GENERAL NEWS NOTES.

Jim Bates has been appointed a fire ranges for the C. P. R.

A paper mill is to be established in British Columbia at Swanson Bay.

Walter B. Laing, the barber, returned to Cranbrook last week from the east with a bride.

New York socialists wore buttons bearing the inscription "I am an undesirable citizen" in the May day parade.

There are said to be two white men for every job in the mines at Johannesberg, and the miners are becoming sick of the country.

The information that the Kootenay Central will be built, and built at once, is the best news the people of East Kootenay has had for some time.

Abe Ruef, the San Francisco boodler, has broken down and made a full confession. He has thrown himself upon the mercy of the court, and has asked for leniency.

The construction of a 200 ton concentrating plant on the Blue Bell mine on the shores of Kootenay lake will be begun next week, according to S. S. Fowler, manager of the mine. The mill will be at the mouth of the main adit tunnel on the property, nearly opposite the town of Ainsworth.

Was a Bad Actor.

It is said that James Mannarino, who lives on his ranch at Sirdar, rejoiced exceedingly when he learned that his nephew, Paul, had jumped from the train enroute to the penitentiary and was killed. The reason why James made the occurrence the occassion of so much hilarity and rejoicing, instead of mourning, was his confirmed belief that if the nephew ever succeeded in making his escape from the penitentiary he would not rest easy until he completed the work he began at Sirdar a few weeks ago. It appears that this was not the first time Paul Mannarino had been before the court on a serious charge. Before he left Italy he had killed a brother. He was tried and found guilty, but before the hour set for carrying out the sentence he escaped and came to Canada.

Touring the East.

Guelph Mercury: Mr. John Simpson, formerly of the Mercury editorial staff, now in Moyie, B. C., called on the old shop this afternoon. He is renewing old acquintances in Guelph and Elora, and on Monday leaves for Montreal, Boston, Washington, and finally the Jamestown Exposition.

Will Visit Ireland.

P. J. Bonner, foreman at tht St. Eugene, intends quitting the mine about June first and will leave on a trip to Ireland about a month later. He will take in the Dublin fair.

BUILDINGS GOING UP

Building Boom Has Struck Moyie.

CARPENTERS IN DEMAND

Macdonald, MacFarlane, Desaulnier and others are Building.

From present indications there will be considerable building done in Moyie this spring. At the present time work is being pushed on the Farrell block as fast as possible, and it will not be long until this building will again be occupied. The rooms on the upper floor have already been rented by Mrs. Lucas.

A. P. Macdonald has purchased the two Lynch lots on the corner of Queens avenue and Tavistock street and it is his intention to erect a comfortable dwelling this summer.

Alex MacFarlane has the lumber on the ground and will build a house on his lot on Tavistock street, not far from the Catholic church.

V. Desaulnier, of the Central, is looking for a suitable location, and when he finds it he will begin the erection of a residence at once.

There is a big demand for carpenters, and several could get steady employment here at good wages.

New Boats for Lake.

P. G. Routh received six new Peterborough canoes from the east this week, and they have been in great demand since he got them. They can be used either for rowing or paddling, and are just the thing for racing. There promises to be more boating than ever on Moyie lake this year.

Building Roads and Trails.

Don. McKay, district superintendent of roads, trails and bridges, was down to Kingsgate this week in company with Government Agent Armstrong. They were looking over the route between Curzon and Kingsgate with a view to improving the trail. Later a wagon road will be built. Mr. McKay stopped off at Moyie on his return and inspected the roads in this vicinity. He says he will have considerable work done around here.

It Seems a Mystery.

Two Swedes, brothers, named Sandstrom, apparently went insane at the same time while at Kingsgate on Friday night of last week. During the night they aroused the occupants of the hotel by their talking and praying and then both jumped through the window of the room in which they were sleeping. One made his escape and it is presumed he drowned himself in the Moyie river, as a body was seen floating several miles below. Constable Routh was notified and brought the other man to Moyie and later took him to Cranbrook, where he was examined as to his sanity. By that time he seemed to have fully recovered and he was given his liberty. The two brothers had been to Spokane and had been drinking some, but not heavily.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.
There is probably no medicine made that is relied upon with more implict confidence than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. During the third of a century in which it has been in use, people have learned that it is the remedy that never fails. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take. For sale by the Moyie Drug & Stationery Co.

LOCAL NEWS.

Harry Dimock is up from Kingsgate.

Mrs. Lomer is away on a trip to Spokane and Seattle.

G. A. M. Young and Al Brydle spent the first of the week at Cranbrook.

There is a good opening in Moyie for a paperhanger and painter.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Macdonald spent last Monday in Cranbrook.

J. R. Waldo, representing Foley, Lock & Larson of Winnipeg, was in town Monday.

Mrs. Jas. Wright returned Monday from Cranbrook, where she was visiting.

Moyie is a fisherman's paradise, and those who go angling for the finny tribe are always well rewarded.

A. J. Pilger, manager of the Moyie brewery, was transacting business in Cranbrook Tuesday.

Rev. G. H. Findlay returned Sunday from his visit to Nelson and Ainsworth.

A. W. Davis is now manager of the Eureka mine near Sandon. This property is owned by the C. M. and S. Co.

The inside of the Moyie Methodist church is to be lined with metallic ceiling.

Miss Hobson, who was conducting a millinery store here for Mrs. Todd, returned to Fernie Wednesday.

Jack McTavish of the Hotel Kootenay was transacting business in Cranbrook Monday.

All those who have signed the list as contributors to the new fire hall are requested to make their payments to the committee.

Geo. Whitehead is in the Cranbrook hospital with an attack of the mumps.

Miss Maude Bolen is now working in the postoffice and will be there while Miss Smith is taking her vacation.

R. H. Stewart, general superintendent of the C. M. & S. Co. returned to Rossland yesterday.

Joe. Goupill, was up from Fernie for a day this week. Joe is now employed as bartender at the Waldorf in Fernie.

W. D. Hill, wife and children were up from Cranbrook last Sunday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hill.

Mrs. R. H. Seabrook arrived this week from Montreal and will spend a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) Harvie.

W. P. Bromley, the jeweler, left Wednesday for Pembroke, Ont. It is his intention to return to Moyie and again engage in business.

Joseph Ryan, one of the brightest newspaper correspondents in the country, came up from Cranbrook Sunday to enjoy our scenery and mingle with the people.

There was a good sized gathering at the dance given by Messrs. Dimock & Haggerty last Monday in honor of their taking charge of the Cosmopolitan hotel.

There will be no services held at the Methodist church tomorrow, as Mr. Sowerbutts, the pastor, is away to the Boundary on a visit. There will be Sunday school as usual.

