Center.

Rosebery is the only town in Kootenay having both railroad and steamboat connection that can ship goods daily to ten different towns, whereby the shipper can see his wares leave his hands and that they will be received by the consignee within two hours.

Its Advantages as a Railroad Center.

Rosebery enjoys the position of king of the funnel as it were, for the railroad business of the whole of the Kootenays. All ore and matter for shipment from Nelson, Trail Creek and the Slocan must, and is now passing out this way, to the main line of the C. P. R., as well as all goods coming in from Revelstoke to the Kootenay country.

NOTE. To substantiate this: The C. P. R. are now putting in track weigh scales at Rosebery, the first and only scales that has been put in on any of the C. P. R. branches in Kootenay—which goes to show the importance of this point by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's actions.

Its Advantages as a Steamboat Point.

Rosebery claims, without opposition, of being the only junction on the lake, unlike Slocan City, where you can step off the steamer to a waiting train and continue your journey. You can take either a north or south train at this terminus; consequently Rosebery is the best transient town in the race. Nevertheless we claim Slocan City second in importance, and would say watch the head and foot of Slocan Lake, viz:—

ROSEBERY AND SLOCAN CITY.

Its Advantages as a Manufacturing Center.

As a manufacturing center Rosebery claims to have demonstrated the fact that after the careful observation of the Denver (Colorado) Ore Coy's manager, as the natural advantages of all points in Kootenay for the treatment of ores the cheapest, Rosebery was selected, and they now are erecting works, with a capacity of 250 tons per day, which will be in operation within 90 days; and it is their intention to pay out monthly in the vicinity of $100,000. I might also add Rosebery has the largest water power from Wilson river flowing into Slocan Lake.

AS TO CLIMATE.

Rosebery claims the mildest climate on Slocan Lake, from its admirable southern exposure and absolute shelter from the north; snow always leaves the place about the 15th of March.

AS A TOWNSITE.

As a townsite, Rosebery is without a peer. It is possessed of all the flat land available at the mouth of the Wilson river leading to the valley—mining region—consequently there is no danger of any contagion. The title is a Crown Grant and is perfect. All purchasers of lots are safe in this respect. The only safe speculative townsite in the Slocan is Rosebery.

Why should I say the only safe speculative townsite in the Slocan? Because Rosebery business lots to-day are only $150 to $200 each and are bound to increase rapidly this summer. These figures can, and will, double before long. The time to buy is now. Don't wait till they are from $700 to $1,000, as you did in Slocan City last May, go in on the ground floor and make a few dollars in speculation; if you want to invest go to Vancouver or Winnipeg; if you want to speculate and clean up money go quick to Rosebery before lots are out of sight.

What's Wanted in Rosebery.

We want a restaurant.
We want a good hotel right away.
We want a first-class general store.
We want a butcher shop.

Anyone looking for an opening spy out this place at once.

The cause for the late rise in silver is that all Spanish bank bills are payable in silver, and since the war the holders of Spanish bank bills have been demanding silver. When the war collapses the price of silver will likely drop.

P. S. Andrews, of Slokan City, is the returning officer for this division. Nomination on the 25th of June and polling on the 9th of July. Polling places are to be opened in the following towns only: Slokan City, Silverton, New Denver, Sandon, Robson, K. 10, Ainsworth, Pilot Bay and Argenta.

After several disappointments the second MacKenzie-Glover entertainment was held here on Thursday evening. Mr. MacKenzie and Miss Glover are undoubtedly high-class entertainers, but he should increase his stock of jokes. Telling the same one twice in the same place never meets public expectations.

The service from Sandon will be the regular train leaving at 7:40, with special service returning from Slokan, leaving there at 7 p.m. the 4th. Those who prefer returning next day on the regular can do so.

Send in your announcements if you want the people of the whole country to read them.

Concerning Fred Emerson Brooks who will appear in the Virginia hall Thursday, June 23, Major James Pond, of the U.S., says: "He is unique; there is no one like him. I have heard him under all circumstances and always with the same result—he was the success. I have heard him in a parlor entertain ten literary critics—I have heard him in Dr. Talmage's Brooklyn Tabernacle applauded to the echo—I heard him at the great Review of the Grand Army in Boston, 1890, when 25,000 heard his poem, and cheered until they were hoarse. Brooks is great."

The election is commencing to wax warm in some localities of the province.

The band benefit dance given in Virginia hall last Friday evening was fairly well attended, and all present seemed to enjoy themselves immensely.

The Sandon Orchestra, which supplied the music, was relieved for a short interval by Miss Broadwell, of the Hotel Reco, playing the violin in a masterful manner, accompanied by Mr. Griffith on the piano. The financial result is a nest egg of $55 for the band fund.

The only case that disturbed the serenity of our police court the past week was one furnished by Three Forks on Saturday between Haskett and Becker. It appears the former owns a well from which the latter had drawn water for some time till some differences appeared on the horizon. After this Becker went to the well as usual when Haskett threw stones at him, one leaving a mark. A fine of $5 and costs to Haskett followed, and even now he is not satisfied.

STRENGTH CAME BACK.

The Anvil once more rings with the strokes of his hammer.

Mr. Thos. Porteous, the well known blacksmith of Goderich, Ont., tells how sickness and weakness gave way to health and strength. "For the past four years my nerve have been very weak, my sleep fitful and disturbed by dreams, consequently I arose in the morning unrefreshed. I was frequently very dizzy and was much troubled with a mist that came before my eyes, my memory was often defective and I had fluttering of the heart, together with a sharp pain through it at times. In this condition I was easily worried and felt overworked and exhausted. Two months ago I began taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, since that time I have been gaining in health and strength daily. They have restored my nerves to a healthy condition, removed all dizziness and heart trouble, and now I sleep well and derive comfort and rest from it. That Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are a good remedy for Nervousness, Weakness, Heart Trouble and similar complaints goes without saying. Price 50 cts. a box at all druggists or T. RUNNING SORES.

Mr. Stephen Wescott, Freeport, N.S., found (Burdock Blood Bitters) a wonderful blood purifier and gives his experience as follows: "I was very much run down in health and employed our local physician who attended me three months, finally my leg broke out in running sores with fearful burning. I had thirteen running sores at one time, from my knee to the top of my foot. All the medicine I took did me no good, so I threw it aside and tried B.B.B.; when one-half the bottle was gone, I noticed a change for the better, and by the time I had finished two bottles my leg was perfectly healed and my health greatly improved."
