A New Mining Centre.

Vernon is now likely to become a mining centre, as well as the hub of a wonderfully fertile agricultural country. W. J. Armstrong and other residents of Vernon, who have a mining claim on Swan lake, seven miles north of Vernon, have a proposition from a mining man of note, in England, to bond their property and work it for one year. Arrangements are almost sure to be made. The mine is on the wagon road between Vernon and Larkin, and is a veritable quarry of mineral, assaying from $3 to $13 a ton, free milling gold. This may yet prove to be a second Treadwell mine. Symmons Bros. and C. F. Costerton, also of Vernon, have located claims back of the B. X. ranch close to town that have assayed up to $200 per ton. Quite a number have promising prospects in gold. The Armstrong property is claimed to be practically inexhaustible.

NORTHERN KOOTENAY.

Captain John Grant was in town Wednesday. He seems very well pleased with the progress made on the Maple Leaf, Illecillewaet, where he has been superintending operations, and has just let a contract for 200 feet of tunnelling. A force of men will be at work throughout the winter but their work will be confined entirely to development work. No effort will be made to ship ore until the proposed tramway and concentrator are put in. The captain has visited the new finds on the north fork of the Illecillewaet recently and is very enthusiastic about them, speaking in the highest terms not only of the mineral but also of the lay of the country which is comparatively level. They had eight horses with the party and packed out over 200 pounds of samples which have been forwarded to Vancouver for a mill test. The assay received heretofore from these finds gave $5.50 in gold and over 400 oz. in silver per ton besides which there is every indication of very large ore bodies, all of which has helped to convince the captain that the north fork will be a great producer, probably the greatest in the country.

E. T. Kinman came in from Trout Lake Thursday. He has been at work on the American, of which he is one of the owners, and will put in the winter there. They will work six or eight men all winter and expect to have the distinction of being first to ship ore from the Trout lake district. They will commence shipping as soon as the weather permits of rawhiding over the trail recently completed, and count on delivering from 80 to 100 tons at Tacoma this winter. The ore of the American, at present prices is worth about $110 per ton. Mr. Kinman disposed of a quarter interest in the American to Abrahamson Bros. yesterday. He will return almost immediately with rawhides, ore sacks and several tons of supplies for the winter's work.

Andy Parks and J. D. Sibbald returned from the Bend Wednesday evening. Bedrock had not been reached when they left the Park mine last Sunday and there is a probability that work will be suspended for the winter as no provision has been made for winter working and the frost is beginning to interfere with the operations.

Tom Downs and Charlie Holden came up from Trout Lake this week. It is said that they are negotiating a transfer of the Silver Cup. This is one of the highest grade propositions in the Trout Lake district. Wm. Dixon has been examining the claim for the prospective purchaser, who is said to be Dan McGillivray.

Every one who comes up from Trout Lake is enthusiastic about the prospects of the camp. They look for a rush in there next summer and feel confident it will occur. Claim owners are doing more work on their properties than at any time previously.

Horne's boat returned from the bend to-day. It will start for Trout lake Monday with six tons of supplies.

Howe and Anderson have got their supplies up and started work on the Gold Yam, Carnes creek.—Mail.

A STORY OF TWO BEARS.

A. W. Wheeler, a prominent miner of Ainsworth, on Kootenay lake, is undoubtedly the oldest white resident in this section of British Columbia. That is one of the pioneers who have remained here continually since first setting foot in this portion of Her Majesty's domain.

Naturally Al. is a veritable mine of old time reminiscences, but his innate modesty prevents him from giving utterance to his experiences, when the bulk of the population of this country was the noble Siwash.

Recently a scribe, who occasionally pencils a line for THE LEDGE, happened to be in Ainsworth and to him Al. related two bear stories which came under his observation, and as they are a little outside the bounds of such yarns they are hereby given publicity.

It was about the middle of June,

1884, when Mr. Wheeler and Henry Tobias, his companion, first arrived on Kootenay lake and camped at the Warm Springs, now called Ainsworth. After looking over the country they decided it was a healthy place to prospect for mineral. Accordingly they returned by row boat to Dave McLaughlan's, on Kootenay river, where they had left their main store of supplies and outfit. While rowing up the Kootenay they were attracted by the wild cries of an Indian. Rounding a bend they came in sight of a Siwash in a canoe who was circling around a black bear in the water, and at the same time giving vent to terrible yells. Soon another Indian in a canoe came in sight from up the river, he like his brother Siwash, circled around bruin. Finally Indian no one drew so near the bear he could reach him with his paddle, raising the same he brought the sharp edge down with great force across the small of the animal's back, completely disabling him, then the Siwash took the bear by the head towed him ashore where the work of butchering was completed.