For Sale—Five bedroom suites, kitchen stove and utensils complete, tables, chairs, writing desk and other furniture. Price $150. Apply to Farrell & Smyth.

Mrs. Conrad and children left Sunday for Missoula, Mont., where they will spend the greater portion of the summer.

Rossland Miner: Mrs. R. O. Patterson arrived in the city last evening from Spokane, en route for Revelstoke, where her husband is in business.

W. B. Willcox, editor and publisher of the Phoenix Pioneer, one of the brightest weeklies in the province, was over in East Kootenay this week and spent a day at Cranbrook. Mr. Wilcox intends installing a typesetting machine in his office.

Word has reached here that the wife of Frank Filbert died at Edmonton on the 7th. Mr. and Mrs. Filbert left Moyie only a short time ago.

ROOMS FOR RENT—Three rooms over P. Burn's meat market. Married couple preferred

Dave Angus, who fell down a chute at the Lake Shore last week and was quite severely injured, is now out of the hospital and will be ready to return to work before long.

A social dance will be given at the Manhattan hotel next Monday evening, May 20th, and Mr. Johnston, the proprietor, extends a cordial invitation to everyone to attend.

Motor for St. Eugene.

The ore cars between the shafthouse and the concentrator at the St. Eugene mine are now hauled by an electric motor instead of with mules. So far the motor is used only between the shafthouse and the mill, but as soon as the wires are strung it will be run into the tunnel to the Moyie chute, a distance of nearly half a mile. For the present mules are used to bring the cars from the chute out to the mouth of the tunnel.

Beverly of Graustark

CHAPTER XVII.

SHE was torn by conflicting emotions. That the two friends had surreptitiously exchanged messages, doubtless by an arrangement perfected since he had entered the service—possibly within the week—could not be disputed. When and how had they planned the accidental meeting? What had been their method of communication? And, above all, what were the contents of the messages exchanged? Were they of a purely personal nature or did they comprehend injury to the principality of Graustark? Beverly could not, in her heart, feel that Baldos was doing anything inimical to the country he served, and yet her duty and loyalty to Yetive made it imperative that the transaction should be reported at once. A word to Quinnox and Ravone would be seized and searched for the mysterious paper. This, however, looked utterly unreasonable, for the vagabonds were armed and in force, while Yetive was accompanied by but three men who could be depended upon. Baldos, under the conditions, was not to be reckoned upon for support. On the other hand, if he meant no harm, it would be cruel, even fatal, to expose him to this charge of duplicity. And while she turned these troublesome alternatives over in her mind the opportunity to act was lost. Ravone and his men were gone, and the harm, if any was intended, was done.

From time to time she glanced back at the guard. His face was imperturbable, even sphinx-like in its steadiness. She decided to hold him personally to account. At the earliest available moment she would demand an explanation of his conduct, threatening him if necessary. If he proved obdurate there was but one course left open to her. She would deliver him up to the justice he had outraged. Hour after hour went by, and Beverly suffered more than she could have told. The damage was done, and the chance to undo it was slipping farther and farther out of her grasp. She began to look upon herself as the vilest of traitors. There was no silver among the clouds that marred her thoughts that afternoon.

It was late in the day when the party returned to the castle tired out. Beverly was the only one who had no longing to seek repose after the fatiguing trip. Her mind was full of unrest. It was necessary to question Baldos at once. There could be no peace for her until she learned the truth from him. The strain became so great that at last she sent word for him to attend her in the park. He was to accompany the men who carried the sedan chair, in which she had learned to sit with a delightful feeling of being in the eighteenth century.

In a far corner of the grounds, now gray in the early dusk, Beverly bade the bearers to set down her chair and leave her in quiet for a few minutes. The two men withdrew to a respectful distance, whereupon she called Baldos to her side. Her face was flushed with anxiety.

"You must tell me the truth about that transaction with Ravone," she said, coming straight to the point.

"I was expecting this, your highness," said he quietly. The shadows of night were falling, but she could distinguish the look of anxiety in his dark eyes.

"Well?" she insisted impatiently.

"You saw the notes exchanged?"

"Yes, yes, and I command you to tell me what they contained. It was the most daring thing I"—

"Your highness, I cannot tell you what passed between us. It would be treacherous," he said firmly. Beverly gasped in sheer amazement.

"Treacherous? Good heaven, sir! To whom do you owe allegiance—to me or to Ravone and that band of tramps?" she cried, with eyes afire.

"To both, your highness," he answered so fairly that she was for the moment abashed. "I am loyal to you—loyal to the heart's core—and yet I am loyal to that unhappy band of tramps, as you choose to call them. They are my friends. You are only my sovereign."

"And you won't tell me what passed between you?" she said, angered by this epigrammatic remark.

"I cannot and be true to myself."

"Oh, you are a glorious soldier!" she exclaimed, with fierce sarcasm in her voice. "You speak of being true! I surprise you in the very act of"—

"Stay, your highness!" he said coldly. "You are about to call me a spy and a traitor. Spare me, I implore you, that humiliation. I have sworn to serve you faithfully and loyally. I have not deceived you, and I shall not. Paul Baldos has wronged no man, no woman. What passed between Ravone and myself concerns us only. It had nothing to do with the affairs of Graustark."

"Of course you would say that. You wouldn't be fool enough to tell the truth," cried she hotly. "I am the fool! I have trusted you, and if anything goes wrong I alone am to blame for exposing poor Graustark to danger. Oh, why didn't I cry out this afternoon!"

"I knew you would not," he said, with cool unconcern.

"Insolence! What do you mean by that?" she cried in confusion."

"In your heart you knew I was doing no wrong. You shielded me then, as you have shielded me from the beginning."

"I don't see why I sit here and let you talk to me like that," she said, feeling the symptoms of collapse. "You have not been fair with me, Baldos. You are laughing at me now and calling me a witless little fool. You—you did something today that shakes my faith to the very bottom. I never can trust you again. Good heaven, I hate to confess to—to every one that you are not honest."

"Your highness!" he implored, coming close to the chair and bending over her. "Before God I am honest with you. Believe me when I say that I have done nothing to injure Graustark. I cannot tell you what it was that passed between Ravone and me, but I swear on my soul that I have not been disloyal to my oath. Won't you trust me? Won't you believe?" His breath was fanning her ear, his voice was eager. She could feel the intensity of his eyes.

"Oh, I don't—don't know what to say to you," she murmured. "I have been so wrought up with fear and disappointment. You'll admit that it was very suspicious, won't you?" she cried, almost pleadingly.

