Islands Trust official reassures Gambier group

An Islands Trust official last week assured Gambier Island residents that the proposed trust takeover of planning duties will not undermine Gambier's community plan.

Tony Roberts, manager for Islands Trust, told 32 Gambier residents that the legislation now being considered in Victoria will legally bind the trust to the plan's provisions exactly as it currently does the Sunshine Coast Regional Board. Roberts, speaking Saturday at a community meeting on the island, also disputed reports that the proposed legislation would allow provincial appointees to disregard island representatives in decision making.

The board for each of the 13 islands designated in the trust area would be composed of three general representatives, appointed by the government, and two local representatives, elected by the island, he said.

Although this does not give the provincial appointees majority representative, the Municipal Act under which the board would operate requires that decisions be made with a two-thirds approval, he said.

Thus, any action would require the support of at least four representatives for passage including at least one of the island representatives.

Bob Norminton of Sechelt dies

Well known Sechelt resident Bob Norminton died unexpectedly Wednesday, April 13.

Norminton was president of the Board of Trade and chairman of the St. Mary's Hospital Society Board at the critical beginnings of the new building at Sechelt. Taking his commitments seriously, he still enjoyed the challenges each presented.

He was manager of the B.C. Electric office which later became the British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority. It was a job that sometimes taxed this man with such a big heart in the days when power was cut off. It fell to him to inform people of the decision. The kind of man he was, this was not an easy task.

He was an avid fisherman. He not only loved to catch them but was an expert when it came to canning and smoking his catch.

Always a sportsman, Bob was one of the players on the Canadian Rugby team that went to Japan in 1932.

Bob's wife Mae will know that the many friends of her late husband wish her to call on them as they are her friends too.

A farewell memorial service was held Saturday at St. Hilda's Church with Reverend N.J. Godkin presiding. Many friends and fellow co-workers were there to remember Bob.

Bob is survived also by a son, Robert Sutcliffe of Carleton Place, Ont.; a daughter, Shirley Taylor of North Vancouver; a stepson, William John Smith of North Vancouver; a sister, Joan Fleming; nephew Bruce of Burnaby; brother Jack of North Vancouver, and 11 grandchildren. He was predeceased by a stepdaughter, Jay Bourgeois of Toronto, Ont.

Peninsula Recycling is closing down

Peninsula Recycling will go out of business in May after a decision last week by the regional district not to give the operation a $700 monthly subsidy.

"It's the tolling of the bell for Peninsula Recycling," said manager Tom Haigh glumly after hearing the news. "Only a very loud public outcry will save us now."

Haigh had approached Area 'E' director Ed Johnstone, one of the strongest opponents of the recycling operation, with a plea for money to keep the business open after the expiration of an LIP grant next month.

After what Haigh termed "a very long conversation" Johnstone agreed to go to the April 14 regional board meeting with a proposal that Haigh be subsidized until November when a public referendum on continued support of recycling could be held.

This motion, however, was defeated when the area directors split 4-4 on the vote. A two-thirds majority is needed to approve spending.

Johnstone's sudden support of Haigh caught the other board members by surprise. Peter Hoemberg asked him if he felt the recycling manager "had got his act together?"

The director replied that he had always had "mixed feelings about Tom Haigh's recycling but not about recycling in general." If the board agreed to approve the $700 a month then the provincial government would provide a matching grant, he said.

Haigh, Johnstone added, "has not much time left. He feels he's at the end of the road now. He would come here and make a proper application if he felt we would lean in his favour."

The suggestion to put a recycling referendum on the November ballot and to support Haigh until then was made by Gibson's representative Jim Metzler and immediately opposed by Area 'C' director Barry Pearson and Sechelt Alderman Morgan Thompson.

Pearson said that the board had made a motion last year not to support Haigh's operation. Johnstone replied that this stand had been negated when the board decided in January to endorse an application by Haigh for a Canada Works grant.

Wrangle continues around inspection review committee

By KERRA LOCKHART

Confusion continues to surround a special committee established to review decisions made by regional district building inspectors.

The committee, set up by Chairman Harry Almond, is illegal and threatens to alienate staff employees, charged Director Peter Hoemberg last week.

Area F Director Bernie Mulligan last Thursday resigned from the committee, citing a conflict of interest between the position and his plumbing business.