A year or so later Mr. Wheeler and Alex. McLeod also now a resident of Ainsworth, were working on Patolea claim and had "Skeokum Pete," since then killed by his brother, and another Siwash helping them one day Pete asked a lay off so as to go hunting. His request was granted as the camp was out of fresh meat. Mr. Wheeler furnished him with a modern winchester for the trip. Late that night Pete returned. He had nothing to say to his white brother but kept up a pow-wow with his dusky companion. The following morning Pete stated he had killed a monster bear which would require the entire force of four men to bring to camp. Mr. Wheeler examined the gun and counted the cartridges and found that not a shot had been fired from the weapon. However he went with the others and found a huge bear lying dead on a rocky knoll. We questioned as to how he had killed the animal, Pete stated he had come upon bruin while he was asleep. Picking up a club he hit it a terrific whack over the head breaking the club, the bear opened his jaws and started for the Indian when Pete jabbed the jagged end of the stick in the bears mouth, down his throat and ruptured his juglar, causing him to bleed to death.

Miss Adair has gone to Sandon and will remain a few weeks.

A report has been circulated during the past few days that the Kaslo & Slocan Railway have bought the Silverton town site and have decided to extend the road to that point.

MINING NOTES.

Happenings of Interest Among the Treasure Vaults.

The Dardanelles are shipping ore to the Everett smelter.

The Last Chance is making preparation for stoping ore.

The Monitor winter quarters are now finished and mining commenced.

Raymond King has now control of the Slocan Star mine and concentrator boarding houses.

Crown grant for mineral claim Loudoun has been received by the proprietors, Harris and Sproat, upon which most of Sandon is built.

The Slocan Star is working 30 men and shipping a car a day. This mine will ship 10,000 tons next year.

The Mountain Chief is actively engaged, and the blasting can be heard very distinctly in New Denver.

The Kalispell mine on the Lemon creek divide, will work this winter and it is also expected that some work will be done on some of the other claims in the group.

About 30 tons of ore have been shipped from the Lucky Jim during the past summer. Forty feet of a tunnel has been drilled, and there is now 500 feet of work done. The owners purpose working all winter.

Some of the men employed on the Deadman have been laid off as the ore-house is filled with ore and is awaiting snow for shipment. The force will be increased now that the desired snow has come.

The boys from the Exchange mine were in town this week and report a splendid showing in the mine, the pay streak has enlarged considerably and they intend shipping 200 sacks of ore as soon as possible. A trial shipment along with the Howard Fraction will be made on today's boat.

The S. S. W. Hunter went down to Slocan City to-day, her cargo consisting principally of winter supplies for the Enterprise on ten mile creek.

The turkey-dinner given Thanksgiving night by New Denver Ladies' Aid proved not only enjoyable but successful from every point of view. There being no program provided for the occasion but that of a few instrumental pieces accompanied by the clash of dishes and the out spoken enjoyment of the guests, there ensued after dinner a very pleasant social chat in which all heartily indulged. Despite the large number in attendance there was a large quantities of good things left and a ten cent supper was given on Saturday night. At this, one gentleman thought to assist, and, with Thursday's dinner fresh in mind, appeared with a half-gallon cup and sauce to match. After a goodly number partook of the tea five-minute speeches were given, the subjects being chosen by drawing, an interesting and profitable evening was spent.

COEUR D'ALENE NUGGETS

Prospected for the Benefit of Former Residents of that Camp.

WALLACE.

James Manning of Mullan died at the Sisters' hospital.

H. L. Chamberlain of Osburn, has been seriously ill for several weeks with a complication of diseases.

Two men tried to burglarize Geo. McKinniss, of Kellogg, Sunday night. T. L. Mooers nipped the project in the bud.

The Equal Suffrage club gave an interesting entertainment at the Carter house Friday night in honor of the 86th birthday of Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

Fred Harris agent of the Rand Drill company of Butte, Montana was interviewing our mining men this week in the interests of the firm which he represents.

WARDNER.

Mrs. W. F. Goddard went to Spokane on Tuesday.

D. R. Cameron returned from a visit to Spokane Monday.

Our doctors report considerable sickness among our citizens.

Mr. Geo. H. Trumble has about recovered from his late illness.

Major Lockman of Wallace was among our Wallace visitors this week.