"Yes, yes," he answered. His hand touched her arm, perhaps unconsciously. She threw back her head to give him a look of rebuke. Their eyes met, and after a moment both were full of pleading. Her lips parted, but the words would not come. She was afterward more than thankful for this, because his eyes impelled her to give voice to amazing things that suddenly rushed to her head.

"I want to believe you," she whispered softly.

"You must—you do! I would give you my life. You have it now. It is in your keeping and with it my honor. Trust me, I beseech you. I have trusted you."

"I brought you here"— she began, defending him involuntarily. "But, Baldos, you forget that I am the princess!" She drew away in sudden shyness, her cheeks rosy once more, her eyes filling with the most distressingly unreasonable tears. He did not move for what seemed hours to her. She heard the sharp catch of his breath and felt the repression that was mastering some unwelcome emotion in him.

Lights were springing into existence in all parts of the park. Beverly saw the solitary window in the monastery farraway, and her eyes fastened on it as if for sustenance in this crisis of her life—this moment of surprise, this moment when she felt him laying hands upon the heart she had not suspected of treason. Twilight was upon them; the sun had set, and night was rushing up to lend unfair advantage to the forces against which they were struggling. The orchestra in the castle was playing something soft and tender—oh, so far away!

"I forget that I am a slave, your highness," he said at last, and his voice thrilled her through and through. She turned quickly and to her utter dismay found his face and eyes still close to hers, glowing in the darkness.

"Those men over there," she whispered helplessly—"they are looking at you!"

"Now I thank God eternally," he cried softly. "You do not punish me; you do not rebuke me. God, there is no night!"

"You—you must not talk like that," she cried, pulling herself together suddenly. "I cannot permit it, Baldos. You forget who you are, sir."

"Ah, yes, your highness," he said before he stood erect. "I forget that I was a suspected traitor. Now I am guilty of leze majesty." Beverly felt herself grow hot with confusion.

"What am I to do with you?" she cried in perplexity, her heart beating shamefully. "You swear you are honest, and yet you won't tell me the truth. Now, don't stand like that! You are as straight as a ramrod, and I know your dignity is terribly offended. I may be foolish, but I do believe you intend no harm to Graustark. You cannot be a traitor."

"I will some day give my life to repay you for those words, your highness," he said. Her hand was resting on the side of the chair. Something warm touched it, and then it was lifted resistlessly. Hot, passionate lips burned themselves into the white fingers, and a glow went into every fiber of her body.

"Oh!" was all she could say. He gently released the hand and threw up his chin resolutely.

"I am almost ready to die," he said. She laughed for the first time since they entered the park.

"I don't know how to treat you," she said in a helpless flutter. "You know a princess has many trials in life."

"Not the least of which is womanhood."

"Baldos," she said after a long pause. Something very disagreeable had just rushed into her brain. "Have you been forgetting all this time that the Princess Yetive is the wife of Grenfall Lorry?"

"It has never left my mind for an instant. From the bottom of my heart I congratulate him. His wife is an angel as well as a princess."

"Well, in the code of morals, is it quite proper to be so loyal to another man's wife?" she asked, and then she trembled. He was supposed to know her as the wife of Grenfall Lorry, and yet he had boldly shown his love for her.

"It depends altogether on the other man's wife," he said, and she looked up quickly. It was too dark to see his face, but something told her to press the point no further. Deep down in her heart she was beginning to rejoice in the belief that he had found her out. If he still believed her to be the real princess, then he was—but the subject of conversation at least had to be changed.

"You say your message to Ravone was of a purely personal nature," she said.

"Yes, your highness." She did not like the way in which he said "your highness." It sounded as if he meant it.

"How did you know that you were to see him today?"

"We have waited for this opportunity since last week. Franz was in the castle grounds last Thursday."

"Good heavens! You don't mean it!"

"Yes, your highness. He carried a message to me from Ravone. That is why Ravone and the others waited for me in the hills."

H HEYER

"Here is what Ravone says."

"You amaze me!"

"I have seen Franz often," he confessed easily. "He is an excellent messenger."

"So it would seem. We must keep a lookout for him. He is the go-between for you all, I see."

"Did you learn to say 'you all' in America?" he asked. Her heart gave a great leap. There was something so subtle in the query that she was vastly relieved.

"Never mind about that, sir. You won't tell me what you said in your note to Ravone."

"I cannot."

"Well, he gave you one in return. If you are perfectly sincere, Baldos, you will hand that note over to me. It shall go no further, I swear to you, if, as you vow, it does not jeopardize Graustark. Now, sir, prove your loyalty and your honesty."

He hesitated for a long time; then from an inner pocket he drew forth a bit of paper.

"I don't see why it has not been destroyed," he said regretfully. "What a neglectful fool I have been!"

"You might have said it had been destroyed," she said, happy because he had not said it.

"But that would have been a lie. Read it, your highness, and return it to me. It must be destroyed."

"It is too dark to read it here." Without a word he handed the paper to her and called the chair bearers, to whom he gave instructions that brought her speedily beneath one of the park lamps. She afterward recalled the guilty impulse which forced her to sit on the telltale note while the men were carrying her along in the driveway. When it was quite safe she slyly opened the missive. His hand closed over hers and the note, and he bent close once more.

"My only fear is that the test will make it impossible for me to kiss your hand again," said he in a strained voice. She looked up in surprise.

"Then it is really something disloyal?"

"I have called it a test, your highness," he responded enigmatically.

"Well, we'll see," she said and forthwith turned her eyes to the all important paper. A quick flash crossed her brow; her eyes blinked hopelessly. The note was written in the Graustark language!

"I'll read it later, Baldos. This is no place for me to be reading notes, don't you know; really, it isn't. I'll give it back to you tomorrow," she was in haste to say.

An inscrutable smile came over his face.

"Ravone's information is correct, I am now convinced," he said slowly. "Pray, your highness, glance over it now, that I may destroy it at once," he persisted.

"The light isn't good."

"It seems excellent."

"And I never saw such a miserable scrawl as this. He must have written it on horseback, and at full gallop."

"It is quite legible, your highness."

"I really cannot read the stuff. You know his handwriting. Read it to me. I'll trust you to read it carefully."

"This is embarrassing, your highness, but I obey, of course, if you command. Here is what Ravone says:

"We have fresh proof that she is not the princess, but the American girl. Be exceedingly careful that she does not lead you into any admissions. The Americans are tricky. Have little to say to her and guard your tongue well. We are all well and are hoping for the best."

An Awful Shock.

