Mackenzie MLA Don Lockstead is claiming the government suppressed and ignored an internal report on B.C. Ferries which recommended a 50 per cent fare increase. The MLA said the report also recommended a rate structure based on length of the vehicle, seasonal rate structure, larger ferries and lower fares for foot and bus passengers.

Lockstead told The Times September 1 that a copy of the report had been mailed personally to opposition leader Dave Barret last week. Barrett made the document known at a press conference in Victoria September 1.

"The report commissioned by the cabinet's environment and land use committee was available to the government last January," the MLA said, "but presented April 8. We know Transport Minister Jack Davis must have had access to the report before that. Even after the report was available and in the hands of the minister, he still commissioned the Price-Waterhouse report even though Price-Waterhouse in their covering letter to the report said the ten days they were given was not enough time to do a proper report on the system."

Lockstead said the report was mailed personally to Barrett and the opposition leader was declining to say who mailed it to him.

Outling the recommendations in the report, Lockstead said they included a fare increase of 50 per cent on B.C. Ferries. The minister chose to increase the rates by 100 per cent in June. A rate structure based on length of vehicle was recommended in the 200 page report, Lockstead said, as was a seasonal rate structure. The government adopted a flat rate of $10. The report also recommended commuter rates which the Sunshine Coast got only after much public protest, a ferry blockade and a threatened second blockade.

"The report recommended a far decrease for foot and bus passengers," Lockstead said, "and it also recommended the use of larger ferries because of the decreased cost per unit for a car."

The MLA said the report also recommended the controversial Iona Island ferry terminal proposed for south of Vancouver to take some of the pressure off the other terminals. He said the report recommended it because of the minimal environmental impact of the area.

Lockstead said the report was commissioned by the NDP and was one year in the preparation. He said the people involved in the report were Charles Dalfen, then depty minister of transport since resigned, A.D. Crerar who was director of the environmental and land committee use secretariat since left the government, and Charles Gallagher who

Workers stay on job at junior secondary

Work on Sechelt Junior Secondary School will be going ahead despite a threatened lock-out by the Construction Labour Relations Associations.

The lock-out, called over a contract dispute between management and plumbers, takes effect September 7.

"We may be taking over and subcontract ourselves if the lock-out is not settled over the weekend," Roy Mills told the Times. "I shall be entering into an agreement, if need be, with the carpenters' union."

Mills has already been in touch with Nick Pordovinkos, an official in the carpenters' union.

"They've been told to come to work on Tuesday since they'll be working no matter what," Mills added.

The board considered subcontracting during the lock-out this summer but decided against it.

The earlier lock-out delayed construction of Sechelt Junior Secondary School by one month. New opening date for the school is the beginning of October.

"The first lock-out was a nuisance," Mill said. "This second lock-out could really put the screws on things."

Mills has sent wires to Labour Minister Allan Williams and to the Construction Labour Relations Association asking them to designate construction of schools and hospitals as emergency services and not subject to the lock-out.

Industrial zoning change concerns area residents

Residents in and around Cameo Lands subdivision in Wilson Creek are concerned about a move to turn part of the subdivision into an industrial park. A protest meeting was held at a home in the area and several objections to the proposal were voiced.

The land is presently zoned RII residential; but an application is before the Sunshine Coast Regional District to change the zoning to MI which a regional district spokesman said would be light industrial. The matter goes to a public hearing September 13.

The subdivision has three blocks of 12 lots on Field Road between Gun Club Road and Wilson Road. The proposal is to rezone the northernmost block of 12 lots to MI industrial. It is this proposal which has upset the residents and property owners.

"When I bought this land a year and a half ago," resident Norm Hoffar told The Times, "I signed an restrictive covenant which said that I had to observe certain standards in the neighborhood. Now, a year and a half later, the owner wants to rezone a third of the land industrial. We signed the covenant for protection and now I'm wondering where the protection is.

According to the protest group, Henry Hall, the owner of the development, plans to use the 389 foot by 236 foot area to be rezoned as a plant to manufacture prestressed concrete walls for construction purposes. "I have the feeling," Hoffar said, "that if Mr. Hall hadn't owned that land, we would not be looking at industry there."

Charles Stevens, also a resident of the area, said the residents who attended the protest meeting stated concern over noise and dust pollution, septic effluent, the closeness of the operation to the homes, loss of resale value of their lots, environmental hazards, a lack of a greenbelt area between a residential and an industrial zone and possible drainage damage of Chapman Creek, a spawning creek.

"The problem we are looking at, beyond this one," Hoffar said, "is that if it can happen here, then it probably can happen everywhere. People think they are safe when they buy a lot, but it just isn't so."

He added, "We realize there is a shortage of industrial land here, but why infringe on residential land? There is a large industrial area planned for around the airport. That is where this should be, not here." Hoffar said 14 of the 24 lots were sold.

The group expressed a concern that the regional board did not have a noise bylaw. "They could keep up noise all night long there and we have no protection. There's nothing in the bylaws which say they have to put up a noise break or restrict the heights of the building to one or two stories. The bylaw says they can go up to 33 feet high. Mr. Hall has said he would put a noise break around the area, but there is nothing that says he has to."

Talking about the proposed concrete products from the plant, Stevens said, "Let's face it, concrete products are not light. It's going to take heavy trucks to get them out of there. Sure there would be trucks coming from the airport site as well, but when the new highway goes in, the truck traffic could be diverted that way."

The residents said their subdivision was fully serviced including paving and underground wiring and was covered by a restrictive covenant which limited the types of activities they could carry out there.

"We can't have an outside clothes line for example," Hoffar said, "and then they want to put in a cement plant less than 100 feet away? This is supposed to be a democracy."

A spokesman for the Sunshine Coast regional district said the proposal was first set before the board earlier this year and it was given approval in principle at that time for the owner to go ahead with the rezoning. A rezoning, he explainnd, involved amending the zoning bylaw and advice was given to wait until the new zoning bylaw No. 76, was back from Victoria.

The spokesman said that the bylaw still is not back and the owner of the land is anxious to go ahead so has applied for the rezoning under the old bylaw No. 35, knowing a second rezoning will have to take place when the new bylaw comes in.

The rezoning bylaw was given first and second reading and a public hearing mas been set for the Wilson Creek Hall September 13 at 7:30 p.m.

"The directors are supposed to go into the

PLANS TO REZONE the block of lots outlinnd by the broken line have met with protests from residents of the subdivision and adjoining areas. Plans are to put an industrial park including a cement plant in the lot. Field Road is the road to the airport in Wilson Creek.

Raise for co-ordinator

Provincial Emergency Plan co-ordinator Art McPhee is getting a raise, with or without provincial government money.

At present the civil defense co-ordinator is paid $2,250 per year. The provincial government was approached to increase the co-ordinator's salary to $3,600 after Gibsons, Sechelt and the Regional District agreed that the salary should be increased.

"The province told us they would only pay $2,250 until April 1977," regional district administrator Ann Pressley told The Times. "After that they will consider it for the next budget."

The regional board and the village of Sechelt have agreed to pay for the increase in the co-ordinator's salary if the increase is not approved by the provincial government. Gibsons' council has not met since the increase was proposed.

The increase will cost the regionhl board $810 per year and the villages $270 per year each.

Sechelt council discussed the matter in a closed meeting last week.

At the recent regional board meeting, a formula was worked out where the region would pay 60 per cent of the increase and the villages would pay 20 per cent each.

No control over fog

There are some things over which no one has any control and one of them is fog.

An aircraft carrying copies of the Peninsula Times sat in a fog-bound Powell River airport last Wednesday while subscribers on the Sunshine Coast checked their mailboxes to find them Timesless.

The newspapers were supposed to be on the 6:30 a.m. flight from Powell River via Tyee; but the weatherman said no. The airport was still fogged in for the 9 a.m. flight and finally got off the ground at 11:30 a.m., arriving at the Sechelt airport just after noon.

That, unfortunately, was too late for the very patient mail sorters to get them on the rural route trucks, so some residents got their Times a day late last week. We apologize.

Housing plan examines area

The Rural and Remote Housing program is "actively looking" into the building of homes in Gibsons and Sechelt, according to program director Michael Bentley.

So far eight units have been designated for Gibsons. Although no units have been designated for Sechelt, Bentley told The Times that he and his staff, "have been to Sechelt and are discussing ways to get land in Sechelt for the program.

"It's a little too soon to say how we will tackle it," Bentley commented. "We have to find land and builders so that we can put together housing at a reasonable price."

The Rural and Remote Housing program was first established in 1975. Last year the program built 365 homes in B.C.

Rural and Remote Housing is a joint provincial and federal program designed to provide homes for families with low and moderate incomes.

Mortgages for the homes are provided by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

All homes are built to National Building Code standards and three or more bedrooms.

'Hate to leave area' says RCMP corporal

The statements about leaving an area with mixed emotions probably never applied more than to RCMP Cpl. Bill Van de Braak leaving the Sunshine Coast.

Cpl. Van de Braak is being transferred to the Vancouver Marine Division of the RCMP after more than three years on the Sunshine Coast with the Sechelt RCMP detachment.

He came to the Sechelt RCMP detachment in August 1973 as master of the RCMP boat Duncan based in Madeira Park. During that time he also looked after the policing of the Pender Harbour area where he lived. When the Duncan was transferred from the area, Cpl. Van de Braak and Constable Bob Prest were put into regular service with the Sechelt RCMP.

Recently, he was told he was being transferred to the Vancouver marine division. The notification came about the same time as the Sechelt detachment was told it would be getting the 33 foot police boat Advance. Cpl. Van de Braak said he would like to stay in the area to work on the Advance; but is just as happy to be going to the Vancouver detachment.

"They will probably want me to run one of the 41-footers (police boats) that patrol the area between the 49th parallel and Gibsons including the Fraser River," Cpl. Van de Braak said, "I'm glad that it's not one of those things where you have to make the decision yourself or I'd be thinking about it for years."

There is a possibility of a promotion in the transfer. The corporal finishes here September 17 and is re-classified in Vancouver on September 20. That is when he will get his new assignment.

"I've really enjoyed it here," he said, "I think I will miss the people most here, both the residents and the guys I work with. There is a special calibre of people here. We don't have the kind of problems they have in other areas and it is because of the people. There's a good community attitude here on the Peninsula, a better quality of people. They're easy to speak with, easy to work with. I really hate to leave here."

Cpl. Van de Braak said that on his new assignment he will be doing everything from small boat checks to customs work including working with the new RCMP scuba diving team.

"I will be closer to my kids in Vancouver," he said, "but there's a lot I'll miss here."

Of his fellow RCMP officers, the corporal said, "They're the best bunch I've ever worked with. You couldn't get a group of hand-picked people who are better."

He said, "I'm pleased that the Sunshine Coast will be getting a marine patrol back. I think with the big boat used in conjunction with the inland water transport, the area will have the best marine coverage it ever has."

While in the Pender Harbour area, Cpl. Van de Braak was on the executive of the minor hockey group there and also coached minor hockey and minor baseball. In Sechelt he was on the committee which resulted in the formation of the community resource society for the Sunshine Coast.

Mary takes a basket break

If you are planning to give or get a Mary Jackson basket for Christmas, you may be out of luck.