Andrew Goddard, after a lengthened absence, has returned to Wardner.

T. N. Barnard the photographer of Wallace was in Wardner on Thursday.

The last Chance Mining Company has received a number of ore cars of extra large size.

The well known machinist Menno Unzicker of Helena, Mont. has been in town during the week.

William Heath's new two-story building opposite the Spokane hotel is nearing completion.

J. C. Allen representing the Spokane Chronicle was doing the town in the interest of his paper this week.

W. N. Morphy has returned from the county seat where he has been in attendance on the District Court.

Geo. Bitner has returned from his fishing and hunting trips and looks as if he enjoyed his outing very much.

"The Kidd" saloon was opened on Wednesday night by Geo. B. Kidd in the Weber building opposite the green grocery.

The Bunker Hill tramway was stopped for two or three days this week for repairs. A section of new cable was put in over the town.

Editor Langrishe has been confined to his room for the past week. He is now much improved and expects to be able to be out again soon.

F. A. Stephens of Osburn was in town Thursday peddling ducks. He raised 150 ducks this year at a cost of $1 apiece. He was selling them at 75 cents apiece.

Mrs. Geo. W. Harris, wife of our postmaster has been appointed to the position of assistant postmaster and has become quite an adept at the general delivery window.

The three Frue concentrators recently purchased by the Last Chance Company from the Fay Templeton Company are about in place, and will soon be at work on Last Chance ore.

The Stenwinder tramway was started up the first of the week. The leasers report good ore and expect to make a good clean up. C. K. Baunle has the contract for running the ore through the concentrator.

S. G. Herrington of Mo., a brother of our present physician J. J. Herrington and also of our county coroner W. F. Herrington of Wallace, arrived last Saturday. He will more than likely remain in our town.

John L. Smith has been very busy this week receiving the stock and fixtures for his new and commodious saloon adjoining the Spokane hotel. The Brunswick-Blake Collendar Co. of Chicago furnished the complete outfit and it is the finest in Wardner. Jack will be ready for business in a very few days.

County commissioner James Lyle and two other Wardnerites have returned from a hunting and fishing trip up on Pine creek. They succeeded in killing a blacktail deer, a bobtail cat and a few rabbits. Mr. Lyle reports finding a cedar tree on the head waters of Pine creek which measured sixteen feet across the stump.

ODD TALKS WITH OLD TIMERS.

By CARIBOO in the Province.

We were telling stories in which the late Sir Matthew Bailey Begbie figured when cut short no doubt to make room for the many more good things which had to find a place in The Province of October 26th.

But enough of story telling. Let us now take up our talk where we left off. It brought us to the year 1863 and left us at Barkerville, not much of a place at the time, as we have seen. Up to this date the more ardent spirits had pushed their way in and for the hardships they endured as the pioneers of the country very many of them had a good pile to show. In the following year, 1864, came the big rush when the country was fairly inundated by all sorts and conditions of men—especially conditions. Men who had had any experience in mining came fairly well prepared, but they were in the great minority. Such wild stories had gone abroad as to the richness of the country that an idea appeared to prevail that all one had to do was to come in and help himself to gold. That inordinate influx, I am convinced, has done more than anything else to retard the development of Kootenay and Cariboo. Men who could not and would not be a success anywhere flocked in and when they failed to find it the veritable Eldorado they had pictured to themselves they cleared out again to give the Balloon Country the worst name they could conceive.

Hundreds of these fellows came into the country penniless, doubtless in the hope of finding employment, but when it offered they could not work. It was "every man for himself and the Lord for us all" then, so that the stranger in a strange land, while he might meet with sympathy, could not rely on practical help. The scenes in Victoria during this period have already been described in our "talks" by old timers who were eye witnesses. I was up country at the time, but if they were worse here than they were up there it would be impossible to exaggerate. I have seen scores of men come into Barkerville dead broke and so thoroughly done up by their long tramp as to be practically unfit for any class of work, much less the arduous work of a miner. What did we do with them? Well, what could we do? To feed all hungry tramps, when everything one consumed cost $1 per pound, was a degree of philanthropy to which none of us could well aspire. Yet to let these poor devils die of starvation we could not. A sip here and a bite there kept them alive until they were able to do something—if it were only to make their way across the border or back to the coast. How they managed to struggle on as far as they did is a mystery to me. One poor fellow in particular I remember. He came into camp one night asking something to eat for his sake. He was in appearance the most perfect type of a rowdy, or lowest grade of tramp that one could well conceive—tattered clothes, almost shoeless, and a beautiful pair of black eyes. There were also traces of blood on his face. I felt inclined to order him off, but one of the boys more charitably disposed handed the stranger a cake and proceeded to question him. The fellow, after all, was not as bad as he looked. He had slept the previous night, he explained to us, near a swamp and the mosquitos had almost eaten him alive. Hence the black eyes and blood stains. I could then believe his story for I have seen horses in a pack train stampede when attacked by these pests. Any one who has followed a train in that country in the warm season must have noticed how the poor horses, hungry and fatigued though they be, will gather round the camp fire, their instinct teaching them that the smoke will keep off the little pests. The poor fellow to whom I allude soon afterwards developed into a good miner—and a successful one at that.