The deputy stage manager at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, at one time was a little man named Linders, who had a strange dislike of the ladies of the ballet and treated them rather harshly. He wore a wig, but the fact was not generally known. On one occasion, however, an enraged coryphee seized him by the hair, and off came the wig, exposing a shiny expanse of cranium. He at once dashed off to complain to Mrs. Harris, the manager's wife, but the good lady could only gasp in stupefied tones, "Good gracious, Mr. Linders, why, you are bald!" To which Linders instantly replied: "No, madam, no. My hair became loose with horror!"

TORTURING RHEUMATISM

Suffered for Five Years—Cured by Dr. Williams Pink Pills

Agonizing pains, sometimes in one part of the body, sometimes in another, more often in the back or joints—that's rheumatism. Each day makes the disease worse—increases the torture. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured thousands. They cured Mr. Horace Plante, of Sorel, Que., of a most aggravated case of rheumatism. I walked as if my boots were filled with pebbles. The pains, starting in my feet, spread to all parts of the body; my back and joints became affected. For upwards of five years I suffered the greatest agony. Often I was confined to bed, hardly able to move. Nothing seemed to help me. I despaired of ever being well again. By good chance Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were brought to my attention and I decided to try them. I got six boxes—before they were gone I felt a great improvement. I continued the treatment and my health gradually came back till now I do not feel the least pain—I am totally cured. It was a surprise to my friends to see me on the street again well and strong after five years of torture. They wanted to know what brought about the change. I told them Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for I took no other medicine once I began their use. Rheumatic sufferers, give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial; they will surely do for you what they did for me."

It is in the blood — poor blood — that such troubles as rheumatism, indigestion, dizziness, heart palpitation, anaemia, weakness and a host of other diseases find their root. It is the blood that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act on. They make it pure, rich, red and health-giving. That is why they cure all the common ailments of everyday life. Sold by druggists or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Danger In Linoleum Making.

In the manufacture of linoleum unprotected lights are allowed in the mixing department. This is on account of the great danger of exploding cork dust floating in the air. An additional danger in linoleum making is that the mixture of cement and cork dust has the unpleasant property of spontaneously igniting if left in a warm place. It is therefore customary to mix the material a sackful at a time in order to reduce the risks of an explosion.

Babies and Cocoa.

A Parisian physician, Dr. Varot, read a paper before the Hospitals Medical society the other day, in which he said that a certain number of children had come under his notice who had been fed regularly upon cocoa since they had been weaned. The children liked this diet and in many cases refused any other form of nourishment. However, they soon began to suffer from constipation and anaemia; they were puffy, pale, did not gain in weight and became nervous and irritable.

FIRED ONLY JOKES.

The Way Judge Thacher Dodged a Challenge to a Duel.

Documents in the Congressional library at Washington show that when the establishment of the mint was under discussion in Washington's time there were some amusing debates in congress concerning the devices the coins should bear. There is one account of a squabble over the design for the silver dollar.

It appears that a member of the house from a southern state bitterly opposed the choice of the eagle on account of its being the "king of birds," and hence neither suitable nor proper to represent a nation whose institutions and interests were wholly inimical to monarchical forms of government.

Judge Thacher in reply had playfully suggested that perhaps a goose might suit the gentleman, as it was rather a humble and republican bird and would also be serviceable in other respects, as the goslings would answer to place upon the dimes.

This reply created considerable merriment, and the irate southerner, considering the humorous rejoinder an insult, sent a challenge to Judge Thacher, who proudly declined it. The bearer, rather astonished, asked, "Will you be branded as a coward?"

"Certainly, if he pleases," replied Thacher. "I always was one, and he knew it, or he would never have risked a challenge."

The affair caused much mirth, but was finally adjusted, cordial relations being restored, the irritable southerner concluding that there was nothing to be gained in fighting one who fired nothing but jokes.

THE BRITISH BREAKFAST.

Trying In Its Monotony, Though the Food Is Substantial.

A distinguished author once described an unripe persimmon as a fine incentive to generosity, since we would rather give it to another than eat it ourselves. And perhaps the English breakfast may be likened to the early persimmon.

Monotony is the keynote of the early meal in a British household—not but that the food is good and substantial, but there is a sameness year in and year out about the dishes that is trying indeed to an American. Here is a list of eatables and drinkables made up from the breakfast menu of ten middle class English households and ten purely English hotels:

Porridge, served with sugar and milk; ham and eggs, eggs and bacon, grilled ham, boiled and poached eggs, fried sausages, dried fish (herrings or haddocks), dry toast, white or brown bread and butter, marmalade or jam, tea or coffee.

The man or woman who has been accustomed to break the fast with wheat cakes and maple sirup, followed by grilled bluefish and a juicy porterhouse or pork tenderloin, helped out by freshly ground coffee, cranberry jelly, Virginian honey and a choice of a hundred or more delights in the way of bread and freshly baked cakes, sits down to breakfast in England with a sigh.

HON. H. R. EMMERSON

Director of Record Foundry Co.

There are few men in the Maritime Provinces, or, for that matter, anywhere in Canada, better known to the public than the Hon. H. R. Emmerson, Minister of Railways and Canals.

Hon. Mr. Emmerson is a son-in-law of the late Charles B. Record, who, some 75 years ago established the Record Foundry and Machine Co., at Moncton, N.B., and is a heavy stockholder and a director therein. He is responsible for much of the untiring energy which has advanced this concern to a front rank in Canadian industries. The Record Foundry and Machine Co. now have works at Montreal and Moncton, and have also sales branches in Moncton, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver.

EXCITED NERVES, TWITCHING MUSCLES

System Exhausted by Worry and Loss of Sleep--- Perfect Health the Result of Using

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Such cures as this make it impossible to doubt the restorative influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. E. J. Vanderburgh of Eastern Welland avenue, St. Catharines, Ont., states: "For twenty-one years I was badly afflicted with heart trouble, nervousness and cramps in the limbs, also twitching of the muscles, and nervous headaches. I became weak, debilitated and emaciated. My condition was distressing and I was made worse through worry and loss of sleep.

"I tried a hundred remedies in vain, and reading about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I decided to try it. After having used half a dozen boxes of this preparation my old trouble had entirely vanished and I was enjoying better health than I had since girlhood. I am now past middle life and am in perfect health. I would not take worlds today and go back to my former state."

There is more or less mystery and doubt as to the specific action of many drugs, but it is positively and definitely known that iron forms new red corpuscles in the blood, or, in other words, makes the blood rich and nourishing.

But iron alone cannot be taken into a delicate stomach. The great secret of the success of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is in the way iron is combined with certain other restoratives so as to make a preparation that can be used with the greatest benefit by even the most weak and delicate person.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is also slightly laxative as well as tonic in influence, and while building up the system insures the regular and healthful action of the digestive, filtering and excretory systems.