Some Regional District staff members interpreted Almond's remarks at the Thursday board meeting as indicating that the committee could reach beyond its originally stated purpose of "advice and guidance" to overrule local inspectors or the national building code.

Contacted later by the Times, Almond denied this interpretation, saying the committee "has no authority to decide anything."

If the committee were unable to resolve a complaint, it could make a recommendation to the Regional Board, Almond said. The board, at that point, would have to decide what action, if any, it wished to take, he said.

The Municipal Act establishes a Building Code Appeal Board, which is located in Victoria. According to the act, "Where a dispute arises respecting the interpretation of, or application of, the (building code), any party to the dispute may refer the question to the board for determination."

"The decision of the board is final and binding," according to the act.

No other provision for appeal of a building code decision is mentioned in the act. The Regional District operates under the authority of the Municipal Act.

When asked by the Times if the committee were intended solely as a public relations tool, Almond said, "Exactly."

He said, "In this area where building inspection has only been in effect for a few years, many people still feel they're living in the bush. People don't understand that building inspection is here to stay."

When setting up his committee at the end of March, Almond claimed area tradesmen were upset with the inspectors' insistence on a strict enforcement of the code.

A regional district staff member observed later that "the committee came out of the blue like a bombshell." Others maintain that the action is the first time the board has interfered with staff duties and that the complaints originate with only one local builder.

According to several employees

Almond had given the inspectors no chance to discuss the accusations before appointing himself, two tradesmen and director Mulligan to the committee.

Discontent with Almond's move boiled over at Thursday's board meeting when Area 'B' director Hoemberg asked for "further clarification," saying the last thing I want to do is create the feeling that this board is not prepared to back up what its building inspectors are presently doing. "I am a bit concerned," he added, "that it might be viewed as a criticism of the building department to establish this committee."

Hoemberg said that such a group had no legal power to overturn an inspector's ruling but that there was an appeal board in Victoria to handle any complaints arising from the code.

Replying that some people had "missed the point," Almond said "This committee can in no way change the building code or overrule the building inspectors' interpretation of the code. That's to be clearly understood." But when asked later in the meeting if the committee would always uphold the department Almond said, "The board will make the final decision on that."

"But the whole idea," Almond continued, "is for the public to feel that if they have any complaints they're not just dealing with one man and someone in Victoria they can't get except by letter. They can come and sit down and discuss the matter and have it clarified without having to go further."

That implies, said Hoemberg, "that if any member of the public is aggrieved by a decision of our building inspector that he would indeed have a chance to not only have his grievance heard, but also to have some changes made in the decision."

"The building inspector will be reinforced where it's necessary to reinforce the building inspector," Almond told the directors.

"And at times you will not reinforce the building inspector?" asked Hoemberg.

"The board will make the final decision on that," replied the chairman.

"But the point I would like to make is that it is not the jurisdiction of the board," Hoemberg argued.

"In that case the board will not make a decision," said Almond.

"Well, in that case why have it?" asked Hoemberg. "It is not the responsibility of the regional board to interpret the building code."

Supporting the chairman, committee appointee Bernie Mulligan told Hoemberg, "You should try and work in the bloody trades around here." The committee, he said, would only discuss interpretation of the code.

Hoemberg then suggested that Mulligan should resign from the group because, as a plumber, he "has to deal with the inspector on the other side of the fence." Mulligan said he would be happy to do so but added "I'll be damned if I want (the committee) filled up with building inspectors and engineers."

After hearing from Sechelt alderman Morgan Thompson that "Mr. Hoemberg has had the floor long enough," Almond told Hoemberg, "Let me finalize this thing

Local cost $1 million for St. Mary's expansion, says hospital director

It is going to cost local taxpayers over $1 million to pay for a proposed expansion to St. Mary's hospital in Sechelt.

That estimate was contained in a brief delivered last week to board members of the regional hospital district (SCHR) by a director of St. Mary's.

According to chartered accountant Warren McKibben less than half of the $2.75 million cost of the construction will be picked up by the provincial government, "leaving $1,190,000 to be raised on the local tax base."

McKibben, chairman of the hospital's expansion committee, said the probable mill increase would have to be between 1.45 and 1.69.

After hearing McKibben detail the proposals for the expansion, the SCHR agreed to draft a bylaw to raise the local financing. The board also established an advisory committee to report back to the board.