A christening, I need scarcely say, was a rare ceremony in Cariboo in the early days. There were no children there to be christened, except, indeed, those of the aborigines, and they at the time knew nothing of the advantages or benefits of a godfather or godmother. But we had a christening without a child. The ceremony was performed by the late Rev. Mr. Evans one bright Sunday morning in August, 1864, in the presence of a large and distinguished crowd. And as if to insure that everything was done according to law the late Sir Matthew Bailey Begbie, Judge Cox and Judge Reilly were present. All the miners of the district gathered round, and with due solemnity the parson named Cameron, town, in deference to the wishes of "the people" and the poor fellow we used to call Millionaire Cameron. There was prayer, the singing of a hymn or two, and a nice little sermon. Service over we proceeded to drink the health of Camerontown. If the liberality and enthusiasm displayed on that occasion could have made the place anything like what we wished for, Camerontown would long since have been the most populous and prosperous city in the province. Oh, what a time we had! The following morning some of the boys were looking for a shoe-horn to get their caps on. The next time I met the parson was at the laying of the foundation stone of the old church at the corner of Broad and Pandora Streets, lately occupied by the Salvation Army.

In the same year (1864) the first two white women that ever put foot in Barkerville came there. They were Mrs. Cameron, whose husband ran a boarding house at Richfield, and Mrs. Lawless. The latter was an old lady, about sixty years of age, when she joined us. She was housekeeper for her son Johnny, who at one time ran a gin-mill and gambling house, and came up from Queensboro as New Westminster was then called. I think it was in this year also that a branch of the Bank of British Columbia and another of the Bank of British North America were established in Barkerville.

The banks, as may be supposed, were not substantially or elaborately built. They were wooden shacks, but the amount of gold they handled that year is scarcely exceeded by a twelve month's transactions in the Victoria headquarters of to-day. There were no absconding bank clerks—one man in each bank did the work of manager, teller, cashier, etc., etc. There were, however, too many people interested in the concerns to give a burglar any show. The Gold Escort consisted of twelve mounted men well armed and fourteen horses. By these the precious metal was carried to the coast, each man being in charge of 200 pounds of gold. It was carried in brass canisters encased in leather. A couple of the original bags may be seen in the Pioneer Hall, Broad Street, any day. There were a few dangerous places along the route—places at which the escort might be effectually attacked by robbers—and at these the men dismounted and walked behind their horses. Their instructions were in case of attack to shoot the brutes and fight for the gold. But the emergency never arose. In individuals or small parties of miners were frequently attacked and robbed and in too many instances murdered for their gold. Hence it was that we were fond of company in our travels through Cariboo. We were always expecting to be surprised by one or other of the murderous band who frequented the country about this time, and always tried to be prepared for an attack. Of course there was a good deal of unnecessary fear entertained all strangers being eyed with suspicion.

I remember on one occasion when coming down to Yale getting quite a respectable fright. We had camped for the night and had just completed our evening meal when we heard what sounded like an army of desperadoes approach. Every man of us was up in arms. The spokesman of the approaching party advanced and announced himself as the Rev. Mr. S—. He requested that he might be allowed to camp on the same ground and seeing there was no apparent cause for alarm we consented and tried to make the visitors as comfortable as possible. One of our party suggested to the new comers that they need not build a fire as ours was going, and while the others were unpacking invited the parson to help himself to a meal which we had partially prepared in view of an early start the next morning. There was a large pan of bacon and beans in view and these the Rev. gentleman attacked with wonderful vigor. Now 'tis a well-established fact that the bracing air of the mountains has an appetizing effect upon most people, but we never until this particular occasion had anything like a correct conception of the powers of the air upon a man's appetite. The mess in tended for our camp disappeared gradually but surely from before the parson and those of us who had the curiosity to watch him operate. He was not invited to breakfast next morning. We afterwards learned that whenever and wherever this gentleman took a meal in Cariboo or Kootenay he was charged double fare. The story is told of him that on one occasion having been served with his double allowance he called for a few more beans, "just to finish with the bacon," and then "a little more bacon to finish the beans," and again beans for the bacon and bacon for the beans. At last the boarding-house keeper suggested, "now, parson, you must make up your mind which you will have—the bacon or the beans the beans or the bacon. You will never get through if you don't." History does not record the decision of the gentleman with the appetite.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1895.