If you would enrich the blood, strengthen the nerves and replace weakness and disease with health and vigor use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food; 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

The Mayflower's Passengers.

The Mayflower's passengers before landing drew up and signed a document which was to serve as the compact to bind them together. Here are the names of the signers:

Most people would think that as man is, with very few exceptions, "right handed" he would be at the same time "right legged." But this is not the case. Almost every right handed man uses his left leg more than his right. For instance, most people find it much more natural to go around circles to the right than to the left. That is because they start with the left leg. Being stronger, it is more readily brought into action, and it is on this account that bodies of soldiery always start to march with the left foot. Almost all courses for foot races are made out for running to the right, and dancers will indorse the statement that the majority of movements are far more easily executed in that direction. The left foot is the one that is placed in the stirrup for mounting a horse, and in jumping it is from the left foot that the athlete "takes off." Thus it will be seen, as a general rule, "right handed" people are "left legged."

A bride was sued in London for refreshments at her wedding feast. The list was four and a half gallons of beer, one quart Scotch, one pint Irish, one bottle gin, one quart of port, one pint of sherry, one bottle of claret, sodas, lemons.

ECZEMA AGAIN OVERCOME

ZAM-BUK CURES A CASE WHICH FOR TWO YEARS HAD DEFIED EVERY REMEDY TRIED

A Farmer's Grateful Testimony

No case of eczema, skin disease, or ulceration, should be despaired of until Zam-Buk has been applied. The case of Mr. Francis Penoit of St. Anne's (Man.), is a powerful illustration of Zam-Buk's efficacy. He says: "I suffered from eczema for two years, and tried a great number of remedies. None of them, however, seemed to do me any good. The ailment was mostly in my legs, and both these were actually raw from the knees down. A small sample box of Zam-Buk was given to me, and even so small a quantity as that did me a little good. I then obtained a proper supply, and by the time I had used a few boxes I was completely cured."

Zam-Buk differs from ordinary salves and embrocations in containing no animal oil or fat. It is compounded from rich, healing, herbal essences, and is an ideal natural combination of power and purity. It is highly antiseptic, and instantly kills bacilli and disease germs, which settling on to wounds and skin diseases set up festering, blood poison, etc. For cuts, burns, bruises, ulcers, abscesses, pimples, boils, skin eruptions, scalp sores, spreading sores, children's skin troubles, chafing sores, etc., Zam-Buk is unequalled. It also cures piles. All druggists and stores at 50c a box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 6 boxes for $2.50.

PEEVISH AND CROSS

Peevish, cross babies are sick babies—the well baby is always happy. Perhaps there may be nothing to indicate just what is the matter, but you may depend upon it there is something troubling the little one or he would not be cross. A few doses of Baby's Own Tablets will remove the cause and make baby happy. They are a certain cure for the minor ills of babyhood. Thousands of mothers keep them continually in the house to guard against the sudden illness of baby. A Tablet now and again will keep the little one well. Mrs. James Jewers, Beaver Harbor, N.S., says: "I have given Baby's Own Tablets to my baby as occasion required since she was a day old. They have always helped her, and now at a year and a half old she is a fine healthy child. The Tablets, I think, are indispensable to mothers of young children." THE CRAFTY WOLF.

Stories of His Man Eating Feats Said to Be Untrue.

A skeptical person calling himself St. Croix has been trying to find out whether wolves and bears are maligned by the popular stories of their man eating ways and writes his conclusions for Recreation.

First he tried running down the stories told in newspaper dispatches. Foiled in this effort, he turned to the Indians. They knew the gray wolf, having wintered and summered with him. Had they ever known of an Indian being killed by one? N-no, but Mingan was very crafty and very much to be dreaded.

Quite so. But, once for all, had he ever to their knowledge killed a man? No, but they had heard— So it went—always the same intangible, unconfirmed rumor and the same absence of proof.

"Now for a few facts as to the wolf," writes St. Croix. "He can go eight days without food and can then eat forty pounds of meat at a sitting, so the Indians say. This is pretty fair for an animal weighing but eighty pounds. Yet we do not know the length of the sitting.

"The wolf will not venture on glare ice; he never crosses a lake until there is enough snow to hide the ice. To wetting his feet he is as averse as the domestic cat. He will not kill his game in the shelter of the forest, always driving it into some open place for the kill.

"When chasing a deer, he goes at a leisurely lope, sitting down at intervals to give the most dolorous and bloodcurdling howls. This drives the poor victim into a wild gallop and soon exhausts it, and as the wolf never tires he is sure sooner or later to catch up with the quarry.

"In winter the deer often makes for some wild rapid, into which it plunges, knowing that the wolf will not follow. Too often the deer drowns, but better such a death than one by the fangs.

"In summer a couple of wolves will secure all the deer they need by very simple tactics. Having put up the quarry, one wolf drives it by easy stages to some little lake—I speak now of the Laurentian country—and on reaching the shore the deer plunges unhesitatingly in, for its instinct tells it the enemy will not dare to follow.

"So on it swims, while the pursuer sits on his haunches and howls dismally, no doubt because he sees his dinner escaping. At length the tired deer drags itself wearily from the water and shakes the drops from its coat on the sun warmed strand. Then the companion wolf, which has waylaid its coming, springs at its throat, and when the first wolf joins him they have a gorge that makes them independent of fate for a whole week."

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

There is a little wolf and a little rabbit in every man.

One way to be unhappy is to envy the happiness of others.

A lucky man always points with pride to his good judgment.

How many things there are in a grocery store you never will call for!

If you want to oblige a friend, do something for him his way instead of your own way.

A great many people see themselves as others see them, but they don't believe what they see.

Ever occur to you that many of your sorrows are silly sorrows—that is, sorrows that are not important?

Education is a great thing, no doubt, but the best housekeepers didn't get their knowledge out of books.

The Impression He Gave.

His honor Judge Willis, on one occasion going home in an omnibus which landed him at an inn known as the Green Man, as usual passed the time in friendly discourse with the passengers. To one housewife who had been marketing he remarked that, owing to free trade, she was enabled to buy much more for her money than if she lived in a tariff country. To others he talked freely and dispensed counsel and advice indiscriminately. Arrived at his destination, he intimated to the conductor, "I want to get out at the Green Man." Accordingly the omnibus slowed down, but as he was leaving his seat a lady touched him on the sleeve and earnestly inquired, "My good man, don't you think you've had enough?"—London Tit-Bits.

"Old Hundredth."

"Old Hundredth" has been variously ascribed to Martin Luther, Dr. John Dowland and William Franck. Dr. Lowell Mason wrote quite a treatise on the old tune in 1852, saying emphatically that it was written by Guillaume (William) Franck in 1543. But later musical historians and antiquarians who have investigated more closely say it was composed by Louis Bourgeois, born about 1500 and died about 1572—some say in the massacre of St. Bartholomew, in 1551-52.

