Board of Trade Meeting.

The last regular board of trade meeting of the month was held at the Kootenay hotel on the 16th, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing term:

President, J. P. Farrell,
Vice-president, A. P. Mcdonald;
Secry-treas., Lewis Thomson.

A finance committee was also elected consisting of Robt. Campbell, M. A. Beale and F. J. Smyth.

A resolution was read and adopted asking the government for an appropriation of $1500 for the building of a new wagon road to the Society Girl mine.

The petition asking for the division of the district was ordered forwarded to the proper persons.

The bank committee reported progress.

A committe was appointed to aid in selecting a site for the new government buildings.

The election of an executive committee was postponed until the next meeting.

The next meeting will be held in the dining room of the Moyie hotel.

Miner a Little Off.

Moyie has a hockey club and every week something appears in The Moyie Leader about the club, but it never says anything about the members of the club playing hockey. They are spending all of their time arranging for a grand ball to be given February 14.—Nelson Miner.

The Moyie boys are playing hockey, and are doing some good work, too. And it is their intention to take a whirl out of the Nelson team before long, providing a "dicker" can be made.

ORE FROM SOCIETY GIRL

150 Tons will Be Sent Out at Once.

TO SMELTER AT NELSON

Work will Be Commenced on the Property as soon as the Weather will Permit.

The Society Girl mine is again shipping ore. The 150 tons or thereabouts which has been taken out at the mine is being brought down and shipped to the Hall Mines' smelter at Nelson. There are four teams hauling and they are bringing down about 10 tons per day.

Chas. Farrell, the owner, says that as soon as the weather will permit he will start work on the property and will drive a tunnel farther down the hill so as to get a greater depth on the ore body.

Legislature Summoned.

Victoria, January 17.—The provincial legislature has been summoned to meet on February 1st for the despatch of business.

The Chinese Situation.

The movement against the Chinese is working very satisfactory to those who started the ball rolling. The business men have all so far adhered to the request of the anti-Chinese committee. The cards which the miners' union had printed, on which were the words "We Neither Patronize or Employ Chinese Here," are now displayed in nearly every business house. In most cases the cards were asked for by the business men. The Chinese are acting glum and seem pretty well discouraged, and it is said that most of them are getting ready to move out. One thing is certain they are getting but little if any work to do. The white laundries are overcrowded with work.

Waterworks Company Meets.

A meeting of the waterworks company was held here Tuesday. The company has decided to begin work as early as possible and are already making arrangements for placing an order for pipe, which they wish to have on the ground by the 15th of April. It was decided to lay a 4-inch pipe along Victoria street between Madora avenue and the south end of Tavistock street. A 3 inch pipe will also be laid down Queen's avenue to a point about opposite the Leader office. It is the intention of the company to have at least 10 fire hydrants scattered over the line just mentioned.

The Moyie Brewery.

R. Riesterer and Mr. Walsh arrived from Nelson this week, and with Mr. Niederstadt commenced the work of fitting up the Moyie Brewery. They are putting in 10 chip casks and eight fermenting tubs, and the brewery will have a capacity of 15 barrels per day. Messrs. Niederstadt & Riesterer intend cutting and storing about 1500 tons of ice this winter. They have a new ice plow, several pairs of tongs and everything necessary for this work. The new brewery will be in operation about the first of February.

For Fire Protection.

A meeting was held in the sample room of the Central hotel, Thursday evening for the purpose of endeavoring to improve the Moyie fire department. A committee of five was appointed to confer with fire wardens, after which another general meeting will be called for the purpose of electing a chief and his lieutenants.

There will be a meeting of the Moyie Business Men's Protective Association on Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock in the secretarys office.

Big Pencil Man Dead.

Berlin, Jan. 16.—Johann Faber, founder of the famous lead pencil factory, died yesterday at Nuremberg, aged 84 years. When he began business English pencils were in almost universal use in Germany. There is now no market for them, they having been driven out of by the product of Faber's factory.

The ice on the lake is in splendid condition for skating and it is a common occurrence to see between 50 and 75 people at a time enjoying this passtime.

No business man can afford to carry his own fire insurance. The risk is too great. The insurance company should have all the risk. Beale & Elwell are agents for the best company in the world.

Four Made Happy.