Christmas is about due, and it promises to be a time of great joy in the Slocan this year.

Thanksgiving Day was generally observed in the district, and its advent is marked by turkey feathers in many a back-yard.

We have received a stock of fine cuts and when the holiday season is past we intend to use them in illustrating some of the startling events in the Slocan.

The Prospector at Rossland has improved since R. W. Northey bought an interest. He does most of the writing, and evidently uses Pratt as a paper weight to hold down light editorials.

The Kaslo & Slocan is being operated by the company who own it. It is a well-built road and will prove a bonanza to its owners. With two railroads to compete for freight the mine owners ought to be able to make money faster than we do.

Edwin Hall Warner contributed a pretty story of Mexican life to the latest Argonaut, entitled, "The Tortures of Doubt," and tells of a poor Mexican flower-seller's jealousy of an American fine lady. Mr. Warner has a happy faculty of making the actors in his tales seem very real, and his pictures of Spanish-American life are full of quaint and picturesque scenes.

New Canadian Enterprise.

The Dominion Developing and Mining Company has been chartered, with headquarters in Vancouver. Though the prospectus is not yet out numerous shares have been subscribed for. The officers are Jonathan Miller postmaster, president; Dr. Milne, Victoria, vice-president; J. J. Banfield, secretary. The object of the company, which is purely Canadian, is to encourage Eastern Canadian capital to invest in the mines of the Province. J. J. Banfield goes east shortly to complete arrangements. Among the directors are Emerson Coatsworth, M.P., East Toronto; R. A. Pyne, Registrar of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Toronto; D. L. Lockerby, wholesale grocer, Montreal; W. B. Stevens manager of the Western Trust and Loan Company, Montreal; Benjamin Douglas, Westminster; A. Williams, M.P.P.; J. Macquillan, manager of the Dominion Building Association, Vancouver, and many other leading Canadians. The mining boom is practically on here and the object of the company is patriotic as well as industrial, and all possible will be done to prevent American capitalists corraling the best mining properties in the Province. Commissions from eastern capitalists have already been obtained to acquire suitable mining properties.

HOSPITAL ITEMS.

The condition of A. J. Gaebel is not improving as rapidly as could be desired, although no serious change is apprehended.

The condition of Peter Kindel, of the Slocan Star, has considerably improved in the last few days, his prospects of recovery are much brighter.

Wm. Bennett, of the Slocan Star, is laid up with mountain fever complicated with pneumonia, his condition is not unfavorable and it is hoped that he will be convalescent in a few days.

Archie Cooper, of Sandon, was brought in on Sunday last suffering from a stroke of complete paralysis of the right half of his body, his condition has so far remained unchanged, but hopes are entertained of his recovery.

W. Merkley of this town had the misfortune to have one of his fingers badly smashed by a falling rock in the Currie mine. The injured member was dressed on Sunday last, and is hoped that amputation will be unnecessary.

The hospital on Saturday last was the scene of a festive gathering, the occasion being the marriage of Miss Anna Thompson to Mr. Julius Wolff, both of the hospital staff. The Rev. Father Peytavin officiated and Dr. Brouse presided at the breakfast, which though perforce quiet was a thoroughly enjoyable function. The convalescent patients also had the pleasure of drinking to the health of the happy couple.

Paul Brodlegen of the Slocan Star paid the Doctor a visit yesterday and had a dangerous piece of steel removed from his eye.

Frank Griffeth, of the Enterprise, is being treated for extensive charbon on the right hand. He will probably soon be able to resume work.

Joe Fountain came in from the Alamo last week suffering with a slight attack of Pluro-pneumonia, but has left completely recovered.

Dan McDonald of the Robert E. Lee suffering from insomnia spent a few days at the hospital, but was soon able to go on his way rejoicing.

FIGHTING FOR SPOKANE.