The committee was suggested by Peter Hoemberg, SCHR appointee to the hospital's board of directors. Saying he thought it unlikely that all the SCHR members "want to be bogged down with all the details of the expansion," Hoemberg stated a select committee could work together with the hospital on the plans.

The advisory group, he continued, should not be regarded by St. Mary's "as a group of outsiders checking up on the hospital."

The group will be formed by representatives from the Community

Resources Society, the Pender Harbour Health Clinic and the SCHR and will meet with McKibben's own committee.

McKibben's brief emphasized that it would be the service areas of the hospital that will be enlarged. Many of the proposals, he said, had been deferred over the years for budgeting reasons "and the hospital has been functioning at a disadvantage since then. Other areas," he claimed, "have been under an increasing strain due to the demands of an increasing population."

Some of the changes, said McKibben, were designed to serve any future expansion in direct patient care areas. Many of the new services will serve people on an out-patient basis, he said, "and are not affected by bed occupancy rates."

There have been questions raised in the past by some SCHR members for the need for any expansion at St. Mary's. The occupancy rate at the hospital has dropped sharply since the directors' decision not to replace the only surgeon, who is currently on a leave of absence.

The hospital directors had originally requested the Department of Health to approve a $4 million expansion budget but this was slashed by Victoria to the current $2.75 million last November.

This amount of money will provide new facilities for the emergency, laboratory, case room, operating, physiotherapy, clinical data and administration departments. The recovery, day care, X-ray, laundry and in-service rooms will be either altered or enlarged during construction.

McKibben pointed out that plans could still be changed by Victoria up to the start of the work. If the expansion is not commenced by this fall, said the accountant, all the plans will have to be converted to metric to comply with federal regulations.

"The costs of converting the plans and the bids from contractors will be substantially higher," said McKibben, "putting us over the maximum ($2.75 million) allowed by the Department of Health."

The hospital hopes to have all the construction tenders in by September 22 and awarded on October 13.

After the SCHR meeting Hoemberg observed the St. Mary's board had been "convinced" the SCHR would put the tax increase to public referendum.

Peninsula Recycling

It will be a sad event if Peninsula Recycling closes its doors next month as now seems likely.

Since its inception the concern has been subjected to much criticism, largely directed at the amount of money it spends relative to the quantity or recyclable material it collects.

All we can say in rebuttal is that that margin has continued to shrink over the months and that recycling operations are seldom, if ever, profitable undertakings in a financial sense. They are, however, profitable in the sense that their efforts, regardless of how tokenistic they may seem in the face of the enormous quantity of goods which we waste, are pointing us all in the direction we will surely need to go in the future.

We would urge Sunshine Coast residents who see a need for a local recycling operation to contact their regional director and request reconsideration of the vote not to temporarily subsidize Peninsula Recycling.

One man's opinion?

By Adrian Stott

Lately, when a government makes a decision counter to a current public feeling, it is quite common to hear the comment that the elected representatives concerned are acting as dictators. In fact, a recent letter to the Times said exactly this about the Regional District directors. However, the frequency of this accusation doesn't necessarily make it correct or fair.

We have elections because it just isn't practical for all of us to participate directly in the government process. Instead, we choose representatives to make governmental decisions for us. It is very dangerous for any individual to surrender this power to another, so we have the safeguard of a fixed term of elected office, but the system is still far from perfect.

A major problem is that we cast only one vote in each election, but our representative must deal with many issues during his term. Obviously we can't have an election over every issue — although we do have referenda on certain important ones — so instead there is the convention that those elected consider the views of their constituents for guidance between elections.

However, government is complicated. There are usually many factors relevant to each decision, and the information and precedents involved, even in a regional board matter, can stretch back over many years. Unless a person is directly involved, or spends the time needed to keep up to date (which isn't practical for most of us) he will often not be in a position to understand a current issue as completely as his elected representative.

The press helps considerably in this problem. But the perceptions or bias of any individual reporter are an inevitable factor in any story. Objectivity is an ideal which is often pursued but seldom completely attained in the reporting of any controversial or complicated issue. Reporters are instructed to be dispassionate in their news writing, but they are no less human than the rest of us. Because of this or because of space limitations, important facts are sometimes never reported, giving rise to the complaint "You can't believe all you read in the papers."