Four Moyie people were united in marriage last Tuesday. The contracting parties were N. A. MacKenzie and Miss Elena Eagan, and Glencerian Campbell and Mrs. Biggings. The former couple were married in Moyie and the latter in Fort Steele.

MACKENZIE—EAGAN.

The marriage of Mr. MacKenzie and Miss Eagan took place in the parlor of the Kootenay hotel, at 11:30 o'clock and was conducted by Rev. Father Coccolo. Only a few of the immediate friends of the bride and groom were present. At two o'clock an excellent wedding dinner was served and at 3 o'clock the couple started on their wedding journey to New York and other eastern cities.

Mr. Mackenzie is proprietor of the Manhattan hotel and is one of Moyie's most substantial business men, while the bride was one of the most popular young ladies of the town.

CAMPBELL—BIGGINGS.

Mr. Campbell and Mrs. Biggings were married in Fort Steele by the Rev. Mr. Reid. They arrived in Moyie Tuesday and have taken up their home on the west side of the Moyie lake.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Campbell are pioneers in Moyie, he being the original locator of the townsite, and she the first white woman in the place.

The Leader extends congratulations to both couples.

After the Fire.

Messrs. Lindsay and Clayton are yet undecided as to whether or not they will rebuild.

F. W. Frith and Billy Hamilton are talking of forming a partnership and going into business in Moyie. They should receive every encouragement.

All those who were injured in the fire are getting along nicely. The worst cases are in the St. Eugene mission hospital and are getting the best of treatment. It was feared for a few days that A. H. Barrick and Ben Heminger would contract pneumonia, but that stage has passed and they are out of danger. Father Coccolo, who arrived from the mission today, says that all the Moyie patients are getting along splendidly.

There are two benefit entertainment spoken of for those who suffered most by the fire. One will be given next Wednesday evening, at which the play "Punpkin Ridge" will be reproduced, after which a dance will be given. The other will be in the nature of a grand ball to be given by the ladies of Moyie next Friday evening. The board of trade has been asked to assist with both, and it is likely they will receive its support.

Laying off Miners.

Some of the mines around Sandon are laying off part of their crews and limiting their output as a result of the actions of the Smelter Combine in refusing to renew their contracts. The mines effected are the Payne, which layed off 20 men, the Whitewater, letting out 20 miners, and the Last Chance, which reduced its force by twenty-five.

SATURDAY, JAN. 19, 1901.

The fame of the St. Eugene mine has even spread as far as Germany.

The movement against the Chinese s all right, but it should embrace a larger scope of country. Every town in South East Kootenay should take up the fight.

The Seattle Typographical Union has adopted a 7½-hour day for type-setting machine operators. The wages are $4.50 for night work and $4 for day work.

The miners' union must be given credit for taking the initiatory steps towards driving the Chinese out of Moyie. When the union takes a matter in hand it is a sure sign that it will be carried out, and carried out right.

It is said that at the Moyie school election last Monday the question of religion was brought up. It was generally considered that the people of Moyie were too broad minded to allow the question of religion to interfere with their school affairs, but it seems such is not the case.

The bringing back and convicting of Michael Haggarty on the charge of obtaining money and goods under false pretenses was from every point of view a justifiable act. Haggarty is a strong, able bodied man and had no excuse whatever for his action. His conviction should serve as a warning to others.

The appointment of Chris Foley on the Chinese commission is a tactful one. Foley is a western man with western ideas, and his knowledge of the Chinese question is both broad and deep. It is pleasing to note that his ability has been recognized by the Ottawa government, and that he has secured such an honorable position.

An appropriation of $1500 was made several months ago by the government for the building of a courthouse and lockup in Moyie, but as yet nothing has been done. The difficulty seems to lie in the fact that a lot must also be purchased out of this amount, which must necessarily cut down the amount for building purposes. It is to be hoped that a speedy settlement of the matter will be reached.

Today we hear little or nothing in favor of the abolition of the death penalty. On the other hand some of the states to the south of us that tabooed it are agitating for the re-establishment of the gallows. Not only this but it is now being urged as a punishment for crimes other than murder. It has been suggested that such crimes as result in lynchings should be punished by death. The Cudahy kidnaping case has started an agitation in Utah and in many other states for the enactment of a law making kidnapping for bounty a crime punishable by death.