Mary dropped by The Times office last week to display her newly-operated-on finger and says that her doctor has told her not to do any basket weaving at least until January.

"I was told by the Doctor not to work with it," Mary said, "I can't make baskets or do any crocheting."

Mary said a number of people have been coming to her house and stopping to ask her to make baskets for them, "but I can't make any more baskets until January."

She injured her hand when it got caught in a door about seven months ago; but it he refused to heal properly and at the beginning of August was operated on.

"They said I chipped a bone in it and the chip wouldn't let it heal," she said, "they took the chip out when they operated."

Mary is busying herself with other crafts while her hand is on the mend and hopes to get back to weaving just after Christmas.

More harm than good

Among the first reactions to the Canadian Labor Congress' decision to hold a national general strike was, "What kind of banana republic are we that we have to behave like this." Now, some time later we find ourselves still wondering what purpose the general strike will prove.

Beyond the all-important 'union solidarity,' we can still see little need for the general strike. Clearly the unions have complaints against the governments anti-inflation program (as evidenced by comparing union gains to company profits under AIB legislation) but we wonder if the unions won't be doing their cause more harm than good by the national strike.

What will be the result of such job action? All workers participating will lose a day's pay. Those who choose not to participate will incur the wrath of their fellow employees and unions, an internal weakening process some unions can ill afford. The general public will be inconvenienced and annoyed; but where will they turn their anger? To the AIB? We think not. The wrath will fall on the workers, their unions and the CLC, we feel. The public support the unions are hoping for in the next round of their battle with the AIB will dwindle.

Surely there must be a more positive way to achieve the desired result, if indeed the result is more than just a show of union muscle-flexing solidarity.

Who gets hurt?

As ridiculous as it sounds, students at Sechelt Junior Secondary are in danger of not getting a proper education because plumbers in Vancouver want to park their cars free.

The actuality of the matter is that the Construction Labor Relations Association has locked out the entire construction industry over a dispute with the plumbers union over such life and death issues as downtown Vancouver parking and how far they have to walk for a hot lunch. Construction across the province has been shut down because of the dispute and that shutdown might include, among others, the Sechelt Junior Secondary project.

The last CLRA - union dispute put construction at the site behind about three weeks. There is no telling how much more it could be put behind by the present dispute.

During the first dispute, the Sechelt school board sent letters to the minister of labor and the CLRA asking that school and hospital construction be excluded from any job action. Such agreements have been made in other parts of the province; but the dispute ended before any action was taken.

At the start of the present dispute, the school district sent out telegrams asking the same thing; but with the CLRA busy padlocking work sites and the labor minister starting a one month vacation, the prospects are not promising.

The students of the junior secondary school are facing a hardship, a hardship which could increase every day the present dispute lasts.

The dispute is tying up $2,000,000,000 worth of construction projects and costing union members $1,000,000 a day in wages; but on the Sunshine coast it means some high school students might not get a proper education. That, to us, somehow seems more important.

The time has come to take school and hospital construction out of the threat of such labor-management disputes because of the people factor, the students, the patients and the taxpayers who are ultimately hurt.

Secret society

During the evolution of what is euphamistically referred to today as democracy, there has been several differing styles of government. Government by divine right, government by mob rule, government by force, government by intimidation, government by representation. Now we have another - government by secrecy.

The irrational paranoia of elected officials and civil servants on all government levels in Canada with regard to information is incredible and leaves the casual observer to wonder what government officials are talking about when they speak nobly of 'public input' and other lip-service terms which seem to mean 'have your say then we'll do our way.'

Last week the deputy prime minister of this country told a panel discussion he was firmly against the government releasing any more information than it already does. This comes at a time when a company requesting marketing information from the government was refused it so went to the U.S. and got the information needed about Canada from the U.S. government.

Last week the provincial government had its nose rubbed in a secret report it failed to make public on the pretext that it was not a final report even though the document stated it was. Odd that the document should look more favorably on the position of the oppostion than that of the government.

Last week the Sechelt village council held another of its secret meetings to discuss a matter which the previous week the Sunshine Coast Regional District discussed in open meeting.

Has it become that, in electing public officials, we are giving them license to keep secrets about our business.

This may be the way things are with the higher governments through longevity in office or arrogance; but surely the local governments are still in touch enough with the populous to realize that we have given them a trust to govern us not keep secrets from us.

There have been solid efforts made in this direction on several levels; but it didn't take much to realize that when just the public meetings were open, the real discussions went on at the closed committee meetings. Now the suspicion is that the agreements are made in private sessions and the committee meetings become as orchestrated as the open meetings once were.

That statement is, of course, vastly unfair to those elected officials who are sincerely trying to air out the business of government by putting it under public scrutiny. It is also vastly unfair to those elected officials who are being duped by that vast, incestuous conglomerate which goes under the collective noun of civil service.

Too often civil servants (the term has recently become interchangeable with the term bureaucrat) convince politicians, particularly tyros, of what is best and what should and shouldn't be done. This is done with very convincing arguments, but the upshot of the whole process is to protect and preserve the civil servants, the department, the project or whatever they believe to be more important than the common people.

The pattern has been set and repeated — when the going gets rough resort to secrecy. There was a time when secrecy was to protect the country, now it serves only those with the power or position to use it to their own ends and their own protection.

The idea of restricting information is frightening. Restricting is controlling and one doesn't need to be an alarmist to know what kind of regimes seek to control information. The political intent may not be there; but the rationale and the excercise is the same.

Things must change. Government must cease to become a party of the elite controlling the masses. Freedom of information acts are a necessity on the federal, provincial and local government levels because government business is our business; business we do, not business done for us.

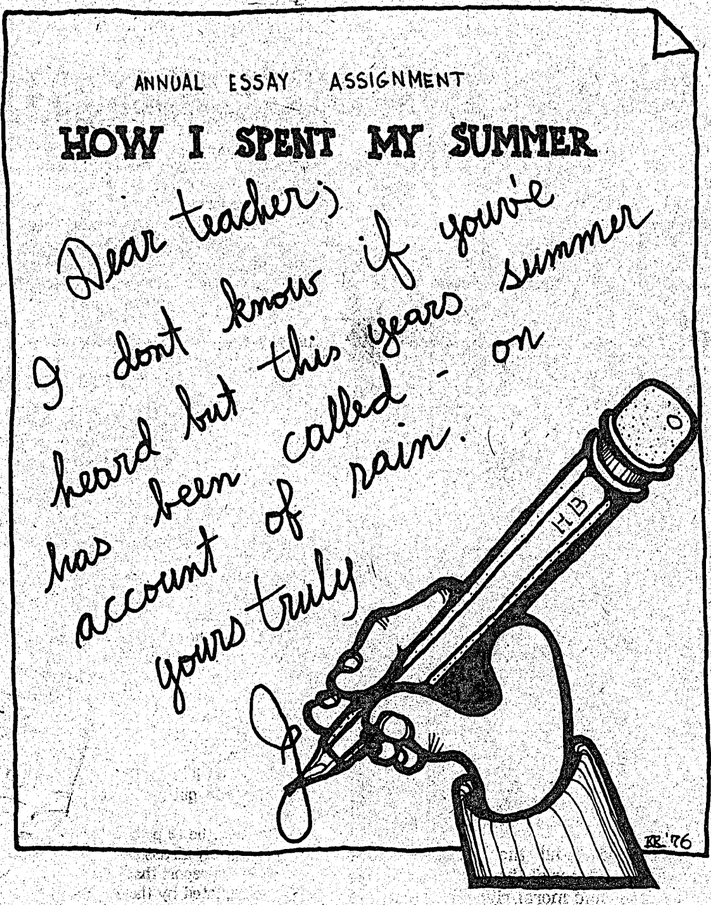
Civil servants should again become people who work for us; not our masters.

There is, fortunately, an avenue still open to us. Our status as a democracy may only be temporary; but while it is we have the choice of electing those who will work toward the ideas of opening up the government't business. The people who are not afraid to do so are the people who should be elected. Anyone who is afraid to should not be in power whether they are an elected official or a civil servant.

Government must not become a secret society.

Will somebody please tell me ...

. . . WHY bureaucrats who tell us that to succeed in any field Canadians must learn to be proud of Canada, give us less and less reason to follow their advice?



Seaside Village residents upset over sewage plant

Editor, The Times;

Sir: The following letter was sent to Hugh Curtis, minister of municipal affairs, on August 28.

Dear Sir:

We residents of Seaside Village in the Village of Sechelt are particularly concerned and perturbed by the conflicting rumours in the local press and by the local council as to the installation of a Sewerage Treatment Plant, and we would appreciate a clarification and your advice to alleviate the undue stress and worry we are being put to.

At first we were given to understand that a site for this plant had been acquired at the foot of Wharf St., Sechelt, an ideal location to service the local commercial and small industrial enterprises, and perhaps development or expansion of the shopping areas, who indeed primarily need the sewer most.

But it appears that a Mr. Stan James has offered a Free Site to the local council which we understand they have agreed to accept. This site for a sewerage treatment plant is to be located on Trail Ave., under the Hydro Power line right of way, right smack in the middle of the sub-division called Seaside Village, and as suggested not less than 150 feet from the nearest residence.

The people of Seaside Village were sold lots both orally and by an illustrated coloured brochure under the name of Glenmont Holdings Ltd. depicting the lay-out of the sub-division complete with a Golf Course under the Hydro Line right of Way, and it was on this understanding, and what they were led to believe that they decided to have houses built in this sub-division.

You can appreciate that should this Treatment Sewerage Plant be installed on this site, the prospect of further development or completion of what could have been one of the best sub-divisions on the Sunshine Coast will be curtailed, as nobody in their right senses would buy into a sub-division adjacent to a sewerage plant.

Your advice will be gratefully received.

Charles Reachill,

Thanks from Kin lottery

Editor, The Times:

Our KIN-WIN Lottery concluded with the Final Draw held on August 18, 1976. This, our first venture into this type of fund-raising, has been a substantial success. And this is to express our great appreciation to you for your generous and invaluable help in publicising the project.

We are indeed grateful.

Our gratitude is shred by the physically disabled of B.C. who benefit from the sum in excess of $175,000 netted by KIN-WIN. This money can now be devoted to assisting many people who are in need of the services provided by the Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation and for whom funds would not otherwise have been available.

Once again our profound thanks.

Trouble with travel agent

Editor, The Times;

Sir: I wonder how many people have booked through a certain travel agency on the Peninsula and have had everything go haywire. The manner in which the business is transacted just is not very business-like.

If a customer gives a payment they should be booked for their holidays. This outfit has taken the payment, but the place that it should be sent to doesn't get the payment. They get the agents payment via the agent's cheque, and it bounces. In the meantime the agent has yours which didn't bounce and it really creates problems.

This should not be allowed to happen.

If anyone else has had the problems we have had to go through would they please contact me. Maybe we can fix these kind of weasels, by getting a lawyer and putting them out of business. When a Vancouver agency says by no way give the agent any more money and that they do not wish to do business with the agent I think there should be an investigation.

RUMOUR MONGERING?

A School Superintendent told his Assistant Superintendent the following:

"Next Thursday at 10:30 a.m. Haley's Comet will appear over this area. This is an event that occurs only once every 75 years. Call the school principals and have them assemble their teachers and classes on their athletic fields and explain this phenomenon to them. If it rains, then cancel the day's observations and have the classes meet in the auditiorium to see a film about the comet."