Also, there often just isn't time or resources to inform the public fully about each issue before the decision on it must be made. So, although the elected person may receive the message of public opinion loud and clear, he may feel that the course of action that opinion suggests would be wrong in the face of the broader information on the subject available to him because of his position. It isn't surprising, then, that some government decisions seem to ignore or go against the public mood, although this may simply be caused by conscientious legislators trying to make the right decision, rather than just the popular one.

So although governments are often open to the valid accusation of making bad decisions, I feel it isn't fair to accuse one of being dictatorial just because its decisions go against current public opinion. Not all the decisions a government must make can be popular, but I'm convinced that even the regional board's unpopular moves are being made in good faith, although a greater effort to explain them to the public would certainly be worthwhile.

Consistent unjustified disobedience to the public will surely result in a failure of directors to be re-elected. And that's a fate dictators never face.

Garden Corner

By GUY SYMONDS

"While the earth remaineth seed time shall not cease." In that ancient promise made to man, life on this earth has been able to subsist and develop. So here we are at the time of another miracle, repeated each year and so taken for granted.

To the person who likes to garden or to farm, all the operations have their own appeal. It feels good to tackle the land that has looked so desolate for so many months and to realize that despite its looks it is teeming with life and the promise of life. There is an infinite satisfaction in applying the things one has learned from experience or maybe from books, knowing that the earth will respond. There is infinite satisfaction, too, in accepting the challenge of weather and soil conditions, yes and even of the physical effort needed.

By now the hard work in the garden is pretty well under control and seed time is at hand. So let's talk about it. Promiscuous buying and sowing of seeds may satisfy philosophical demands, but it is not good gardening. There is a time and a place. All seeds are not the same and the seedling process is not the same for all. Some like a cool growing environment. Broad beans, green peas, sweet peas, Swiss chard and leeks, for example, will not develop happily in warm weather. Others like beans, corn and squash cannot tolerate cool wet weather. So one times the sowing to suit the demands of the seeds to be sown.

If you will spare a thought for this miraculous entity called a seed you will treat it with the deferential respect it deserves. Here's a tiny, almost infinitesimal object, carrot, radish, what you will that only wants the right conditions of warmth and moisture to burst out of the hard casing that has protected it all winter. It will fashion a root system and a temporary but highly efficient leaf and stem structure to take full advantage of everything that nature supplies for its growth. While these are developing it feeds on the nourishment contained in itself, enough to get those growth and feeding systems ready to take over by the time the built-in supply is exhausted.

To translate all this philosophy into practical terms — buy the seed you want in quantities you can handle. Do not rely on seeds left over from last spring. They may be alright but probably will not germinate to the extent that the new season's crop will. Certain seeds costs much more than it used to buy the outlay is still very small compared to the harvest.

Next, do not be in a hurry to sow the seed. Mostly the land in this coastal belt is light sandy and therefore easily warmed. Heavier land with more clay in it is always colder and needs different treatment. The urge to get the seed in the ground is natural universal, but should be restrained to keep in tune with the essentials of moisture and warmth. Do not sow in dusty soil.

Depth of sowing is very important and failure to recognize this is unquestionably the cause of much disappointment. Nature usually does not bury seed. Certainly a great deal of it forms part of the food chain and some is carried by birds and deposited far from its birthplace, complete with its own fertilizer supply. But we are mostly inclined to bury our seed too deep. Surface sowing very lightly covered to defeat the sharp eyes of the hungry birds is generally all that is required. In fact it is all that should be done. The information about planting depth is on most seed packages and should be studied. Even they seem to err on the side of too much depth.

To sum up, fresh seed, proper growing conditions of warmth and moisture and efficient sowing at the proper depth give these marvelous gifts from On High the opportunity to fulfill the other half of the promise that, as well as seed time, guarantees the time of harvest.

Good heart and health habits ingrained during childhood may, in later years, help the individual to avoid or at least delay heart attack.

"Thank goodness. Our attorney-general will be pleased it isn't that racist South African wine."

Earthquake survival aids

Poet's Corner

—Your contributions are invited

The danger of an earthquake probably is not high on the list of most Sunshine Coast residents' concerns. Living in a fault area, however, residents should be aware of emergency measures to be taken during and after a quake.

The following bulletin was prepared by the B.C. Civil Defence Department. Clip and save for reference in case of an earthquake.

DURING THE SHAKE

Do not panic. The motion of the earth is frightening, but unless it shakes something on top of you it is usually harmless.