ON INCORPORATION.

A number of small towns, in the province are talking "incorporation," says the Nelson Tribune. All the revenue that the people of these towns now pay goes into the provincial treasury, and the people claim that very little of it is re-expended in the towns. The claim is true; but it is doubtful if incorporation is a remedy for the evil complained of. Once a town is incorporated, the bulk of the revenue collected seems to be frittered away in expenditures that are of little real benefit. It is easy to spend money derived from the sale of debentures; but it is hard to raise money year after year to pay the interest and sinking fund charges on such indebtedness. The Tribune is of the opinion that the small towns, instead of incorporating, should be allowed the right to be designated as villages, with a board of three elected or appointed trustees, to have authority to expend the amount of revenue actually collected within the limits of the village by the provincial authorities from such sources of revenue as real estate taxes and licenses. Were this done, the money would, to a great extent, go towards making public improvements that would be actually necessary.

Frank James Turned Down.

Frank James, brother to Jesse James the noted bandit, has lost his fight for the doorkeepership of the Missouri house of representatives. No man at the capitol has it is said worked harder than he for an appointment. James personally applied to the different members of the legislature to give him recognition for the benefit of future generations of his family.

The decision was reached in the democratic caucus after an all night session. James' name was presented by Judge T. T. Hawkins a venerable member, who pleaded eloquently for the candidate. On the first ballot James received but 15 votes. On the second ballot James withdrew his name, "thanking from the bottom of his heart" those who had given him support.

James surrendered to Governor Crittenden years ago, after his brother Jesse had been killed by Bob Ford, and ever since has been living an upright life.

The Professor's Escaped Bacteria.

He was apparently an old man, wore large spectacles and carried a small satchel. Across the satchel was labeled, "Professor Redd, Chicago." He entered the waiting room of a suburban station and deposited the satchel carelessly near the ice cooler. Suddenly those near saw the satchel fall and heard the sharp tinkle of breaking glass. The old man picked up the glass and muttered exclamations of distress.

"To think I brought them all the way from Brazil," he said.

"What were they?" inquired some one in the sympathetic crowd.

"Germs!"

"What?"

"Bacteria of a strange Brazilian fever."

"Quick, man! Crush them with your foot!"

"I can't, sir. They are now floating around in the air."

There was a moment of horror. Then there was a rush, and a little later the old man was the only occupant of the waiting room. A window was raised from the outside.

"Just let them out easy, Pete," cautioned a voice.

And the bogus professor obeyed. Satchels, grips and cases went through the window. After he had finished collecting the professor followed the booty. His false beard fell back in the room, but he did not attempt to reclaim it. The arrival of their train prompted those outside to venture in for their baggage. It had vanished, and the black beard told the tale.

FOR AULD LANG SYNE.

Ladies of Canada:

"Should old acquaintance be forgot?" The answer comes mechanically from every Britisher—Nor. Remember that on the bloody fields of South Africa your brave soldier boys were on the firing line, flanked by loyal British subjects from Ceylon and India. In the midst of danger, lasting friendships were formed, and you, ladies, of Canada, have it in your power to cement those bonds. The Green teas of Ceylon and India appeal to you from sentiment. By using them you not only aid your brother colonists, but you get absolutely the best teas. Those of you who drink green Japan teas have a revelation in store if you make the change. Blue Ribbon, Salada and Monsoon packets may be had from your grocer.—Colonist.

Accounted For.

"He found the gas leak," explained the nurse.—Chicago Tribune.

Why is the boy bad?

What did the proverb say?
It said, "The good die young."

THE YOUNG MAN'S BEARD.

If It Be Feeble and Scarce, He Has Cause to Rejoice.

All human beings past the age of 4 carry with them some secret sorrow. Even young babies have secret sorrows sometimes. These take the form of a safety pin that is not safe, or of a nurse all smiles and affection when parents are around, but inclined to scold and slap at night.

One very common sorrow we propose to uproot. This is the sorrow of the young man whose beard, feeble and scarce, is like the down on fluffy gosling.

How often have you noticed such a young man pulling sadly and bitterly at the mustache that will not grow? How often have you felt sorry for the young clergyman tugging at pale side whiskers barely visible? Verily, "the heart knoweth his own bitterness."