Time's Changes.

"You," said she as she came down the stairs leisurely pulling on her gloves—"you used to say I was worth my weight in gold."

"Well, what if I did?" he asked, looking at his watch for the third time in fifteen minutes.

"And now you don't think I'm worth a wait of two minutes."

They Go Together.

"Any bottles? Any rags?"

"Queer combination you deal in, my friend."

"Not so queer. People as has bottles generally has rags."

Know His Place.

The village carpenter had given so generously of his services and sound advice toward rebuilding the little memorial chapel that when it was completed all the summer people agreed that he should be asked to speak after the luncheon which was to follow the dedication exercises. The day and the carpenter's turn came duly.

"Ladies and gentlemen, dear friends," he began, his good brown face very red indeed, "I am a good deal better fitted for the scaffold than for public speaking."

Then he realized what he had said and sat down amid roars of laughter.

THE MOON'S VOLCANOES.

Causes of the Gigantic Craters and Great Fissure Eruptions.

It is evident to any one who glances upward at the moon that its volcanoes are on an immensely larger scale than those which stud our globe. One explanation, now abandoned, is that the force of gravitation being there only one-sixth that of the earth the matter expelled from a crater would be spread far more widely, and explosions would be generally on a far more magnificent scale. Professor Pickering quotes this theory only to refute it in some comparisons which he made between the great volcanic region of Hawaii and one of the smaller craters of the moon. The facts seem to him to be that the larger craters on the moon came into existence when the thin, solid crust covering the molten interior was, owing to the solidification and contraction of the crust, much too small to contain the liquid material. The craters were therefore formed by the lava bursting through the crust and so relieving the pressure. Later, after this relief had been found and the crust had thickened, the interior regions by cooling shrank away from the solid shell, which was now too large and, being insufficiently supported, caved in, permitting the great fissure eruptions which produced the so called lunar seas. These extensive outflows of lava dissolved the original solid shell whenever they came into contact with it, much as they do in the present day in Hawaii. Had the moon been much smaller these eruptions might not have occurred at all, and if the moon had been much larger their relative size would have been greater. Most probably on the earth similar outbursts were greater, and our original gigantic craters were destroyed by the outflow of the earlier archaic rocks which completely submerged and dissolved them.—London Post.

THE ESKIMO BABY.

How the Little One Is Carried and Cared For by the Mother.

The arrival in the world of the youthful Eskimo is not greeted by the orthodox cradle and swaddling clothes. Practically till he can shift for himself he lives absolutely naked inside his mother's sealskin blouse, skin to skin keeping him warm.

This arrangement allows the mother to go about her work almost immediately, and she can also travel and hunt without a perambulator and without having to leave any one at home to "mind" the baby. The mother's dress is almost exactly like the father's, except that it has a long sort of tail reaching nearly to the ground, embryo, no doubt, of the modern "train."

Spared the miseries of soap and water and early weaned to the readily swallowed diet of blubber and raw seal meat, the infant rapidly develops that invaluable layer of subcutaneous fat which, while it enhances the "jolly" appearance of the lads and the shapeliness of the maidens, assists materially in economy in clothing.

Thus in their frigid clime, once in their skin tent, the whole family will divest themselves of every stitch of clothing, unembarrassed by the fact that so many families share the tent with them. Sociability is early developed when one's next door neighbor on each side is only separated by an imaginary line between the deerskin you sleep on and the one he uses. The winter deerskin serves as bed and bedding at night and as parlor furniture during the day. Community of goods is almost imperative under this arrangement. Thus when one kills a seal all are fed, and likewise when he doesn't all go hungry together.

Magnetic Mediums.

"You've got a pretty bad headache, sir, haven't you?" asked the barber, giving a dry shampoo.

"That's just what's bothering me," replied the man in the chair. "But how did you know?"

"Tell it by my wrists and hands," explained the barber. "You and I are what they'd call magnetic mediums. And the electricity in my fingers takes the pain out of your head. But I get it. That's why I know. My hands are aching now. I don't often strike a customer like you, however, or I'd have to go out of business. I'll bet my arms ache for a half hour after you're gone."

FAMILIAR QUOTATIONS.

Sources of Many Sayings We Are Frequently Using.

Some of the most familiar quotations have the most unfamiliar sources. Two, which are ordinarily attributed to the Bible, are: "Cleanliness is next to godliness" and "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb." The former is from the "Journal" of John Wesley, one of the founders of Methodism, and the latter is from Sterne's "Sentimental Journey." Sterne was a rector of the Church of England.

"Better late than never" is an everyday expression, yet few know it to be from Don Quixote. "A thing of beauty is a joy forever" is of most familiar utterance. It occurs in Keat's Endymion. "Brevity is the soul of wit" is in daily use by people who do not remember that it was written by no less a personage than Shakespeare in "Hamlet."

"Care will kill a cat, therefore let's be merry," has a Shakespearean sound, but in truth is from the pen of George Withers.

He that complies against his will
Is of the same opinion still.

A well-known expression, yet few people have ever read Samuel Butler's "Hudibras," the great satire in which it occurs.

"For men must work and women must weep" has been made more familiar through the poem, Kingsley's "Three Fishers," being set to music.

In Scott's "Marmion" occurs the couplet:

Oh, what a tangled web we weave,
When first we practice to deceive.

A quotation every child hears in its lessons on integrity.

The hostess, wishing to pay delicate tribute to her guest, speaks of her visit as being "Like angel visits, few and far between," which expression originated with Thomas Campbell in his "Pleasures of Hope." "Coming events cast their shadows before" is from the same source. Milton wrote "They also serve who only stand and wait." "Damn with faint praise" is from Alexander Pope, as is also: "Order is heaven's first law." Another familiar quotation from Pope is: "Hope springs eternal in the human breast," from his "Essay on Man," and yet a fourth well-known Pope quotation is: "A little learning is a dangerous thing."

Dryden is responsible for: "None but the brave deserve the fair," and also: "Men are but children of a larger growth," while from Thomas Gray we have: "Where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise."

In Oliver Goldsmith's beautiful "Vicar of Wakefield" we find the following paragraph:

"Well, upon my word, Mrs. Primrose, you have the finest children in the whole country."

"Ay, neighbor," she would answer, "they are as heaven made them, handsome enough if they be good enough, for handsome is as handsome does."

College of Forestry.