Notwithstanding all that has been said to the contrary the Spokane Spokesman-Review is still of opinion that Spokane must and will remain the supply point for West Kootenay. In referring to the subject it says: "Several contestants in British Columbia are fighting for a part of the trade of the Kootenay, Revelstoke, Vancouver, Victoria and Nelson. The visit of the British Columbia board of trade to the Kootenay was for the express purpose of establishing trade relations. It will be difficult for Victoria or Vancouver to wrest the trade from Spokane. Many articles both in dry goods and groceries must be purchased in the United States, pay a duty, then be shipped to the coast and back again to Kootenay; while Spokane, right under the border and only a short distance from the scene of greatest activity in British Columbia, can successfully compete with the Vancouver merchant. Spokane is alright and will continue to sell goods at Rossland, Nelson, Kaslo, Three Forks and other points within easy reach.

THE HORSELESS CARRIAGE.

The town of Tunbridge Wells was all excitement on the appearance there of horseless carriages and motor tricycles which were exhibited at the fair ground last month. Large crowds came to the town to witness an exhibition which will help to mark another step in the progress of civilization from every side. The signs are coming that the days of the horse's usefulness are fast passing away. Sir David Solomon appeared in a horseless carriage, known as a "vis-a-vis." It was covered with morocco with a removable hood. The motor was behind, the driver sat on the back seat steering and governing being effected by means of a handle bar as on a bicycle. This regulated the speed, etc. Another handle was used to back it. On a stop the carriage was stationary yet the motor continued to work. The motor is $\frac{3}{4}$ of h.p. It can travel on a good road at 20 miles per hour, and average 12. It carries enough benzine to run it 200 miles. It weighs 1,200 pounds on the road. Another much larger carriage was exhibited to carry a heavy load at a slower speed, also a barouche with a petroleum motor on small wheels in front. Great interest was taken in the tricycles, of which several were exhibited. One worked with a petroleum motor ignited by an electric spark. It weighed 90 pounds, and behaved successfully. It is regulated by handles, the pedals being necessary for starting, but while in motion they are not used. A speed of 30 miles an hour can be maintained on good roads. Another was exhibited of $\frac{3}{4}$ of one h.p. It ran by mineral naphtha. It also made good time, but was not considered as good as the former one. The London Chronicle had long articles on the exhibition, showing the advantages of these vehicles, and urging their adoption in England.

GOOD THINGS.

A young type-writer (says the Syracuse Post) had just been hired by a prominent lawyer. She had never done regular work before, and was somewhat nervous. The lawyer settled himself back in his chair and began dictating a brief. He had pegged away about five minutes, when the girl stopped, with a horrified look on her face. "What's the matter?" asked the lawyer. "Would you mind saying that all over again?" the girl asked, with eyes full of tears. "Why?" "I forgot to put any paper in the machine!"

The London critic, Clement Scott, and Mrs. Kendal have been at loggerheads for many years. Scott's version of the cause of their enmity is interesting. "It was years ago," he says, "when the Kendals were on a provincial tour. I had gone behind the scenes to see one of the actors, and by accident I walked right into Mrs. Kendal's room. That good lady was about to begin her toilet. She shrieked: 'Go away! Go away!' I turned, shut my eyes tight, bowed, and said: 'Madam, I need no persuasion.' And to this day I have never been able to tell which she resented the more—my intrusion or my remark."

Charlotte Cushman was once filling an engagement at the opera-house in Belmore. A man in the gallery created such a disturbance that it seriously impeded the progress of the play, and finally brought it to a stand-still. Immediately the audience, furious with anger, cried: "Throw him over! Throw him over!" Miss Cushman stepped to the edge of the footlights, and, in a sweet and gentle voice, exclaimed: "No, I beg of you, dear friends, don't throw him over. Kill him where he is!" This story has been told of a good many other actresses beside Charlotte Cushman. But we will let it go at that.

During the Chilean War, Americans were very badly treated, and "Fighting Bob" Evans did not like it. All classes down there use tremendous quantities of garlic, and the result is unpleasant, for your nose is offended constantly, even in the street. One night a boat was sent ashore from Captain Evans' ship, and, believing it safe, the sailors who had acted as carmen left it on the beach for a few minutes while they went to stake their thirst. Upon their return they discovered that a party of the Chileans had loaded it with stones. "Fighting Bob" was fighting mad when he heard of it next day, and was asked what he was going to do about it. "Do about it?" returned the sailor; "why, I'm going to turn my men into traveling arsenals, and if the thing ever happens again, or if our flag is again insulted, I'll make hell smell of garlic!"