Our mission today is to tell young men and clergymen that there is no more hopeful sign in all their make up than a faint and backward growth of beard.

Feebleness of beard indicates that the man has ahead of him progress, mental and physical. It indicates that he has not seen his best day or full development, that he can wisely hope for better things later on.

On the contrary, the man whose face, shaved, looks like a very dark slice of castile soap, the young man who prides himself on a nutmeg grafter chin, has in all probability seen the limit of his development. This is sad, but it is true, and we have got to say it, for we are truth tellers in ordinary to the American young man.

If you doubt what we tell you, investigate for yourselves. Study pictures of great men at 30 or 35—you find that their beard, even at that age, is often nothing more than a promise.

You see, we are all related, in physical make up at least, to the animal kingdom. Throughout that kingdom outward signs indicate full maturity. The lion's mane, the bison's hump, the elephant's tusks, the boar's tushes, the peacock's tail feathers—these correspond to the beard in man and indicate the state of development which each animal has attained.

The state of your beard measures your development, and there is nothing to be more thankful for than slow development. The better the creation the slower its growth. At 6 weeks of age the cabbage far surpasses the oak, but at the end of a hundred years, when the oak defies the storm, where is your cabbage?

If you try hard, you may find imaginary exceptions to this rule. Perhaps you'll say that Napoleon had a beard as stiff as that of a walrus almost before he was out of his teens.

True, but he was fully developed almost before he was out of his teens. He was a great military genius at 20, and his full development and full beard came early. But his career ended early. His predecessor, Cæsar, had practically no beard at all, just a few hairs here and there, but he lasted longer than Napoleon and could have gone on indefinitely if his friends had not murdered him.

In all truth remarks on young men there resides of course a useful lesson of some kind for young women.

Here is the lesson for young women:

Don't despise your young man because his mustache is sickly.

If you are wise, you will tell the young man to shave, since all beard is an abomination. But if you belong to the primitive female type which demands hair on the man's face make the best of what there is there.

You want your young man to develop. If you get him with a thick mustache, he will never be much better than at present, and you will probably have to let that magnificent mustache take the place of mental growth and future glory.—Ne

A Hopeless Case.

A cab driver had been driving a cab for four years and got a little more weary looking every day.

"I can't stand it no longer," he said at last. "I ain't a-going to have any more women finding fault and claiming that they didn't have courteous treatment."

There was a woman standing at the next corner. Instead of the customary "Cab, ma'am?" he stopped his horse, dismounted from his perch, and going toward the curbstone, lifted his hat and inquired:

"Do you propose making use of this vehicle today?"

"Sir!" she said in tones of astonishment.

"Do you wish to ride in this cab? If so, I will gladly escort you to it. I aim to please."

"Why, I never heard such impertinence," she stammered. "I did intend riding in your cab, but I shall certainly wait for the next. And you may expect a complaint from me at the police station concerning your conduct, sir."

He remounted the seat and pulled his hat down over his eyes.

"'Tain't no use! Gee up!" was all he said.—London Tit-Bits.

Knox at the Door.

"Thomas Sexton," says Justin McCarthy, "who was for many years a member of the house of commons, had the reputation of being not only one of the greatest orators in the house, but also one of the wittiest men in private conversation. One day, while I was still leader of the Irish National party, I was particularly anxious to get some information on a pressing subject before the house from Vesey Knox, who was then member for the Ulster city of Derry. I rushed from my seat in the debating chamber into the central lobby, where members often lounge and talk, and looked around for my friend. There I saw Sexton, and I went eagerly up to him and asked, 'Where can I find Knox?' 'There he is at the door,' replied Sexton. 'Knox naturally would be at the door.'"

The Profit in It.

A gentleman who was visiting one of the public schools in a Scotch town asked a bright looking boy:

"What profit is there in the study of ancient history?"

"About 18 pence, I suppose," was the reply.

"What?"

"Well, the teacher makes us buy the books from him, and we have to pay 3 shillings. I thinks he gets them for 18 pence apiece, so he has a clear profit of 18 pence, according to my calculation."

Fame.

"'Opportunity comes once to every man.'"

"That's right. And any man is bound to become famous if he only lives long enough."

"Oh, I don't quite believe that."