At the Canadian Institute, Toronto, last week, Thomas Southworth took up the subject: "Do We Need a College of Forestry," and in a clear, incisive manner argued that such an institution, to affiliate with our agricultural schools would be of highly educative benefit in the preservation of our splendid timber resources in the north, and an important factor in the gradual reforestry of the denuded districts of older Ontario.

The scientific value of such a college would in a few years establish as a common practical knowledge in forest propagation what is now confined to the few who have made a special study of the question, and would enable our agricultural districts to regain in timber what is essential to the successful economy of every farming country, as well as the climatic benefits in the way of regular rainfall and atmospheric moisture, both of which are essential to the highest results in crop production.

Prof. E. J. Zavity of the Guelph Agricultural College gave an interesting lantern exhibition of "waste land planting," showing the success that had been attained in forest tree propagation and culture at the Ontario Agricultural College, as well as instances of successful reforestry in various parts of the province.

Fought In the Rebellion.

Prince Edward county can proudly lay claim to having as a resident one of the oldest men of the Province in the person of Mr. John Pymer, who recently celebrated his one hundred and third birthday. This very remarkable man is now living with his daughter, Mrs. Lovell, in the village of Bloomfield, near Picton. Despite his very long life, he is comparatively hale and hearty, though necessarily feeling his weight of years. While he has been out of his home very little this winter, he was quite active about the village last summer. More than a centenarian, Mr. Pymer was born in Liverpool, England, on April 12, 1804. He was married when 29 years of age, and with his wife emigrated to Canada in 1835. In 1837, during the rebellion, he was present and engaged at the battle of the Windmill near Prescott. For more than fifty years he farmed in the Burr settlement in this county. However, since the death of his wife eighteen years ago he has lived retired. During his long life he has never used liquor or tobacco in any form, and he attributes his long life to the abstemious habits he has practised.

Entr'acte Thirst.

If I were a man, confesses a writer in London Opinion, I would invariably before going to a theatre take a ten-mile walk, smoke a couple of strong cigars, and drink three bottles of lemonade or sodawater.

Then when I had comfortably settled into my stall I should sit there as contented as a log, and should not be impelled by an ever-recurring, insatiable thirst, by an uncontrollable muscular restlessness, or by a fever for nicotine, to tread upon the toes, disarrange the hair, and exasperate the tempers of the hapless women who should chance to be along the route of my perpetual goings out and comings in.

Independent Girls.

The girl of today no longer smokes the fragrant cigarette by stealth up the chimney of her bedroom. She plays golf with her men friends; she shops in Sloan street, unattended by a duenna; she drives in hansoms alone; she comes and goes as she pleases—in a thousand ways she tastes the joys of independence. And what is the result? A girl when she marries is much more of a companion for her husband, can manage his home better and takes up the role of hostess as to the manner born.—London World.

Whaling as Modern Business.

Whaling is a small enterprise compared with the great industry of long ago. The old lure, oil, is scarcely thought of today, the vegetable world having so completely supplanted the leviathan in the arts. The bone's the thing. It has never been higher in price, some $6.50 a pound today, and a right whale will average more than 25,000 pounds of bone. Two whales will yield a ship a dividend. Five is the average catch. It costs about $15,000, including advances to the personnel, later deducted from their catch percentage, to outfit a ship for a summer in the Arctic. Often the catch is worth $120,000, of which about $25,000 goes to the skipper. There's money in whaling, often more than in mining and salmon canning, the north admits, and so even greater lawlessness exists than in those pursuits.

CATARRH CANNOT BE CURED.

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they canot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in the country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials free.

Minard's Liniment, Lumberman's Friend

English veterinary surgeons have discovered a new disease in dogs—motor heart. It appears that dogs are very fond of riding in motor cars, but that their hearts can't stand it.

Some persons have periodical attacks of Canadian cholera, dysentery or diarrhoea, and have to use great precautions to avoid the disease. Change of water, cooking, and green fruit, is sure to bring on the attacks. To such persons we would recommend Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial as being the best medicine in the market for all summer complaints. If a few drops are taken in water when the symptoms are noticed no further trouble will be experienced.

A Small Pill, but Powerful.—They that judge of the powers of a pill by its size would consider Parmelee's Vegetable Pills to be lacking. It is a little wonder among pills. What it lacks in size it makes up in potency. The remedies which it carries are put up in these small doses, because they are so powerful that only small doses are required. The full strength of the extracts is secured in this form and do their work thoroughly.

CARD PLAYING.

It Brings to Light Many Curious Phases of Human Nature.

Card playing gives an observer an insight into one of the many curious phases of human nature—the almost universal belief in luck even among educated men of more than average intelligence.

One player I knew well—I must admit he also believed in astrology—absolutely refused to play cards during one special month in each year, because he had reason to believe that that month was unlucky to him. Yet he was one of the most level headed card players I have known and in ordinary matters a man of great common sense.

I was at one time intimately acquainted with a club where the stakes played for were comparatively high and where the players were, with hardly an exception, hard headed men who were keen about winning and who were at the same time a singularly social, kindly and liberal minded body of men.

Among the members was a very pleasant, quiet old gentleman whose only occupation was to spend his days at his club, and especially in its card room.

At the period when I first knew him he had ceased playing cards himself, but was extremely fond of watching other people play. He was the most inoffensive of spectators, never made comments or criticisms and simply amused himself in watching the fall of the cards.

Gradually, however, experience showed or was imagined to show that any player whose cards he overlooked held bad hands with, as it was asserted, an extraordinary regularity.

He invariably asked permission before sitting down beside a player, and the moment the player held bad cards he offered, without being asked, to leave the table, an offer which, I am ashamed to say, was invariably accepted.

To put the fact plainly, he was tabooed from watching card playing because he was supposed to bring ill luck by the mere fact of his vicinity.—Pall Mall Magazine.

MARRED THE MUSIC.

Secret of the Poor Performance at a High Class Concert.

"Musical critics sometimes complain of what they call the roughness of an orchestral performance without always considering that the cause may be found in the instruments rather than in the performers." At least so says the leader of a St. Louis organization.

"There was some criticism of the orchestral numbers given at a concert last winter, but I know that the fault was not that of the men so much as of the instruments. Almost every player has at least two, sometimes three or four, instruments, and one at least is the best he can afford to buy. This is especially true in the case of the strings, for accidents will happen, and to be prepared against them string players have usually two or three violins—one for ordinary work, like teaching, dancing and rehearsing, and a superior violin for solos and concerts.

"Now, it happened that on the evening of the concert in question the weather was atrocious. It was snowing and sleeting and raining by turns. A genuine violinist thinks about as much of his best fiddle as he does of his youngest child, and so on the concert night the string player thought to himself that he wouldn't take out his good fiddle. It might get damp or he might fall off the street car with it and smash it to splinters, so he resolved to leave it at home and take his everyday fiddle, thinking that in the ensemble nobody but himself would notice the difference.