Assistant Superintendent to school principal:

"By order of the Superintendent of Schools, next Thursday at 10:30 Haley's Comet will appear over your athletic field. If it rains, then cancel the day's classes and report to the auditorium with your teachers and students where you will be shown films, a phenomenal event which occurs only once every 75 years."

Principals to teachers:

"By order of the Phenomenal Superintendent of Schools, at 10:30 a.m. next Thursday Haley's Comet will appear in the auditorium. In case of rain over the athletic field, the Superintendent will give another order, something which occurs once every 75 years."

Teachers to students:

"Next Thursday at 10:30 the Superintendent of Schools will appear in our school auditorium with Haley's Comet, something which occurs every 75 years. If it rains, the Superintendent will cancel the comet and order us all out of our phenomenal athletic field."

Students to parents:

"When it rains next Thursday at 10:30 over the school athletic field, the phenomenal 75 year old Superintendent of Schools will cancel all classes and appear before the whole school in the auditorium accompanied by Bill Haley and the Comets."

Inside Straight

by Jock Bachop

It's not easy to sit in front of the old two finger machine composing a column when the sun is shining and friends who are staying with us are exhorting me to go fishing with them.

The temptation was almost overpowering, but I bravely declinied for my first responsibility is of course, to my faithful readers. (My wife and my mother). Besides, hadn't I caught a salmon just a few days earlier to prove my skill at the game?

Actually, to be honest I didn't have to use my legendary acumen as I think that particular fish had somehow gotten itself lost and tired of swimming around in circles, saw the boat and my bait and decided to end the whole affair. When boated I figured it had to weight at least 20 lbs. but neighbour Bill Wookey, whose boat we were in, assured me gravely it weighed between four and five lbs.

Oh well, we can't all be experts at judging the weight of fish. I think the had cook must have spoiled some of the fish during the cooking for strangely enough there was hardly enough for the four people who ate it a few nights ago.

The extra couple at the dinner table that memorable evening were Mo and May Snelling, old and dear friends from Vancouver and just today my better half's niece Karen Devlin arrived too, so we have a full and lively house.

I'll be off fishing with Mo soon thanks to good guy Chick Page who is filling in for me at the bar in the Legion for a couple of evenings. Thanks, old buddy, I do appreciate it and hope I can return the favour some day.

When I get on the water with my friend I simply must see he gets a fish. To explain: the last time we fished together, Mo latched on to a really big and lively one. Three times he got it to the side of the boat and three times the gallant expert on the net (me) blew it. On the third time, the fish, obviously tired of witnessing such blatant incompetence, spit out the hooks and with an indifferent flick of his tail took off wherever the hell he was originally bound when we first interrupted his journey.

On occasions such as this my friend tends to lapse into a strange language. He is very good at it. It is very interesting to listen to Short sharp sounds punctuated with long solemn silences when he gazes imploringly at the sky, shaking his head. I claimed the net was too small. I don't know what he claimed for as I said he was speaking in a strange language. For some reason though I feel somehow we better get lucky this time . . .

GOT TO THINKING of my brother Jim the other day. He was the oldest of us boys in the family. He died rather suddenly without warning not too many years ago. It was a great shock to us all, especially mother, of course, and he left behind lots of memories for us.

His wife Nancy and son Billy still reside in Scotland.

I shall never forget him because we shared a lot in common.

I think I probably enjoyed my first cigarette and my first beer in his company and he taught me a tolerable game of snooker.

He was always amusing and full of stories.

I remember one he told me with obvious relish. At the time his son was young but old enough to understand what was going on around him. Brother Jim had him trained well. For instance, if they were out driving and Jim ground the gears when changing up or down, young Billy would say, "Bad petrol, Daddy?" (They called gas petrol in the old country). Well trained, no? Anyway, training or no he shook Jim up badly one day. There were out for a drive one day when they were stopped by a large member of the local constabulary who wanted to know with some justification what the hell they thought they were doing making a turn when the law said it was a no-no.

My brother figured the best thing was to accept the tirade humbly and hope the guy would eventually wind down and let him off with a warning. It was not to be. Young son, the apple of his father's eye blew the whole thing with one uncalled for and untimely sentence.

"Daddy," quoth he, "why don' you punch him on the nose!" Need I say more? As I say, I have lots of memories. May they always stay fresh in my mind.

LATELY I have become ever so slightly concerned about my identity. Although hardly crisis proportions, there have been some incidents over the past years that have caused me to wrinkle my youthful brow in concern.

It happened a while ago when the Queen read out her annual list of those to be knighted. I wasn't among them. I didn't get an OBE or an MBE or an anything. I scratched Lizzie off my Christmas card list.

When the annual medal of Canada awards were made, I didn't get one. Lots of people I'd never heard of got one. Why should a pile of people I don't know get one when me, whom I know practically on a first name basis, went without? Doesn't seem right.

THEN WHEN Watergate burst, there was published the infamous 'White House Enemies' list. I read it with great anticipation. "Let's see. Macaroni, movies of Ronald Regan, mushroom soup, mustard plasters . . . What? No Morberg?

I was shattered. I just didn't make it. I'm not even considered an enemy of the state by a foreign country. Sheesh.

I've never been offered a bribe by Lockheed.

I had my name run through the RCMP's master computer in Ottawa once and it came up, "Nothing on File." They'd never even heard of me.

THERE WAS a time when things like that wouldn't have bothered but lately it has begun to play on my conscious. I did a little analyzing and realized that part of my problem is the people I model myself after, or rather my choice of the people I choose to model myself after.

For years I could see myself as only one person — well known philosopher, humanitarian, dog-lover, baseball star and all-around blockhead Charlie Brown. For years my hopes lives and dies with every Charlie Brown adventure. His rejections were my rejections. His defeats were my defeats. His few and far between minor victories were my triumphs. I could feel his frustrations, his fears. I felt like kicking his dog when it got the better of him; I felt like thumping Lucy when she beat him up. I felt like a fool when he got all his clothes knocked off by a line drive.

FOR A WHILE I thought I wanted to be Snoopy; but that seemed a little silly. My sister is Snoopy.

Charlie Brown seemed to epitomize my whole outlook on my general environment during those hard, formative years (as Dr. Spock would say. That's Dr. Spock the baby doctor; not the dude with the pointy ears on Star Trek.)

NOW ONE can only take so many years of being a loser; I mean, there is a point after which one just can not face looking oneself in the mirror in the morning know that the height of your aspirations is getting the left shoe on the left foot for a change. So I did what all people do when they realize they are losing — I changed the rules so I could win.

I started looking for a different model for my life's ambition and I'm pleased to announce that I have located such a model — Irwin The Troll.

Irwin The Troll lives in a comic strip called Broom-Hilda. She's actually the protagonist of the piece and Irwin is sort of a side-light in the creative mind of Russell Myers from whose pen the adventures drippeth.

I FIRST realized that there was something to Irwin which I like when I read a cartoon story about him and his friend who is a vulture (and whose name escapes me) were walking out of the forest evening. As they walked Irwin wished all the rocks and trees and peculiar plants good night. The vulture chastized him for this and as they walked away, the sunset lit up behind him in giant neon-like letters, "Good Night Irwin."

AS FOR Philosophy, Irwin once announced to the vulture that he had chosen, "The best possible program for the rest of my life." And Gaylord, that's the vulture's name, Gaylord, said, "Let me guess; one of moderation, attention to details, thoughtfulness, inner awareness and social conscience?"

Irwin looked a little puzzled and said, "No, Captain Kangaroo." That cartoon panel is stuck up on the wall in my office. Along side it is a strip of Irwin leaping onto the ground, squeezing it and saying, "Every now and then I give the earth a great big hug of thanks."

Broom-Hilda is the loser. One cartoon strip I have is a conversation she is having with the powers that be. I goes: B6-H, "Oh powers that be, who do all the bad things in life happen to me?"

PTB: "Well you just look like someone that bad things aughta happen to."

B-H: "Look like?".. PTB: "Yeah, that's our system. We go by looks. Not too good, huh?"

B-H: "It's Awful."

PTB: "Well, it probably would be better to go on a merit system. Y'know, do the bad stuff to the ones that deserve it."

B-H: "I should say so!!"

PTB: "But that would take so much bookkeeping and legwork. Private detectives and all that stuff."

PTB No. 2: "We'll stick with looks. It's a lot easier."

PTB No. 1 (again): "Drop a rock on her."

And a boulder drops from the sky with a big red THUD leaving only Broom-Hilda's red and black striped socks sticking out from beneath. Take that, Charlie Brown.

ANYWAY in yesterday's (now last week's) Vancouver Sun, Irwin was sitting in a field and a bunch of flowers came creeping up behind him. They suddenly sprang up and started singing. Irwin looked surprised and then smiled. He said, "How sweet, a surprise party for me!"

Eat your heart out, blockhead.

A 66 FOOT road allowance separates the residential part of the Cameo Lands subdivision in Wilson Creek from the area proposed to be rezoned as an industrial park. Residents of the area are concerned about the industrial park while the owner of the land says he has the legal and moral right to rezone the area.

public hearing with no preconceived notions," the spokesman siad, "and the results are to be used to form their decision. They don't have to abide by the opinions at the meeting."

The spokesman said the MI zone calls for all work to be done in a completely enclosed area. He added that he had hoped the Sechelt Vicinity plan would have been done before this application came up. The plan was to study locations for industrial area, among other things.

"If this goes through," Hoffar said, "what protection does anyone in RI or RII zoning have? I think anyone interested in this type of situation should attend the meeting.

Norm Watson, agent for the owner, appeared before the regional board's planning committee August 9 asking that they recommend the zoning be allowed to proceed.

Watson told the committee that the delay in wating for the new bylaw to come in was costing the owner a substantial amount to lease an alternate plant and it was also holding up the creation of new employment in the Sechelt area.

The committee recommended to the board that the process for rezoning the land, described as Lots one to eight and 25 to 28, plan 15097, district lot 1028 be proceeded with. The board accepted that recommendation.

Hank Hall, owner of Cameo Lands, told The Times Saturday he had visited every home in the subdivision to talk about industrial parks and explain the concept. "Where there wasn't anyone home I left a copy of the Journal of Commerce report on industrial parks and my card and asked them to call me," Hall said. "Then I called a meeting in Davis Bay to let them have input into the situation. I assured them there would be no smelly, smokey or noisy industry at the site. The people at the meeting wanted a tape recorder there and I agreed, providing they gave me a transcript. So far I haven't got one. I told them at the meeting that it is not likely that I would do anything to devalue property in the area because Cameo Lands still owned much of the land in the subdivision. I also told them that although the bylaw sets the building height limit at 35 feet, it isn't likely that I would go over 20 feet."

Hall said he had a landscape architect firm design a sound break for the industrial park, "which would be the most aesthetically pleasing break between residential and industrial land anywhere in B.C."

The Cameo Lands owner said that Section 15 of the agreement that all buyers were required to sign gives him the right to exempt any land from the subdivision for any purpose. "Cameo is in fact morally and legally entitled to exempt any parcel. The buyers knew the rules, they signed the documents so I say they shouldn't cry later."