"You don't? Suppose a man lives to be 150 years old. Wouldn't that make him famous?"—Philadelphia Record.

ARROW SHOTS.

Fired at Random. They May Yet Hit Their Mark.

Every once in awhile you run across a man with a very impressive voice who doesn't amount to anything.

Every man that goes up a back alley is not necessarily a thief. He may be learning to ride a bicycle.

When a widower gets married, nearly every other widower is interested.

Rocking chairs would not be of much use if it were not for women who put in most of their time rocking.

Hardly any jokes are funny unless they are on the other fellow.

When a man gets to the age where he keeps an accurate account of the time of day, he has not much else left to do.

About all the satisfaction some folks have is that they are not like other people.

Even folks who make a good deal of fuss when they get married look very common soon afterward.

If there is a real big chair in the room, every chump that comes in tries to move it.

Folks make presents of fountain pens to people who cannot write.

Deaf men always seem to have a special hankering to walk on the railroad.

A woman will use the potato masher to drive a nail rather than hunt the hammer.

If it were not for an occasional scandal, some folks would not seem to have very much fun.

The height of martyrdom for a farmer boy is to wear collars and cuffs on a hot day.

Every man has a grudge at some doctor for a big bill he once charged him.

When you find a man that says he is independent, you will soon find that he thinks that it pays better.

When a man begins to do things of which he is ashamed, he likes to associate with other men who have also done mean things.

People who never get to be worth much think all who become well off have to do it by being stingy.

Caid, 2:07¼, has an Austrian two mile record of 4:27 3-10.

Monterey won the western stallion stake which was trotted a few weeks ago and went one heat in 2:12.

Mascoline, a trotter by Online, 2:04, pacing, is reported to have beaten 2:20 in a race without winning a heat.

The two attempts of Cresceus at Terre Haute to beat his own mark of 2:04 resulted in miles in 2:05¼ and 2:04¼.

Allerton this season has 10 new performers to his credit, while 11 previously in the list have reduced their records.

Cresceus, 2:04, recently trotted a mile over the Toledo half-mile track in 2:09¾, trotting the second quarter in 30¾ seconds.

When Mydia Wilkes reduced her record to 2:09½ at Terre Haute recently, it made the seventh 2:10 performer for Baron Wilkes.

Creosote, chestnut gelding, driven by Hayden, has been winning all his races in New England recently and has taken a record of 2:22¼.

Free Bond, 2:04¼, has been styled the fastest Canada bred pacer, but was really bred in Iowa and taken to Canada before he was a year old.

Cresceus' wonderful victories in 1900 have so stimulated the horse loving public of Toledo that it has been decided to build a mile track there next season.

DYSPEPSIA AND HEADACHE.

An Elderly Lady Tells of Her Cure Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills After a Score of Other Remedies Had Failed.

Dyspepsia causes more genuine distress than most diseases that afflict mankind. In this country from one cause or another its victims are numbered by the hundreds of thousands, and those afflicted always feel tired, worn out and miserable, and are subject to fits of melancholy or ill temper without apparent cause. It is obvious that the human body, in order to perform its functions, must be properly nourished, and this cannot be done when the food is improperly digested. Those who suffer from indigestion should exercise discretion as to diet, and only easily digested foods should be taken. But more than this is required—the blood needs attention in order that the stomach may be strengthened, and the secretion of the gastric juices properly carried on. There is no other medicine offered the public that will act so promptly and effectively as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Proof of this is given in the case of Mrs. E. X. Doddridge, St. Sauveur, Que. In conversation with a reporter, Mrs. Doddridge said:—"For quite a number of years I have been a terrible sufferer from dyspepsia, accompanied by the sick headaches that almost invariably come with this trouble. I suffered from terrible pains in the stomach, bloating and belching with wind. All food seemed to disagree with me, and as a result of the trouble I was very much run down, and at times I was unable to do even light housework. I am sure I tried a score of different medicines, but without success, and as I am sixty years of age, I had come to believe that it was hopeless to expect a cure. A friend who had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with good results, urged me to try this medicine, and my husband brought home a couple of boxes. Before they were finished, I felt much better, and we then got another half dozen boxes, and these have completely restored my health, and I not only feel better than I have done for years, but actually feel younger. I very cheerfully recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to similar sufferers. If your dealer does not keep these pills, they will be sent, postpaid, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HOW TO CURE HEADACHE.—Some people suffer untold misery day after day with Headache. There is rest neither day or night until the nerves are all unstrung. The cause is generally a disordered stomach, and a cure can be effected by using Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, containing Mandrake and Dandelion, Mr. Finley, Wark. Lysander, P. A Jamaican Experience.