If you are indoors when the earthquake starts, stay indoors. Take cover under a desk, table, bench, or in doorways of halls, and against inside walls. Stay away from glass and outside walls.

Do not use candles, matches or other open flames either during or immediately after a tremor. Douse all fires.

If the earthquake catches you outdoors, move away from buildings and utility wires. Once in the open, stay there until the shaking stops.

Do not run near or through buildings. The greatest danger from falling debris is just outside doorways and close to outer walls.

If you are in a moving car when the earthquake strikes, stop as quickly as safety permits, but stay in the vehicle. A car will bounce and jiggle terribly on its springs during the earthquake, but it is a good place to stay until the shaking stops.

AFTER THE SHAKING

Check your utilities, but do not turn them on. Earth movements may have ruptured water, gas and electrical conduits.

If you smell gas, open windows and shut off main valve. Then leave the building and report gas leakage to authorities. Do not re-enter the building until a utility official says it is safe.

If water pipes are damaged, shut off the supply at the main valve.

If electrical wiring is shorting out, shut off the current at the main meter-box.

If conditions permit, turn on your radio or television to get latest emergency bulletins. It is good practice to always keep a battery-operated radio ready for emergencies.

Accept only instructions and information from a recognized authority. Do not believe nor repeat rumours.

Do not use your telephone except to report an emergency.

Do not move about needlessly. Sight-seers are a hindrance to rescue workers and often become casualties themselves.

Do not undertake rescue operations on your own. Volunteer your services to the proper authorities. They have trained leadership and only volunteers properly registered with Civil Defence are covered by the Federal-Provincial Compensation Agreement.

TSUNAMI - THE KILLER WAVE

Of all the known killers of the sea, none creates more terror in the hearts of coastal dwellers than "tsunamis."

Tsunamis are the so-called tidal waves generated by some earthquakes, and whenever you receive a "tsunami" warning, you must expect that a dangerous wave is on the way to raise havoc and destruction.

Past experience teaches that when the killer waves strike, their victims are all too often those who failed to heed the warning.

If you live in any Pacific coastal area, tsunami warnings apply to you. They may also be generated in inland waters by severe earth disturbances.

Not all earthquakes cause tsunamis, but many do. When you hear that an earthquake has occurred, stay tuned to your radio station and stand by for a tsunami warning.

An earthquake in your area is an automatic tsunami warning. After a local earthquake, do not stay in low-lying coastal areas, but move to higher ground immediately.

A tsunami is not a single wave, but rather a series of waves. Stay away from danger areas until an all clear has been issued by a recognized authority.

Approaching tsunamis sometimes cause a noticeable rise, or fall, of coastal waters. This is one of nature's warnings, and should be heeded without hesitation.

A small tsunami at one beach can be a vicious killer a few miles away. Do not be fooled by the modest appearance of one wave. The next one may be a giant.

All tsunamis, like hurricanes, are essentially dangerous, even though they may not damage every coastline they strike.

Never go down to the beach to watch for a tsunami. When you are close enough to see the wave, you are most likely too close to escape it.

During a tsunami emergency, your local Civil Defence, city police and RCMP and other emergency organizations will be working to save lives. Give them your fullest co-operation.

Make yourself familiar with your local emergency plan, and help to make it as effective as possible. It is your business, and it may save your life.

It's Spring!

Tears from heaven wash the trees
Then they are dried with a gentle breeze—
All the while the sparrows sing
Telling all the world, "It's spring!"

Once more the world is painted bright
The day goes on for half the night—
Mother Nature's had her fling,
New life comes forth and it is spring.

Tulips, children, puddles and grass,
Mother Nature's looking glass—
Love and laughter's on the wing,
A new beginning, "It is spring!"

Pleased, but...

Editor, The Times,

We wish to thank you for the kind article in your March 30 issue on our new firm. In general we were very pleased by both the article's content and the style of reporting.

There are just two points we would like to clarify. Kevin Ryan's degree is in ar-

These aspects aside, the article made us feel warmly welcomed, and we thank you.

Squaringly yours

BY MAURICE HEMSTREET
Hi, there, top of the morning to you all. It must be morning because I just got up, but it seems that the clock on the wall is all wrong, however, no time to figure that one out right now so on with the square dance news.

April 2 the Country Stars and the teen beginner class from Gibsons joined Dewiss and Nora Brown at the Max Cameron High School gym in Powell River for a grand square dance graduation dance with about 12 squares on the floor all told (some didn't).