He added, "I would rather see an aesthetic industrial park than the usual type of housing one sees in RII."

Hall said he believed most of the people left the public meeting in favor of the subdivision. He pointed out that there was industrial areas planned for the nearby airport and he wanted to see an industrial corridor. "I would like to see, basically, construction costs cut here on the Sunshine Coast. I would like to see this industrial park oriented to construction industries, construction wholesalers and one man operations like cabinetmakers."

He said a company of his to be formed called Cameo Construction Products would be the intial industry. It would, he said, manufacture prefabricated concrete wall panels for major construction work on the Sunshine Coast. He added that he had been approached by other firms interested in putting operations on the sit.

He pointed out that the subdivision is bordered on one side by a gun club, an agricultural land reserve on another and a logging road on the third side. "Everywhere there are 66 foot road allowances. That's all you see between industrial sites and residential areas anywhere," he said.

Hall pointed out that of the six lots facing the proposed park, Cameo Lands owned all but one, "and that one has been for sale for two years," he said. He said Cameo still owns 11 of the 24 lots in the subdivision not including the 12 involved in the rezoning.

Christmas seals available early

Christmas Seals will be out early this year so they can be used on all overseas holiday mail.

B.C. Tuberculosis-Christmas Seal Society President Alex Clark, of Prince George, announced that 1976 Christmas Seals are available immediately to any person wishing to attach them to their overseas Christmas mail.

Although the official Christmas Seal Campaign begins on November 1, with more than 850,000 sheets of Christmas Seals going to British Columbians on that day, mailing deadlines for parcels intended to arrive at overseas destinations by Christmas would have to be mailed as early as October 6, the case with Cuba. Other international mailing deadlines are October 13 for Africa, October 17 for Asia, October 20 for South America, and October 24 for points in Europe.

Since the turn of the century, Christmas Seals have been used in many parts of the world as a means of raising funds for medical research in disease treatment. In Canada, contributions for Christmas Seals are used for the study, treatment and control of respiratory diseases, including asthma, tuberculosis and emphysema.

Those wishing to receive a quantity of Christmas Seals before the official Campaign opening on November 1 should write the B.C. Tuberculosis-Christmas Seal Society at 906 West Broadway, Vancouver, B.C. V5Z 1K7 or telephone 731-4961 in Vancouver.

Tsawcome wants water from region

Another area is looking for regional water for its own system.

Tsawcome water board of Mission point sent a letter to the region's public utilities committee asking for information and costs on obtaining regional water for the existing system through a pressure reducing valve.

During the discussion, it was pointed out that a similar proposal was made in 1974 and at that time the water board was advised that such a proposal was contrary to board policy.

Works superintendent Gordon Dixon report that the 61 lots in the area would provide enough land charges to pay for new mains, the existing lines being substandard plastic, but the property owners would have to rebuild their connections to take the increased pressure.

The committee recommended that the water board be informed the region is prepared to supply water to each lot on the same basis as in other areas if a new system is installed to regional standards.

● Surpressed ferry report

is general manager of B.C. Ferries and on holidays presently.

"The report was prepared for a committee of cabinet and kept under wraps," Lockstead said. "In light of the information that has come out with the release of the report, some of the statements Davis made at the time of the fare increases become questionable.

"We know that Davis and the government haven't been straight forward in this matter," the MLA who is also the opposition's transport critic said, "The report should have been tabled in the legislature not kept under wraps. We debated the ferry situation for hours and should have had all the information in front of us. The opposition has been proved correct on many items by this report.

He added that more of what the opposition said during the debates will be borne out when the exact figures for the ferry system come in for July and August.

In Victoria Davis called a press conference to rebuke some of the NDP charges about the report.

Davis said the report was superficial and because it was a preliminary report, had not been released. He maintained it was a preliminary report even after it was pointed out to him that the covering letter of the report said it was a final report. Crerar, one of the authors of the report, disputed the statement that it was superficial saying, "I thought it was quite thorough and of high quality."

Davis said the 50 per cent figure used by Barrett was only an assumed figure although it states in the report that a 50 per cent raise was contemplated by the study group.

The minister said the government was taking a second look at most of the proposals in the report: but added he was against the idea of super-ferries stating that he would prefer to see smaller ferries running every hour than larger ferries running every two hours. He said the government studied tying rates to vehicle lengths, but said ferry employees claim measuring cars by eye is not practical and the government has not found a satisfactory machine for taking the measurements.

Davis said the report was only one of four taken into account when he made his decisions about the ferry rate increases.

Visitors to The Native Heritage exhibit at the Ontario Science Centre may see the skinning of a seal. The skin will be used to make thong for dog harnesses, harpoons and lashings for kayaks and sleds. Before it thaws, the carcass will be put back in deep freeze to be used for meals for the Eskimo participants at the summer-long exhibition.

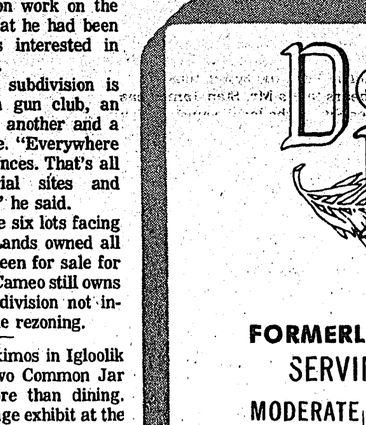
You've only got until September 10th.



L.I.P. Sending ideas out to work.

If you've been toying with some ideas for the Local Initiatives Program, your time is just about up. All applications for L.I.P. projects must be in our hands no later than September 10th, 1976. Your idea should be original and innovative and create useful jobs where there were no jobs before. It must also employ people registered at a Canada Manpower Centre. Your project can get underway anytime between November 1st this year and January 31st, 1977. So come on, do a little quick thinking. Who knows, the ideas you have this summer may be working for you this winter.

SUNSHINE COAST REGIONAL DISTRICT

NOTICE

CHANGE OF MEETING DATES

The next regular meeting of the Sunshine Coast Regional District Board will be held as follows:

DATE: Thursday, September 9, 1976
TIME: 7:30 p.m.
PLACE: Board Room, District Offices Sechelt

This will be a joint Board meeting and Planning Committee meeting.

All interested persons are invited to attend.

Mrs. A. G. Pressley
Secretary-Treasurer

Regional goes with land fill for disposal

After debating the pros and cons, the Sunshine Coast Regional Board has decided to go with sanitary land fill rather than open dumps or an incinerator at least for the present.

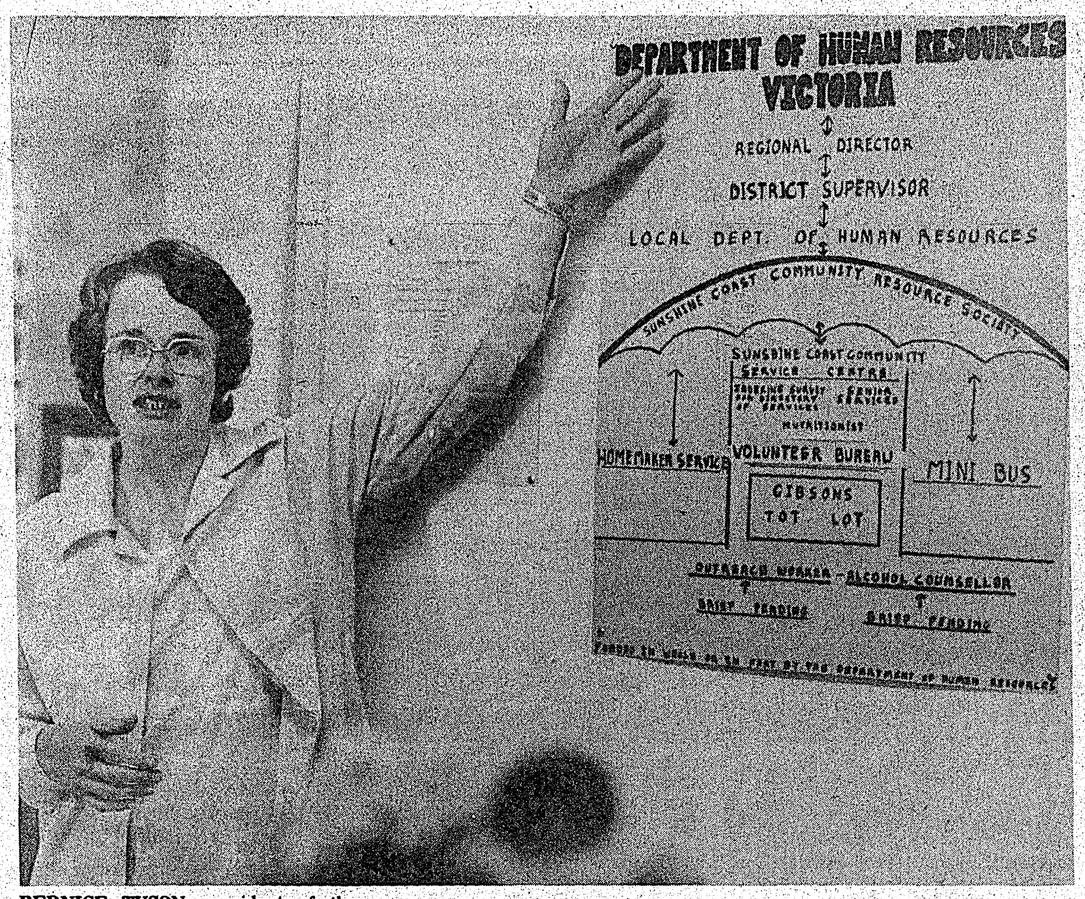
The regional board accepted a recommendation of its public utilities committee that the board proceed with a plan for sanitary land fill for garbage disposal.

Chairman Peter Hoemberg said, "Dayton and Knight did a study on it and found that an incinerator only makes sense if you have the volume. Otherwise an incinerator is three and a half times the cost of a garbage site. Sanitary land fill is about half the cost of an incinerator."

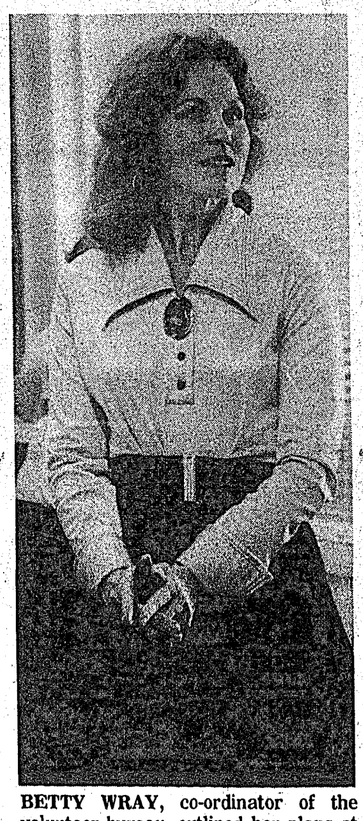
Hoemberg said, "The land fill plan does not exclude an incinerator. As population density increases and technology advances, we could switch to an incinerator. With land fill there is no hight start up cost, no mass expenditure at the beginning and one can do more in terms of land use with the site. The end product of this is a more useable site, The site is settled within 15 years.