For some years after my marriage I lived at Old Harbor, a small place about 20 miles from Kingston. One day when a visit to my Kingston dressmaker was a necessity I ordered a young negro boy to get upon the rumble and drive me to the town.

I paid my visit to the dressmaker, and, receiving my frock, a light summer thing, from her, I placed it in the box beneath the buggy seat and drove on to my sister's, where I went in to escape the heated part of the day, giving my boy sixpence and bidding him see the sights and return at 4 o'clock.

He turned up punctually, with the grin still on his face, and in due time we reached Old Harbor once more.

When I went to take out my crispy muslin, I found, to my consternation, it was a wet, sloppy mass. No rain had fallen, and even then—

I turned to the boy: "Solomon, what in the world does this mean? How"—But the look of utter helpless amazement on his face stopped me.

"Lor', missus, it am queer, but not so queer as what done happen to me. Me bought a quattig (1½ d.) wort' of dat pretty ting dey calls 'ice' to bring home an show ma sister, an I put him in dar wid your dress to keep him safe, an now him gone for true, an how him get out I dunno wid you sittin on him all de time!"—Harper's Magazine.

BOOK AND HEART.

For many a year he grubbed among
The stalls where antique tomes lie piled,
And then alone when, for a song,
He bought some price, he ever smiled.
Staring at titles, off his eyes
Slanted aloft with eager looks,
As if he stood in paradise
'Neath trees of knowledge hung with books.

So long the reflex dull of calf,
Morocco, vellum, lit his face;
That it is leathern now by half,
And Time's deep tooling we can trace.
Volumes grew human in his care,
While he their form and semblance took,
Till men stood on the shelving there
And in the armchair lolled a book.

But books and men will fray and fade
As Care's rude finger turns the page,
Or in some sunless chamber laid
They warp and mildew into age.
The living leaves grow sear and wan,
The back knows many an ache and crook,
Till into limbo flung the man
And to the grave is borne the book.

Who knows: yon pile of ragged leaves
May, when some critic finds it there,
Be gathered up like golden sheaves
And worshed in beauty past compare.
E'en so, if aught of worth he find
Between its margins broad and white,
Some heavenly Crolier yet may bind
The bookman's soul in covers bright!

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. At the asylum we were much depressed by what we saw.

In the wilds of Patagonia
The natives speak her fame
And don the garments sent 'em, with tracts to supplement 'em,
With blessings on her name.

Her work is most unceasing
In every sphere and clime;

With an energy sublime.

The Japs Must Go.

The Chronicle of Spokane is authority for the statement that "Jim" Hill of the Great Northern railway has given orders that all Japanese employed on his railway must go as rapidly as white men can be got to take their places. The Japanese are employed, so it is said, through a contracting firm of Japanese at Seattle, at a rate of one dollar a day, the firm paying the men ninety cents on the dollar. The firm also supplies the Japanese laborers with all their food supplies, which the railway carries free. The Japanese have worked their way to St. Paul, where a gang was put to work one day cleaning up Mr. Hill's private car. They made a mess of it, putting ice in the stove instead of in the water tanks. This displeased Mr. Hill, and the order for the "Japs to go" was the consequence.—Tribune.

Died as Dream Said.

The Ridgetown Dominion records that a young man named Jenner of Raleigh Township for two different nights dreamed of falling off a load of hay, telling his wife of the great impression it made on his mind, so that when a neighbor wanted him to deliver some hay he very reluctantly put on a load for him. Before leaving home he carefully examined the build of the load and had his wife do the same. Kissing her good bye, he got on again, though she asked him to walk if he felt so nervous. The roads being rough he stopped a passer-by and had him see that all was right. Being reassured of its safety, he started on again, but had not gone far before the load upset, and in jumping off the opposite way to its fall, he struck head first, it is supposed, on the axle of the front wheel and never regained consciousness.