"But every other string player thought the same thing, so most of them left their best violins at home and brought their practice instruments. The public didn't notice the difference, but the players and the leader did, and in an audience there are always people with almost miraculous ears for variations of tone, and some of these did the complaining."

Delaware's Ancient Law.

Delaware's ancient law requiring a bridegroom to give the state an indemnity bond never causes any serious trouble, and if the penalty was enforced it must have been a long while ago. The man going on the bridegroom's bond engages that the children that may come of the prospective union shall not become a charge upon the state.

Not a Nauseating Pill—The excipient of a pill is the substance which enfolds the ingredients and makes up the pill mass. That of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills is so compounded as to preserve their moisture, and they may be carried into any latitude without impairing their strength. Many pills, in order to keep them from adhering, are rolled in powders, which prove nauseating to the taste. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are so prepared that they are agreeable to the most delicate.

WILL KISSING BE PROHIBITED

The Osculatory Process Denounced by Scientists as Extremely Dangerous—How the Danger Can be Removed.

A keen discussion is being carried on by some of the best scientists as to the danger and "crime" of kissing, led by Dr. Somers, Health Officer of Atlantic City, and Dr. Nalpasse, of the Medical Faculty of Paris. They charge the kiss with spreading grippe, scarlet fever, measles, mumps, whooping cough, typhoid fever, diphtheria, erysipelas, meningitis, tuberculosis, and many infectious skin diseases. They suggest legislation on the subject, and the posting of notices in railway stations, street cars and other public places, but they say it would be useless to post them on verandahs, in cosy corners, porches, shady nooks, or moonlit lawns. They also propose compulsory legislation for methods of disinfection of the mouth and purifying the breath, especially with a view to the protection of the innocent babies who are particularly subject to infection. The greatest and most effective purifier and germ destroyer known to medical science for the mouth, throat and breath, as well as for the blood, stomach and lungs, is Psychine, that triumph of the medical world that is attracting almost universal attention because of the wonderful results attending its use. One of its recent triumphs is told as a matter of experience in the following brief statement:

Dr. Slocum Co.

I am sending you photo and testimonial herewith for your great remedy PSYCHINE. Your remedies did wonders for me. I was about 28 or 30 years of age when I took PSYCHINE. The doctors had given me up as an incurable consumptive. My lungs and every organ of the body were terribly diseased and wasted. Friends and neighbors thought I'd never get better. But PSYCHINE saved me. My lungs have never bothered me since, and Psychine is a permanent cure.

MRS. LIZZIE GARSIDE,
519 Bathurst St., London, Ont.

Psychine, pronounced Si-keen, is admitted to be the most wonderful of all disease and germ-destroying agencies. For building up the run-down system and curing all forms of stomach troubles and diseases of the chest, throat and lungs or head, it is simply unapproachable. It is a reliable home treatment. The leaven of reform may be said to be getting in its work in Russia; a judge has been asked to resign. They used to use dynamite to get rid of obnoxious officials.

It is possible that Chas. H. Moyer served a term in the Joliet penitentiary for burglary, but every fair minded person will be like the man from Missouri—he will have to be shown.

The Victoria board of trade has put itself on record as in favor of removing or reducing the head tax on Chinese. This action, however, will give the country but little alarm, as Victoria is but a small spot on the province, and there are too many people in it who believe as Dennis Kearney did that "The Chinese Must Go."

Randall H. Kemp, a mining man of considerable note, who at one time lived at Kaslo, but who is now editor of the Northwest Mining News at Spokane, says:

I have been in Missouri, in Portland and Astoria, Ore., and in other mossgrown communities, but never saw such an element as had control of Kaslo from five to eight years ago. It was a gang determined that no one who wanted the country to go ahead should live if they could prevent it.

Luckily this can never be said of Moyie, as she has no "dead ones" or "knockers."

Odd Fellows at Fernie.

There was a big gathering of Odd Fellows at Fernie Wednesday evening on the occassion of the visit of F. E. Simpson, the grand master for B. C. Seventeen members of the Cranbrook lodge and two members from the Moyie lodge were in attendance. The members of the Fernie lodge are past masters in the art of entertaining and they certainly gave the visiting members the time of their lives. After the session of the lodge a banquet was given at the Waldorf hotel, which is conducted by "Bob" More, one of the best fellows on earth. The next big meeting of the order will be held in Moyie, when both the Cranbrook and Fernie members will be here.

Relief from Rheumatic Pains.

"I suffered with rheumatism for over two years," says Mr. Rolland Curry, a patrolman, of Key West, Fla. "Sometimes it settled in my knees and lamed me so I could hardly walk, at other times it would be in my feet and hands so I was indapacitated for duty. One night when I was in severe pain and little from it my wife went to the drug store here and came back with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I was rubbed with it and found the pain had nearly gone during the night. I kept on using it for a little more than two weeks and found that it drove the rheumatism away. I have not had any trouble from that disease, for over three months." For sale by the Moyie Drug & Stationery Co.

How to Avoid the Mumps.

When you eat buscuits, how do you know that the unseen germ lurks not in the nutritious dainty? All LOCK BRAND package buscuits are not only EVER FRESH but GERM PROOF. Did you ever think of the significance of a germ proof buscuit package? Do you know that "the mouth is the greatest receptacle of germs about the human body" owing to the fact that microbes lodge unseen in the food you eat. "CLEANLINESS is next to Godliness." The ancient Jewish law requiring the washing of hands before partaking of food is strongly endorsed by modern science, as this ensures the elimination to a certain extent of the possibility of the unseen microbe, that lodges on your hands every hour of the day, being conveyed to your food. But your grocer need not wash his hands every time he serves you a package of "Ever Fresh" buscuits. These come direct to you clean from the machine in air proof packages. The machines for making these packages insures cleanliness, freshness, flavor and wholesomeness. There are three coverings separating these biscuits from the air, thus protecting the biscuits from moisture, odor and the LURKING GERM. As the railroad has superceeded the stage coach, so is this package making a great inroad on the old time methods of serving biscuits to the consumer.

If you are progressive, ask for The Lock Brand Biscuits.

Good Words for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

People everywhere take pleasure in testifying to the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mrs. Edward Phillips of Barclay, Md., writes: "I wish to tell you that I can recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. My little girl, Catherine, who is two years old, has been taking this remedy whenever she has had a cold since she was two months old. About a month ago I contracted a dreadful cold myself, but I took Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and was soon as well as ever." This remedy is for sale by the Moyie Drug and Stationery Co.