About sites, the director said a detailed report should be made taking into consideration drainage, land and site planning and such details as traffic patterns to and from the site.

"Once we study all thses things we can come to a reasonable conclusion about the site," he said.



BERNICE TYSON, president of the Sunshine Coast Community Resource Society, explained the organization and aims of the society at their open house August 31. The Open House was the official opening of the society's offices above the Credit Union in Sechelt.



BETTY WRAY, co-ordinator of the volunteer bureau, outlined her plans at the resource society's open house August 31. "We hope to match the interests of the volunteers with what the agencies require," she explained.

Squaringly yours

BY MAURICE HEMSTREET

You take the tune to 'I'm looking over a four leaf clover' and put these words to the melody, and you get something like this:

"I was looking over, last season's square dance figures,

"And found, that we had them by the score,

"No use complaining when outside it's raining

"What we need is more people, square dancing on the floor.

"Lessons there for learning

"The callers just a yearning,

"To teach the figures old and new.

"I'm going square dancing, for friendship and fun, now I ask how about you?" (you finish on a high note filled with glee).

Well, hello there, I didn't realize that you were reading my column already. My goodness, I really should be getting on with catching up with the past and future of square dancing on The Sunshine Coast, so justa keep on reading.

Aug. 1, 1976, the Royal Canadian Legion Br. 140 hosted a picnic at the Porpoise Bay Campsite for members, friends and their families with sports of all types for the young and older in the morning, a picnic at noon and various entertainment in the afternoon, leading off with the Legion Pipe Band who are a very dedicated group of Legionnaires. Only one word comes to mind, they are fantastic.

Next on the list were The Country Stars Square Dancers with Harry Robertson and myself calling the figures, then the Senior Citizens orchestra put forth with such great music that my feet toe-tapped for two weeks after. Pat Murphy sang several songs. Man, a truly great voice. Next was Herb Ebach and his group; boy, can he play the violin country style. They way he layed that bow on the strings you would have thought that the derned fiddle had done him wrong, but the music was terrific. Then I took up my trusty guitar, but trying to follow the previous musical acts, well, now I know how the comedian felt when he lost the only story he knew. Anyway, on behalf of The Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 140, Sechelt, and President Wally Erickson, we thank all who took part in a perfect day, and as for myself and many others, we hope this will become an annual day to look forward to.

By the way, the great square dancer, Mac Bathwater was there again. He shure is one great mystery and a terrible (that's not the word I'm looking for . . . terrific square dancer. That's better, he is bigger than me. No doubt we will see him many times to come.

Aug. 13, 1976: Headed up to the Squamish area for a well earned holiday after about six years or so since the last one and not a square dancer in sight. We did call on the McBrides of Squamish, only to find that he had given up square dance calling. Such a lost talent in the square dance field should be against the law. Alex, I do believe you should reconsider this because that's about as fur as I can afford to go to a square dance. Hope to see you back in there and it was nice to hear that Christine's square dance team came out on top at the Teen Festival of square dancing in North Van. It just goes to show you, join square dancing, go out for friendship and fun and you will be a winner every time.

Mike Jackson put me onto this trip mainly to see the loggers' museum at Shannon Falls and it sure is worth taking off even for a day, but take your camera, the whole place is fantastic. Also we went through the Britannia mines, well worth seeing, and then the last night we spent at Alice Lake, just up past Squamish and it is truly a beautiful spot, even if it did rain a little.

By the way, going back to Timber Days parade, the old cherry picker was built by Reg Jackson in 1944 and is still going strong today, in the parade it was driven by Michael Jackson, Tommy Jackson was at the controls of the donkey and Alan Hemstreet was the driver of the brand new log stacker.

Well, next week I catch up completely but in the meantime, The Country Stars square their sets same place, same time, same callers, Sept. 10, 8:30 p.m.

You a millionaire?

At press time there were four millionaires walking around Canada and didn't know it. If one of them is on the Sunshine Coast, they will find the number of their winning ticket among the following. If not a millionaire, perhaps $500,000, $200,000, $100,000 or one of the lesser prizes, say a measly $50,000 or $25,000.

Six numbers were selected for prizes of $1 million each. They were 2352549, series A; 2085052, series B; 1818728, series C; 2264393, series A; 1792822, series 8; and 1818155, series C.

The three numbers selected for prizes of $500,000 were 3129430, series A; 1881638, series B and 2894268, series C.

The three numbers drawn for $200,000 are 1872061, series A; 2463359, series B and 2325331, series C.

Two additional ticket numbers were drawn for prizes of $25,000 in series A, B and C. These are 2291825 and 2254225.

A total of 7.5 million identically-numbered tickets — in three series designated A, B and C — were sold.

For each of the six $1-million winning numbers in any series, there were secondary prizes of $100,000 for persons holding the same ticket number in the two series not drawn.

For each of the three $500,000 numbers drawn, there were secondary prizes of $50,000 for those with the identical ticket number in the remaining two series. This makes a total of six $50,000 prizes.

For each of the three $200,000 numbers selected, there are two secondary prizes of $25,000, or a total of six $25,000 prizes.

In the case of two additional numbers drawn for the $25,000 prize, four secondary prize winners each win $25,000 for holding numbers identical to the number drawn. The total number of $25,000 prize winners was six.

Anyone holding a ticket whose last five digits match those of any winning number in any series wins $5,000; those with the last four digits win $500; and those with the last three digits win $100.

A new lottery called Loto-Canada is being organized to help defray the Olympic deficit. The first drawing of Loto-Canada will be in Hamilton on Dec. 5.

Council fenced in

Haley's fence was finally laid to rest at council meeting September 1.

The fence, which council claims blocks traffic view at the corner of Trail and West Porpoise Bay, has been discussed at the council meetings over the last four months.

At the last council meeting August 18 Alderman Thompson agreed to discuss the problem with Haley.

"It's a bit of a problem council has gotten itself into," Thompson reported to council September 1. "I have to recommend that as council did give him permission to build the fence we have to accept what we have done."

Thompson suggested improving the visibility at the corner by moving the Seaside Village sign.

"Next time we have something like this," Thompson concluded, "I think we should take a week or two weeks to really study the thing."

Sechelt News Notes

PEGGY CONNOR 885-9347

A garden picnic party was held at the home of Mrs. Muriel Eggins, Friday, Sept. 3. Her guests couldn't have been more appreciative. They were the extended care patients from St. Mary's Hospital. The blessed joy of being outside in the sunshine and away from the Hospital was such a wonderful feeling.

The twelve patients were transported there by the Mini-bus with kindly driver John Bunyan and his helper Ron Kirby. This was an added attraction for the day as one patient said she hadn't been down past Davis Bay for 20 years, making the bus trip alone an outing.

When all the patients were settled comfortably in the garden, lunch was served, consisting of lasagna, jellied salad, coleslaw and garlic bread followed by homemade pies.

Ms. Lillian Peters, Activity aide, with other staff members Mrs. Alice Horseman R.N. and Mrs. Lillian Sangster kept an ever watchful eye to the needs of the patients, who were Mrs. McKay, Mrs. Swanson, Mrs. Aitken, Mrs. Wakelynn, Ms McKenzie, Mrs. Seaholm, Mrs. Diamond, Mrs. Webb, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Lou Pierce, Mr. Mossman and Mr. Zetkin.

Visitors of the guests were Miss Jane McKay from White Rock, Mrs. Janet Flummerfelt with Jill and Neale, Mrs. Zetkin and Mrs. Mary Walker.

Candy stripers who helped in so many ways and were most entertaining, were Wendy Flay, Rhyl Wood and Debbie Newman.

The auxiliary volunteers came from each end of the area served by the hospital. From Gibsons Mrs. Ida Leslie and Mrs. Oney De Camp came. Pender Harbour members were Mrs. Elspeth Logan and Mrs. Pat Fraser; Sechelt ladies Mrs. Yvonne Eggins, Mrs. Sylvia Kerr, Mrs. Peggy Connor and the hostess Mrs. Muriel Eggin.

Entertainment was delightfully supplied by Mrs. Agatha Rogers singing to her own accompaniment on the guitar, fitting in so aptly with the relaxing theme of the day as she sang a few ditties as well as encouraging everyone to join her in some old favorites.

Mrs. Lou Pierce, spokeswoman for the extended care live-ins said it was the best time she had had for ever so longd and it would be a long time before they forgot this one. She was sincere in the thank you's; there was no doubt how the day was appreciated.

Mrs. Alice Horseman thanked everyone on behalf of the hospital staff. Volunteer Director Muriel Eggins thanked them all for the wonderful time they had given her just by coming to her home. The day had started out rather cloudy but Muriel insisted the sun would shine. Not daring to disobey her wishes, shine it did. When your wishes are to benefit other people it kind of works out that way.

Mrs. Thea Leutche in charge of the film night for the Welcome Beach Community Association wishes to let the people of Sechelt and surrounding areas know that this season the film night will be changed to Friday.

Starting Sept. 24 the first night will be films of B.C. every second and fourth Friday of each month will be film night at Welcome Beach Hall, Redrooffs Road.

Thursday, Sept. 9 the Sechelt Auxiliary to St. Mary's Hospital will hold its monthly meeting at St. Hilda's Hall, at 2 p.m. Each member is to bring a guest who might be interested in joining, anyone wishing to join will be most welcome to do so.

Things can go very wrong in our every-day life, maybe just little things and sometimes very big things.

No matter what they may be, there is a comforting thought which reaches us all, and it is this: "The very circumstance, which your suffering sense deems wrathful and afflictive, Love can make an angel entertained unawares". (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy. Pg. 574.)

Scouts invite volunteers to training day

Vancouver-Coast Region, Boy Scouts of Canada, will be holding a training session for volunteer leaders of the newest scouting section for boys five to seven years of age on Saturday, Sept. 18, at the Lutheran Church Centre, University of British Columbia on University Boulevard at Westbrook Crescent.

This "nuts and bolts" training course will start at 9 a.m., and in the afternoon will highlight a special "sharing session" of crafts, songs, games, nature resources, and many other aids for volunteer leaders.

Resource personnel from the Richmond Nature Park, Vancouver Parks Board and Zoo, the Vancouver Aquarium, Dental Hygiene Association, Vancouver City Police, RCMP, B.C. Telephone, UBC Endowment Lands, Park Commission, fish and wildlife department and others have been approached to help make the full-day event an interesting and educational one.

All adults interested in leadership of "Beavers-Canada" — boys five to seven years — are urged to register now at Scout House, 664 West Broadway, phone 879-5721 or Vern Wishlove, 885-9744.

Bowen status studied

Bowen Island is part of the Sunshine Coast's school district; but not part of the regional district. It is part of the Greater Vancouver Regional District and they don't know what to do with it.

Mayor Tom Goode of Delta has been named chairman of a special Greater Vancouver Regional District committee to study incorporation of Bowen Island.

The committeee will hold a public meeting on the island in October and will likely set up a steering committee of residents to explore the advantages and disadvantages of incorporation.

Bowen Island now is an electoral area with the GVRD regional board composed of 17 Vancouver-area communities supervising its local affairs.

Goode originally suggested incorporation for the area in July because he felt the district board was having to spend too much time on local Bowen matters.

In-camera draft studied

The first draft of the school board's policy on in camera meetings is now being studied by trustees.