A SISTER.

BY GWENDOLEN OVERTON.

Army wives generally have unmarried sisters. These sisters always come out to visit them, and the rest goes by itself.

Mrs. Lorrilard had an unmarried sister. She was very attractive. She was far more attractive than Mrs. Lorrilard ever could have been. The girl's name was Spencer—May Spencer. She was 18 years old, if you took her word for it; and she was blond and pink and white and plump. She came from some place in Ohio, and she visited the Lorrilards at Stanton—which is in New Mexico, 100 miles from the railroad, across Dead Man's valley (there is always a Dead Man's valley) and some steep hills and a lava bed a mile wide. If you have never seen a lava bed, you cannot appreciate that. You might try to imagine the ocean lashed into fury by a simoon, then fancy its great waves and billows and swells changed suddenly to dark gray-brown stone at the height of the storm, and you may form a vague idea of what the lava bed between Fort Stanton and the railroad is like.

It frightened Miss Spencer badly. The ambulance went slipping, and sliding, and coasting, and thumping, and bounding over the one passable part, in a way that only an ambulance conducted by a driver who has spent his life on Arizona and New Mexico roads could possibly stand. It put all the laws of centripetal force and of equilibrium at naught. It and the four mules were laws unto themselves.

Miss Spencer was not accustomed to that sort of thing. She stood it as long as she could, and then she told Maj. Roche—in whose charge she was traveling—that she meant to get out and walk. She had bothered the major a good deal already, and he was getting tired, so he did not say anything, but simply told the driver to "slow up" and let Miss Spencer get out by herself.

She fell behind after a moment, and the ambulance went relentlessly on, creaking, flapping its canvas, clanking its chains, its brake screeching shrilly. And as it disappeared, sometimes lost to sight in a great hollow, sometimes toiling up a smooth face of lava, Miss Spencer felt herself abandoned, indeed, in a New Mexico desert under that terrible midsummer sun. The heat was fiery, scorching, parching. The sky was like hot blue glass. She wondered why, when the lava was hot enough to burn her feet through the soles of her shoes, it did not melt or grow soft. She kept on walking because she was afraid to stop. Twice she slipped and fell and cut her hands. Under the porous, piled-up rock, rabbits and owls and quail were hidden; there were snakes, too, and lizards. At first she was frightened when they scurried by her, but soon, with her head ringing and her eyes dazed with congested blood and her mouth open and as dry as flour, she did not even notice them.

She reached the end of the huge rock river at last, and found the ambulance waiting. The driver was asleep, and the major was drinking beer. He offered her some, and when she had drunk it she held out her broad little foot.

"My shoes are all cut to pieces, and they were new and awfully heavy."

"You should have kept still," he answered.

Now, Miss Spencer wanted sympathy, and when she didn't get it she took a dislike to the major; and because she disliked him, she eventually made him sorry.

For the first fortnight of her visit she was not pretty. She was sunburned from her passage of the lava sea. Her face was red and swollen, then blotchy, and lastly peely. After that she returned to the normal pink and white. She was the only girl at the post, and there was a bachelor, a brevet bachelor, a young contract surgeon, and Maj. Roche's son. The bachelor officer was studious—the kind that have much faith and think that the great fathers in Washington will reward lieutenants who pass high exams. and have ideas on interesting study and one which to be successful requires technical knowledge. In the large vineyards, as a rule, the owner himself gives personal supervision to every detail; sometimes a manager or overseer performs these duties. One of the largest growers in this section tells me that the most successful grower is the foreigner who with his family of eight or ten comes and leases or buys 25 or 50 acres of land, each member of the family having his or her part in the work to perform from spring until picking time, while the winter is devoted to the making of the baskets. Thus no outside expenditure is incurred and when the grapes are sold the proceeds return to the family as the profit on the individual labor of each member—quite in contrast with the large owner who is compelled to hire help to do each little thing, in addition to buying his baskets.