The draft, which was distributed to trustees at the board meeting August 26, will be discussed at the next school board meeting.

According to the draft the only items discussed by the school board in camera will be those, "of a confidential nature."

Confidential matters are defined as matters dealing with personnel problems where recognizable individuals are discussed, discussions on acquisitions and disposal of school sites, employee interviews and student interviews.

The policy also recommends that contract negotiations be conducted in camera.

The draft states that the agenda for the committee of the whole be adopted by resolution and that late items must be approved at the time of presentation or shall be handled during the regular board meeting.

The draft also states that recommendations from the in camera meeting will be adopted by the board to open meetings whever possible.

Convention delays council

Sechelt Village Council will have an extra week to ponder before the next council meeting.

The meeting, scheduled for September 15, was cancelled because of the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention scheduled that week.

A special meeting has been called for September 22 to handle any council business.

Management shake-up at Seaside Village

There appears to be a shake-up in the management of Seaside Village subdivision in Sechelt, but reports are conflicting.

Stan James, Union Steamships owner, has been removed from his position as manager of Seaside Village by Glenmont Holdings, according to Glen Crippen, president of the company.

"They're holding me responsible so I may as well be," Glen Crippen, president of Glenmont Holdings told The Times. "I don't intend to cheat Stan James, but I'm not going to let him get me into any more trouble."

"To make a long story short, he just wasn't satisfactory," Crippen added.

Bud Gairns, manager of Interfacial Design, the company building the homes in Seaside Village, called the story of James' firing "absolutely erroneous."

"Mr. Crippen can say anything he likes over the phone," Gairns commented, "but when we meet with him Tuesday (September 7) it may be different."

James was not available for comment.

In the meantime Crippen has sent Bob Cramer to investigate the Seaside Village situation and suggest a solution.

"I'll have to get all the facts in," Crippen said. "I hope to get it straightened out."

Glenmont Holdings and Stan James made an agreement on August 30, 1973, to jointly develop the Seaside Village land in Sechelt.

At that time, according to the agreement, James undertook to manage the sale and development of the land in return for 75 per cent of the net profit. Glenmont was to receive 22 per cent of the profit as well as 15 per cent interest on a $400,000 loan.

The agreement also states that "James, Associates and Union Steamships estimate that the development and sale of the said properties, except certain properties covered by leases, could be completed before September 1, 1975, but in any event will be completed before September 1, 1976."

In April 1976 sale of all land in Seaside Village was blocked by the superintendent of insurance in the province for alleged real estate act violations.

On August 5, 1976 a Lis Pendens on the Sechelt property was registered in the Land Registry office. The action calls for a declaration that James' company, Sechelt Lands Limited, is the "true owner" of the Sechelt property and that Glenmont's interest in the land is only that of a mortgage.

"I don't think that's a legitimate charge," Glen Crippen told The times when asked about the Lis Pendens. "I bought the land, it's registered in Glenmont's name and he's been paid for it."

Crippen also added that he intended to pay James the percentage of the profit outlined in the August 1973 agreement.

"He'll still get his money," Crippen said, "but he's not going to manage Seaside Village's affairs."

Asked if he would sell the Sechelt Land if he were able to get both the superintendent of insurance's order and the Lis Pendons removed, Crippen replied, "I'll sell anything that I get enough money for."

Nurses present bursaries

The Sunshine Coast Chapter of the Registered Nurses Association, in 1973, established a fund in memory of the late Margaret Lamb, a dedicated nurse and community worker.

Donations from the community and a social event provided a sum of money which is administered on behalf of the nurses by the Sunshine Coast Bursary and Loan Society.

The interest of the sum is designated for an annual bursary to be awarded to a student studying in any one of the health fields. There were no applicants in 1975 so this year two bursaries were available.

Both are former graduates of Elphinstone High School. Wendy Inglis is currently studying nursing at BCIT and Cindy Kurucz will enter UBC this month to commence her nursing course.

Presenting the bursaries is Mrs. Marie Montgomery, a former colleague of Mrs. Lamb.

Areas seek LIP funds

It appears Gibsons village and the Sunshine Coast Regional District will be going after LIP funding of some kind this year; but Sechelt village has decided not to.

At the recent regional board meeting, administrator Ann Pressley was given the go ahead to the initial application for an LIP project with the budgetary details to be worked out by the management committee.

Last year the regional had an LIP grant project in operation at the Roberts Creek recreation site, Lot 1506, where crews were building trails and bridges.

Gibsons council is also planning an LIP application. Last year they had a community work project.

Sechelt decided last week not to pursue an application.

"We'll let it go for the time being and concentrate on a program for the summer," Alderman Thompson said after none of the aldermen were able to come up with a proposal to send in by the September 10 deadline.

"When I look at what Gibsons can do with grants and what we do with grants I think we should get into planning it much earlier than we have been," Thompson continued.

The one suggested project, a water level study, was rejected by council as they felt LIP workers lacked the skill to do an accurate study.

The water level study was suggested by Alderman Shuttleworth at the August 25 meeting.

A collection of Eskimo fine art has been mounted especially for the Native Heritage now at the Ontario Science Centre in Toronto. Planned and organized by the Eskimo Art Section, Indian and Northern Affairs, the show is entitled "Good Makers-Bon Artisans." It includes 38 prints and drawings and 34 soapstone carvings.

Checking station to open

Fish and Wildlife checking station at Cache Creek, will commence its 30th year of operation on September 11 and run through November 22, 1976.

The station will be open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. each day.

This is a compulsory checking station and all hunters returning from a hunt and passing through Cache Creek during these open hours must report at the station. Previously only successful hunters were required to check in.

The information obtained from hunters, whether they are successful or not, provides valuable statistics for the wildlife management section and assists them with future programs and studies in the central and northern regions of the Province.

Hunters who cooperate by turning in the lower jaw, with teeth intact, of any deer, moose, elk and caribou will be of great assistance to the wildlife managers at Cache Creek. Special examination of the teeth enables them to accurately determine the age of each animal.

Denley off to conference

School superintendent John Denley will be attending the 1976 Conference of the Canadian Education Association in Halifax September 22-24.

School board trustees voted to have the superintendent attend the conference at their August 26 meeting. Denley will also be attending the Canadian Association of School Superintendents conference in Halifax at the same time.

Denley's expenses will be covered by the school board's superintendent's in-service training budget.

Discussions at the conference include such topics as Programs for Native people by Native people, Trends in non-urban School Systems, Family life education and Evaluation of Student Progress.

The board also gave permission for one trustee to attend the conference, to be paid for out of the Trustee travel fund.

Judge orders essay written

A touch of the classroom entered provincial court Wednesday, September 1.

Judge Ian Walker ordered Neil Francis Brown to write a 500 word essay on the theme "Why I should not steal property and especially not gasoline."

Brown was charged after Gibsons RCMP received a report from a witness that a person driving a Ford station wagon had been attempting to siphon gas from a parked car.

The essay is due September 8.

Robert Paul Mahar was finnd $250 for operating a motor vehicle without insurance.

Crown counsel Peter Minton told the court that Mahar was riding a 1974 Hond motorcycle on Mintie Road at approximately 12:50 p.m. August 6 when he was involved in an accident.

Upon investigating the accident, RCMP discovered the bike was not insured, Minten explained.

"This becomes a very expensive escapade, doesn't it?" Judge Walker noted when imposing the $250 fine.

Henry Robert Baillie was finnd $50 for possession of marijuana.

Explaining the circumstances of the case crown counsel Peter Minten said that Baillie and some friends were approached by RCMP at 12:25 a.m. August 1 in Gibsons.

A bag of marijuana was found on Baillie.

Noting that Baillie has not co-operated with the RCMP, Judge Walker said "Had you been co-operative with police I would have considered a discharge."

Recycling grant approved

Provincial Environment Minister Jim Nielsen has announced a $1,288 recycling grant to the Sunshine Coast Regional District has been approved.

The regional district applied for the grant on behalf of Peninsula Recycling. Under the on-going programme the department of environment matches the contribution of the local authority to assist re-cycling groups.

The grant matches contributions from the regional board, the Gibsons council and the council of Sechelt to keep the recycling operation going until it can apply for Local Initiatives Program refunding.

The Leisure Outlook This Week

Happenings around the Harbour

Doris Edwardson 883-2308

VISITORS TO THE HARBOUR

Marie and Art Yeast and their three boys from Ontario have been visiting at the homes of Marie's brothers and sister-in-law David and Linda Mills, and sister and brother-in-law Betty and Gerry Pockrant. They have also been visiting Marie's parents Edith and Bill Mills, former Pender Harbourites and now living in Gibsons. They also went to see Peggy and John Wray, more relatives in Gibsons. They enjoyed looking around the Harbour at the beautiful scenery and swimming in the salt water, fishing and just plain relaxing.

Visiting Carol and Art Vanderweil and family of Narrows Road are Art's brother Henry and his wife and family from Prince Rupert, B.C. They have just returned from a trip to Ontario and were there six weeks.

Two other long time residents of Pender Harbour and who now live in Powell River paid a visit here. They are Connie and Don Dillabough. They love meeting all their old friends and we love seeing them.

NEW OWNERS

First of all, Yvonne Sullivan, John Murphy and Roy Bell would like to thank all their patrons for their business over the period of time they have owned and managed the Pender Harbour Hotel.

They have made many friendships and will miss seeing these folks and wish to introduce the new owners. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Vickers from Leicestershire, England. They had a pub in the village called "Stoney Stanton" and also a pub called the 'Bull's Head.'

The other new owners are Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Robson from Calgary, Alberta, where they had a service station.

Both familes have young children, who will be attending the school here.

ELEANOR HAS DONE IT AGAIN

Last year Eleanor Orr broke her hip in an accident and now this year she has fractured her ankel and is in the Lions Gate Hospital in North Van. Her husband Doug said she went to step over a little ditch and as she did her foot twisted. This accident happened at her home.

BOWLING LEAGUE

WANTED: Forty interested people to bowl five pins one night a week at the Sechelt Bowling Alleys. The season to start bowling is very near and unless there are enough people interested the Pender Harbour League will not operate this year.

Last year was very poor, as there were only six teams and many nights were short of bowlers as there were no spares available. So if the League is to operate, forty bowlers are needed, also a few extra for spares.

Phone Merle Hately evenings 883-2393, days 883-2666 or Muriel Cameron 883-2609.

NEW MEDICAL CLINIC

In a report to members of the Pender Harbour and District Health Centre Society, President Jim Tyner reported that the construction of the clinic is now complete and that the clinic is staffed with excellent and well qualified people. The staff is: Dr. Henry Birnbaum M.D. Ph. D.

Dr. Birnbaum is a graduate in medicine from Dalhousie University and also holds a doctorate in pharmacology from McGill University. He has had a wide and intensive experience in the practice of Medicine.

The nurse practitioner is Darlene Snell, a Registered Nurse and is a graduate of the Nurse Practitioner program from the University of Alberta.

In addition to the extensive hospital experience, she has spent two years in sole charge of nursing stations in the Yukon and North West Territories.

The administrator and receptionist is Mrs. Marion van Male and has many years of experience in office management and is highly qualified for the position.