The Concord grape is the only variety of any consequence raised in this region, and some idea of the magnitude of the business carried on may be had when it is known that the shipments this year from Chautauqua county alone amounted to 3,500 car loads, 3,000 baskets of ten pounds each in each car. These are taken from the grower by some one of the numerous growers' associations, whose business it is to find a market. Strange as it may seem it is nevertheless true that three-fourths of them go to points west of Chicago, while the other one-fourth travels eastward. [illegible] of baskets [illegible]

The making of baskets is an important item. Many factories are employed. The price ranges from two to two and a half cents per basket; thus the grower who sends in his business in any way profitable must in addition to the cost of the basket realize at least

ALASKAN CANNIBALS.

Gold Seekers Will See Them En Route to the Klondike.

Queer Aborigines Whose Customs and Habits Are Based Upon Beliefs in the Supernatural.

Along the coast of southern Alaska dwell some very queer aborigines, as gold seekers flocking to the Klondike region will surely discover. They do the most of the freighting across the passes into the interior, carrying loads on their backs, but their population during many centuries has been so shut away from other tribes by gigantic ranges of snow clad mountains that they have developed a peculiar culture and customs unknown anywhere else. Hence the exceptional value of a monograph about them prepared by Dr. Franz Boaz, a distinguished ethologist, which is to be published shortly by the National museum.

These natives may be said to live largely in a world of imagination, inasmuch as their customs and habits of living are based to a great extent upon ideas and beliefs wholly supernatural. Creation, from their point of view, is peopled by strange monsters and demons, which, while morally hostile to man, may be rendered friendly and even helpful with the aid of certain ceremonials of a quasi religious character.

For example the most important of these monsters is a serpent which has a head at each end of its body and a human head in the middle. To touch this strange monster these natives believe is death, all the joints of the victim becoming dislocated, but specially favored individuals are enabled to perform wonderful feats by wearing a belt of its skin, while its eyes, used as sling stones, will kill any animal, even whales. Another of these fabulous beings is a wild woman who lives in the woods. She has enormous breasts, and carries a basket, into which she puts children whom she steals for the purpose of eating.

One of the most remarkable of the sort of dinner to which he was accustomed might be apt to disagree with him very seriously, he took to dining upon eggs, and he cooked the eggs himself. The repast might be a frugal one, but he could, at any rate, console himself with the reflection that it couldn't be toxic. That tyrant, if he read the scientific journals, would know better to-day, and, even if his hens performed their office in his presence, would be careful to wash the new-laid egg before he cooked it. For nowadays we have mycelium and the fatal spore. When, but yesterday, a hundred eggs were "set," with experienced hens to sit upon them, who never neglected their duty for a moment, the result was a bare score of chicks. On each unfruitful egg was presently remarked just the kind of smudge which has hitherto been held by connoisseurs to be the surest outward and visible sign of the bearness of an egg's laying. Science, however, decided that the smudge meant mycelium, that the spore had penetrated the eggshell, and had slain the chick within. And science proved its assertion by ocular evidence. Further, it showed that there was mycelium in the straw of the nests, that the straw had got a little damp, and that the hen had failed to hatch the egg because she had hatched the spore. But the spore will hatch just as well in the ordinary temperature of a room, and, once entire, does well within the human. Hence the ablutionary process in the case of smudged eggs of the most undoubted freshness is strongly recommended.—Pall Mall Gazette.

STAR CUSTOMER'S JOKES.

A Too Trustful Cashier Nearly Wrecks a Restaurant.

One of the attractions of a certain Chestnut street cafe is a beautiful Angora cat, which is generally very mild-mannered and ladylike, says the Philadelphia Record. The cat passes most of her time sitting upon the cashier's desk. She was posing there one day recently when the star customer went up to the desk to pay for his noonday meal.

"Did you ever tickle a cat's nose with a toothpick?" the patron asked of the cashier. "It has an awfully funny effect on the animal. Makes it sleepy." He had a toothpick in his hand, and, offering it to the cashier, said: "Take this and tickle the cat there with it."

The cashier took the little splinter of wood and passed the end of it over the nose of the drowsy Angora. The next instant puss emitted a scream of anguish and leaped many feet into the air. With tail erect she clambered up the wall, jumped over the bar, overturned a number of glasses and bottles and finally disappeared through an open trap into the cellar, where for five minutes she seemed to be having a fit. The cashier was pallid with fear. He couldn't imagine what had happened and the star customer had suddenly disappeared. After awhile the cashier examined the toothpick and found that the end which had tickled the cat's nose [illegible] generously daubed with to[illegible]