The dentists are Dr. Frank Carney and Dr. Alistair Menzies and they are dental surgeons who are accepting appointments now as is the rest of the staff in the clinic.

LEGION BR 112

Last week Harold and May Aubin came up from Sechelt to entertain the customers with their always popular renditions of music and songs sung Aubin style. He also brought another guitar player and singer with him. He was George Page whom nearly everyone knows.

During the evening it was announced that there was another guitar player and singer amongst the patrons.

He turned out to be Jack Thomas who plays for a group called the 'Rocky Road'. He is a cousin to Jim Murray of Holiday Market Store. Another surprise in store at the Legion is that on Sept. 11 Pat Logue Jr. will be there to sing and play the piano.

LADIES AUXILIARY

The general monthly meeting will be held on Sept. 15 at 2 p.m. in the Legion Hall.

MILE 93

Stan, our once local Chevron gas station man, has left for the Interior of B.C. He said he was going up to Mile 93 and will have a rental sales lot there and if anyone was up in that vicinity to stop in and see him.

BEAVERS

Apparently some local beavers have caused some extra work for the dept. of highways up in Kleindale by blocking the water and instead of flowing in the ditches it flooded the fields. The beaver dams had to be blasted to correct the situation.

You can now have all soft centers or all hard centers in the one pound box of Laura Secord Chocolates. Chocolate coated ginger is also available. — Miss Bee's, Sechelt.

Garden Corner

BY GUY SYMONDS

The last Corner had to leave off in the middle of detailing the plants which are naturally suited to a rock garden. It would appear to be proper to complete this phase of the operation, not in specifics but rather indicating the kinds of plants and their peculiar attributes.

The pinks for example offer a variety of joys both in colour and scent. They like lime in the soil and a sunny location. Bellflowers or Campanulas have a fine variety to offer with flowers of blue, white, lavender and purple. Some of them prefer light shade. They are not all perennials however so must be replaced each year. Theymes make a fine creeping plant; but, as learned from personal experience, must have the sun. In heavy shade they simply die off. On the other hand so long as it is not wet they thrive on poor soil. They make ideal ground cover between paving stones.

Similar preference in soil and living conditions is shown by the Stonecrop though some varieties of this will tolerate partial shade. Most are carpeting plants and are generally easy to grow.

Primulas or primroses on the other hand like a moist or in some cases a wet soil and will stand shady locations. They thrive where there is lots of humus and are ideal for poolside plantings.

The Houseleek is a sunlover. It will stand the driest conditions but at the same time will tolerate partial shade. It is reported as one of the easiest of plants to grow and is ideal for crevices, and vertical faces or any restricted quarters.

The glorious blue of the Gentians is an asset in any garden. They will not tolerate lime but thrive in peaty and partly shaded areas. Again from personal experience they will also, with a little encouragement, flourish in sunny locations.

Bulbs are a "must" in a rock garden, but not by any means the same sort as those used in the flower garden. Great care should be taken that there is no semblance of formality in their arrangement, pattern or placing. There are bulbs for shade and bulbs for sun. Personal experience in the Fraser Valley showed that Trilliums love shady wooded locations as does the English Bluebell, but efforts to transplant the former did not meet with outstanding success. It is thought that the difference is on the type of wood cover.

Whereas the Fraser Valley locations were largely of deciduous trees, alder, birch and maple, hereabouts it is mostly coniferous with entirely difference results in the growing medium. If Trillium can be grown, however, even with a great deal of effort they are worth it as there is nothing more heartening than the appearance of these lovely bearers of assurance that the winter is past.

If they and the bluebells can be established they will look after themselves.

Other bulbs that like partial shade with some sun are dwarf Narcissi (not the large flowered hybrids), Snowdrops, Scillas and Aconites. Dwarf Tulips (again not the large flowered kind) small Crocus, Grape Hyacinth and numbers of Alliums prefer sunshine. This sort of detailed information is best obtained from the nurseryman who is acquainted with local conditions.

Ground cover properly placed in a rock garden prevents that 'busy' look that so often results from an unrelieved mass of rock and plants. Their name is legion but the periwinkle appears to be particularly suited to this coast.

There is no intention of making this Corner a catalogue of plants and flowers, merely a guide to those who seek information on what might be appropriate and obtainable.

BOOK LOOK

by Murrie Redman

For those who know Montreal well and those who have visited or plan to visit there, Doubleday brings a treat, MONTREAL THE DAYS THAT ARE NO MORE. The city, hundreds of years old, has under its sidewalks, along its tree-lined streets and beside its great towers, soil that once bore homes, churches, hospitals and market places long since gone.

Fortunately, Edgar Collard has revived the little known tales about people who lived there in strange and wonderful ways, enriching our sense of the human side of history that is seldom exposed.

John Collins illustrates the book with his sketches showing the current day setting of the events. The maps on the flyleaves help the reader to locate the areas in Old Montreal, Uptown Montreal and the Lachine Waterfront. Wisely, there is an index so that the book can be used for easy reference.

One particularly interesting and unusual story deals with the life of Jeanne Le Ber, born in 1662 to a wealthy family. As a youngster she became a dedicated Roman Catholic and placed herself in virtual seclusion in her room, emerging only briefly in five years, once to see her dead mother and again, her dead brother. Her life was devoted to prayer and meditation.

In an arrangement with the church of Congregation of Notre Dame, family money was spent to build a special chapel which had behind it, a small tri-level apartment where Jeanne Le Ber pledged to spend the rest of her years. Although she had access to a walled garden she came out of her gloomy rooms only to attend to her chapel needs in the dark hours of the night. She spent twenty years until her death as a 'prisoner of God'.

If you have walked long St. Lawrence Boulevard, you may just have passed over the very spot where Jeanne Le Ber paced her rosary hundreds of years before.

The book is full of unusual legends that allow an even greater appreciation of the fascinating city of Montreal.

NDP planning riding meeting

First annual general meeting of the Comox-Powell River New Democratic Party Riding Association will be held in Powell River, September 26.

A spokesman for the association said the meeting will take place at Dwight Hall in Powell River starting at 1:30 p.m.

The meeting is being hosted by the Malaspina NDP Club of Powell River as a dinner-dance on September 25 at the same place. There is a lunch before the meeting Sunday.

The new riding association is being formed because of proposed changes in the federal electoral riding boundaries which are scheduled to come into effect this month.

The meeting will include election of officers.

Safeway rumor unfounded

Canada Safeway Ltd. has dismissed as "rumor without foundation" that the company would be leaving the province of B.C.

In a letter to The Times, a spokesman for the store chain said, "Although the rumor is quite prevalent that the company is considering closing down operations in B.C., it is a rumor without foundation."

The letter followed a story in the August 25 issue of Peninsula Times which quoted a company spokesman as saying the company was considering pulling out of the province over continuing labor disputes. Safeway stores in B.C. have been closed down since late August due to a strike at its distribution plant.

The letter, however, made no mention of the company considering a store for the Sunshine Coast area.

Happy event, tragedy touch former residents

A very happy event and a tragedy touched a former Sunshine Coast family in early August.

On August 6 Karen-Irene Karateew, formerly of the Sunshine Coast, was married in Vancouver. The best man at the wedding was Raymond Karateew. The following day, Karateew who was a pilot for Powell Air, was aboard an aircraft which crashed near Powell River killing all three men aboard.

Karen Karateew, 24, married Charles Davis August 6 at the Russian Creek Orthodox Church in Vancouver with Father Cyril performing the ceremony. Mr. Mrs. Karateew-Davis are now living at No. 207B - 7374 Halifax, North Burnaby.

The day following the wedding Raymond, 24, was in a light aircraft which apparently went out of control and crashed in the ocean near Harwood Island off Powell River. The aircraft sunk immediately after the impact and has not been recovered. An inquest has been ordered into the crash and set for September 16.

Also killed in the air crash were Robert Scott of Powell River and Lazlo Bali of New Westminster. The aircraft was owned by Scott.

A memorial service is scheduled for September 19 at 12:15 p.m. at the Russian Greek Orthodox Church, 75 East 43rd, Vancouver.

Karateew is survived by his parents, brothers John and Kenneth and sister Karen.

New stamps

Four new 10 cent stamps are being introduced along with new postal rates.

The stamps, least in the series on Canadian Indian culture, depict the artifacts, way of life, dress and symbols of the Iroquoian Indians.

The new stamps will be introduced on September 17 at Brantford, Ontario.

The four stamps include a photograph of a turtle shell rattle, false face mask, earthenware vessel, ball club and corn husk mask, a painting of an Iroquoi encampment by George Heriot, a drawing of a ceremonial costume by Lewis Parker and an Iroquoi thunderbird.

The new 10 cent postal rates came into effect September 1.

Surrey men charged in $8,000 ferry theft

POWELL RIVER — Three Surrey men appeared in provincial court Monday on charges relating to the theft of $8,000 from the Westview ferry terminal toll booth on Aug. 22.

William James Walsh, aged 17, of 104th Ave., and Gary Dale Kyryluk, aged 18, of the same address, were charged with breaking and entering the booth. A second charge of possession of money exceeding the sum of $200, while knowing it to have been obtained illegally, was laid against Walsh, Kyryluk, and 18-year-old Cyril Joseph (Rocky) Brissette of 149th Ave.

Walsh and Kyryluk were arrested in Surrey on Tuesday, Aug. 24 on charge of possession of hashish for the purpose of trafficking. They were released but held on suspicion of the Powell River theft.

They were brought to Powell River Friday evening and made their first court appearance Monday morning.

All three were released on their own recognisance with $500 bail and no deposit. They must report twice weekly to a bail supervisor until they appear in court again on Sept. 20 for plea and election.

Meeting cancelled

David Morgan, publicity committee chairman for Senior Citizens Association Branch 80, told The Times the September meeting of the association has had to be cancelled.

Morgan said the meeting was to be the opening meeting of the fall session but has been cancelled because of unforseen circumstances: but the October meeting will be held on schedule.

That meeting will be at the Legion Hall in Madeira Park at 7:30 p.m. October 18.

Entertainment will be arranged, he said, and refreshments will be served.

Redecorating improves hall

Mount Elphinstone Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star had quite a surprise waiting for them when they attended their first meeting September 2.

"The hall had been redecorated in shades of blue, with white ceiling and blue carpeting wall to wall. It was such a transformation that you quite literally lost your breath on entering," a chapter spokesman said.

The W.M. Miss Mary Steel, on behalf of all members, thanked the Brothers and Sisters and The Masonic Society and all others who must have worked hard and long to have accomplished the transformation during the vacation.

Thirty three members and one visitor were present to enjoy a good business meeting and a social hour at its close.

Mt. Elphinstone Chapter No. 65, Roberts Creek, must now be one of the most beautiful halls anywhere. The Eastern Star was honoured to be the first to enjoy the privilege of the new surroundings.

"THOUGHT FOR FOOD"

by Susan Nichols

Heart disease is unquestionably one the most important health problems in this country today. There is no one single cause but there are many factors that increase the chances of a person developing the disease. These so called 'risk' factors include:

1. heredity, 2. emotional stress, 3. excessive cigarette smoking, 4. insufficient physical activity, 5. being overweight, 6. presence of diabetes, 7. high blood pressure, 8. raised blood cholesterol levels, 9. raised blood triglyceride levels.

Look carefully over this list. Obviously you can't change your heredity. Fortunately or unfortunately, chosing one's parents is out of the question. But the eight other factors can be under your control — some more than others. Prevention of heart disease is the goal. Let's look more closely at what you can do.

1. Try to eliminate stress: Everyone learns to deal with tension in different ways. For some, yoga and meditation have provided the means to calm the spirit. For others, a physical fitness program provides an outlet for frustration. Still others are able to organize their lives so that situations that create tensions are avoided. There are many ways to handle stress — find one that works for you.

2. Stop smoking: This may not be an easy task but the benefits are great and go far beyond lessening your risk of heart disease — consider the cancer risk, pollution, effect on people around you, as well as the money involved.

3. Increase your physical activity: This may well be one of the major keys to avoiding heart disease. A physically fit person maintains his ideal weight, has a strong cardiorespiratory system and has 2 to 3 times less chance of developing heart disease than his unfit counterpart. If you did not read my article on physical fitness I will be pleased to send you a copy. Write P.O. Box 1186, Sechelt.

4. Lose weight: A sensible diet is important if you plan to lose unwanted pounds or if you want to maintain your ideal weight. There is evidence that a substantial reduction in body weight of overweight people is enough to decrease the greater incidence of death associated with obesity. Certainly a decrease in weight often lowers blood pressure and blood lipids (fats).

People who are of desirable weight are less likely to develop diabetes later in life than those who are overweight. So a loss of extra pounds helps reduce many risks associated with heart disease. There is not the space here to delve into weight reduction principles but if this is your need I can send you a copy of a previous article on the subject.

5. Cut down on salt intake: There is some indication that high salt levels in the diet lead to hypertension or high blood pressure. Although this relationship has not been firmly established. it is prudent to avoid excessive salt in the diet. Do not heavily salt foods during preparation. Many processed foods (e.g. canned soups) have high salt levels and should be used in moderation. Try not to use the salt shaker at the table. And please don't feed your babies prepared baby foods that have salt added.

6. Keep cholesterol intake to a moderate level: Although changes in the diet can decrease blood cholesterol, there has been no definite proof that such a reduction will decrease the chances of heart disease. Whether or not dietary cholesterol should be reduced remains a controversy. The latest Canadian and American Heart Association recommendations set down in 1973 say 'yes'. A more recent British report written by distinguished leaders in the field of nutrition do not recommend such a restriction. It is a fact that whenever excess food is consumed, the body produces more than twice as much cholesterol than is provided in the diet. Cholesterol is a normal part of the body. It is used for transporting essential fatty acids, and manufacturing sex hormones. It is also an integral part of nerve coverings and skin. It is important that infants get cholesterol in their diets so that their bodies 'learn' how to break down extra cholesterol.

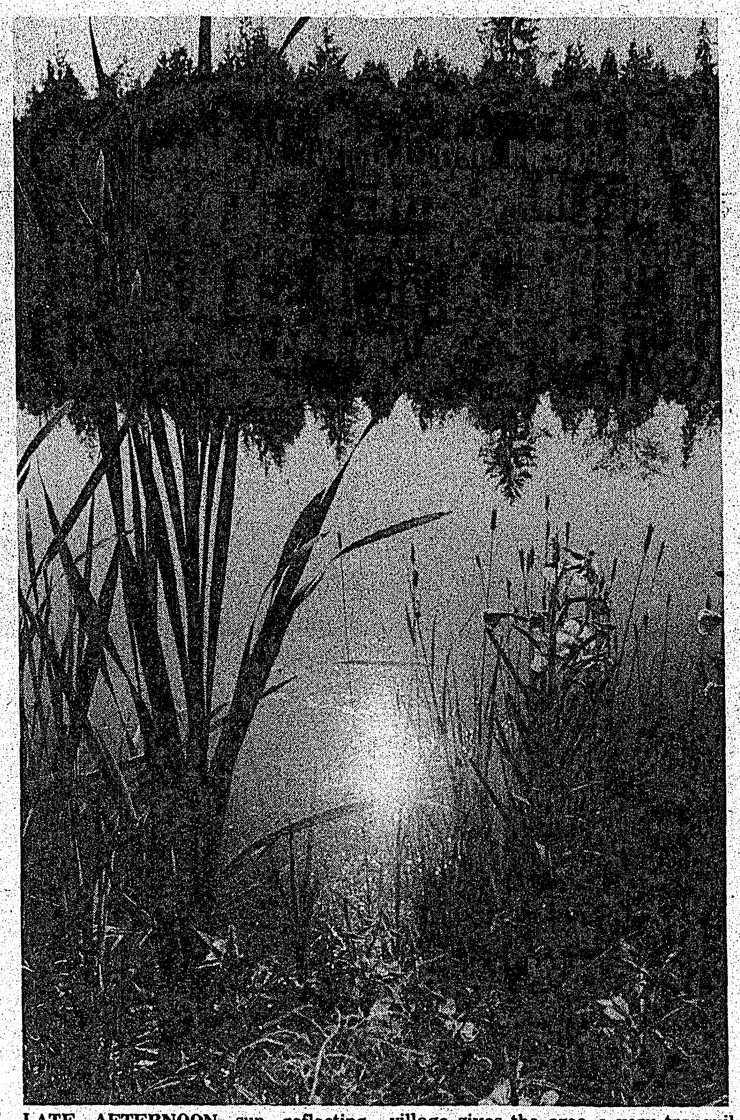
Dietary control of cholesterol is definitely unwise in the first 24 months after birth. Moderation beyond infancy seems reasonable. Eggs are probably the major source of cholesterol in the average diet. Dr. Sabry, one of Canada's foremost nutritionists recommends up to 7 eggs a week for healthy people under 40 years old. After 40 years, 3 eggs a week is advised. Other sources of cholesterol are liver, kidneys, heart and other organ meats. One small serving a week is important in a well balanced diet.

Shrimp, oysters and clams are also rich sources and should only be eatern occasionally.

7. Reduce total fat intake: More important than reducing fat dietary cholesterol is reducing the total amount of fat and especially saturated fat in the diet. There is definite evidence that death from heart disease is high in populations that get much of their food energy from fat and in particular, saturated fats. Fish, chicken, turkey and veal have much lower contents of saturated fat than beef lamb and pork. Choose lean meats when you buy meat, trim off all the fat and bake or broil instead of fry. Luncheon meats, salami, sausages, bacon and hot dogs should be consumed in moderation, if at all. Cheeses, whole milk and ice cream also are high in saturated fats, so switch to 2 per cent cottage cheese, skim milk and yogurt. I have mentioned before that this does not apply to infants. Of course, avoid ice creams, but whole milk is now recommended until at least 2 years of age as this most closely resembles the natural fat content of the best milk for babies — breast milk.

8. Avoid refined sugars: There is mounting evidence that a diet high in refined sugars increases blood triglycerides and hence the risk of heart disease. Nothing good has ever been truthfully said about sugar. It is not necessary in any diet. So make a conscious effort to stay away from the sugar bowl. Besides reducing fat levels in the blood, avoidance of sugar will also help weight reduction efforts.

As you can see, heart disease is not a simple problem — but you can do something about preventing it. All that I have written today is generally agreed to by the experts in the field of heart research. There are, however, many aspects that I have not discussed. What about Vitamin E, trace minerals, fibre, soft water and oils. These are areas in which research is not yet conclusive and available evidence does not permit specific recommendations at this time. Next, we'll take a look at these factors for they are areas of great interest to the general public.



LATE AFTERNOON sun reflecting from the surface of the marsh in Sechelt village gives the area a very tranquil glow.

First meeting for auxiliary

On September 9 the first fall meeting of the Sechelt WA to St. Mary's Hospital will be held in St. Hilda's Church Hall at 2 p.m.

All regular members are urgently requested to attend. A cordial invitation is extended to all ladies who are desirous of becoming involved and joining us in this important work.

Any couples or any ladies who would like to play in 'merry-go-round' bridge are invited to the 'kick-off' party on September 24 in St. Hilda's Hall at 7:30 p.m.

Membership in the WA is not required to take part in the tournament which starts on October 1.

For further information please call Mrs. Margaret Humm at 885-2840.

Anderson will run

Although he earlier said he wasn't considering it, Comox-Alberni Liberal MP Hugh Anderson has now decided to seek the nomination in the new Nanaimo-Alberni federal riding.

Anderson earlier said he would not run in the new riding; but the announcement by MP Tommy Douglas (Nanaimo-Cowichan) that he would not be seeking re-election appears to have changed Anderson's mind. This leaves the federal riding wide-open with no incumbent. There was speculation Anderson might run in the new Comox-Powell River riding which includes the Sunshine Coast.

Parsons-Gibb united in ceremony

St. Hilda's Church was the scene of a beautiful summer wedding August 28 at 4 p.m. uniting Sandra Parsons, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Parsons of Sechelt and Richard Gibb of Gibsons.

Sandra chose a cathedral gown of white peau de soie trimmed in seed pearls and lace, carrying red roses and white carnations. Karen Parsons, sister of the bride and matron of honor was attired in a floor length yellow gown with a bouquet of white carnations.

Stuart Hercus was best man for this wedding solemnized by Reverend Godkin.

A dinner reception followed at the Casa Martinez for the family. Friends joined the bridal party at the Parsons home.

A knife belonging to the brides grandmother, Mrs. Nixon, was used to cut the cake, while long time friend of the family Mrs. Ada Dawe provided the white heather that decorated the church.

The newylweds will live in Victoria on their return from their honeymoon.

Board votes zonal system for bargaining

Teachers in school district 46 will be negotiating their contracts through zonal bargaining.

School Board members voted four to three against a motion by board member Claus Spiekerman that the board opt out of the zonal bargaining system.

School boards and teachers associations have until September 25 to opt out of the program.

Bargaining zone 8, which includes School District 46 also includes School District 47 Powell River, 48 Howe Sound and 49 Ocean Falls.

The zonal bargaining system was established in 1975 on the recommendation of an all party legislative committee. The zones are established by August 15 after consultation with teachers and trustees.

Thirteen bargaining zones have been established throughout the province.

ANNOUNCEMENT

SEASIDE PLUMBING LTD.

has been appointed exclusive dealer for the Sunshine Coast area for

CARBOZITE

THE MODERN MIRACLE COATING

developed especially for WOOD, METAL, BRICK, STUCCO, CEMENT
and SHINGLES OF ALL TYPES

Safeguard Your Property With CARBOZITE
No property owner should jeopardize the great investment he has in his home or building. The protection costs are economical with CARBOZITE, a specially prepared coating that resists deterioration in every form. Sold with 5 YEAR replacement guarantee.

CARBOZITE Coatings Contain Silicone Waterproofing
CARBOZITE is a beautiful armor-like finish containing, among other ingredients, Silicone, which gives CARBOZITE its water repellence, its lasting toughness and durability and helps eliminate blistering, peeling, chipping or cracking which are so common when ordinary exterior paints are used. Silicone and specially-selected chemicals, when incorporated into CARBOZITE, impart a resisting quality that shields homes and buildings from all the destructive elements of nature — rain, sun, snow and ice — and from harmful acids and alkalies.

You Can Apply It Yourself
You don't have to hire a professional. Just spray, roll or brush on.