The evening started with a smorgasbord supper at the school and the ladies responsible for the supper really went all out and there is a great big thank you from us all (any or all of you can be my cooks anytime) then the square dancing started about 7:30 with fun for all with the graduation class and our teen class doing square dance figures with great ease that I am sure they had never done before as head caller Dewiss Brown second caller Harry Robertson third caller Larry Olson and of course squaringly yours. We all tried to stay within the square dance figures that were taught and I'm as sure that we wandered to a much higher level but the graduation classes still came thru with flying colours. It's funny but they told me to come forth and I did and lost the race.

One of the highlights of the evening was during the presentations of the square dance diplomas where a large square dance graduation cake was cut and then there was the square dance oath where all of the classes and all of the rest of the square dancers who had never taken the square dance pledge formed a large circle then the grand Master of Ceremonies started by saying, all raise your right hands and repeat after me (we all said we would) I solemnly swear in heart and mind — and at this point you will have to join the fun filled activity of square dancing and take the oath yourself to find out the rest.

One particular square dance teen couple caught my eye and I watched them quite a bit throughout the evening and all I can say is that they were fantastic in both square and round dances and by the time you reach my age of 39 and holding you will be the best in style, timing, courtesy and showmanship, keep up the good work.

At the ending of the evening all four callers were on hand to wind up with a patter call where the mike was passed from one to the other starting with Dewiss then to me and as soon as I had the mike, about five of the grad class came on stage with some kind of tissue and wrapped their caller teacher up completely from head to foot.

I passed the mike to Harry then on it went to Larry Olson and by this time Dewiss looked like a mummy, the kids made a small hole in the wrapping where they thought his mouth was and then the mike was passed back to Dewiss where he proceeded to finish the patter call by sound alone and I must say that Dewiss called superbly and it makes me wonder what Larry Olson's class will do to him on their grad. night April 23, how to find out, well just be there.

The Country Stars and our teen class wish to give Dewiss and Nora Brown, their grad class and all the square dancers in Powell River a great big thank you for a wonderful time.

April 8 with caller Harry Robertson on deck and his teen class on hand The Country Stars had a very successful evening with guests Nick Hunchak from the Swinging Singles, Burnaby Lake Pavilion, and his daughter Terry Hunchak from The Western Wranglers one of the many teen clubs in the Vancouver area, we hope that you enjoyed the evening and will come back again.

The wind up jamboree to be held 8 p.m. at the Gibsons Elementary School gym May 14 is shaping up very well with about, well maybe, hummmmm, at this time a wild guess would be about eight square dance clubs participating with a panel of callers on hand.

Well, anyway, keep that date in mind because right now I have to unbuckle my squares, climb on old blue and head for The Peninsula Times office, be sure to buy one, it is the only newspaper on The Sunshine Coast where you can get the facts about square dancing so hoping that you all had a Happy Easter I will see you at the next square dance signed Golden Tones.

JACQUELYN KONRAD examines a 250-pound side of beef which she won April 9, her birthday, in a draw at the SuperValu Store in Gibsons Sunnycrest Shopping Centre. To her left is store manager Blane Hagedorn. Konrad and her husband, David, a faller of Sechelt, say they intend to have a lot of company with all that meat. Hagedorn says the beef would cost about $237.50 at current prices.

jected to the wording of those amendments which gives primacy to environmental considerations in determining location of local booming, sorting and storage. The branch has insisted that economic rather than environmental factors should be determinant and that authority for such decisions should reside with the Lands Branch.

For the most part, the amendments simply clarify and make more specific the wording of the original plan, Addison said. The only amendment significantly altering the original wording is one which would delete the intent to secure a moratorium on timber licences on crown land for 40 years.

A second public meeting on the amendments will be held Wednesday, April 27, 7 p.m. in the Langdale Elementary School gym.

At the same meeting the Lyttle Bros. Ltd. proposal to establish a sawmill at Ouellette Creek will be discussed.

The gathering will also include a public hearing to consider bylaw 96.6. That bylaw would rezone five acres near the mouth of Twin Creek to Industrial 4 to permit a chipper mill operation.

right now. When the board overrules the building code then you can complain."

"When the board overrules the building code or when the board overrules the building inspector?" shot back Hoernberg.

"In either case, you can complain at that time too," Almond said.

The regional district staff, next warned Hoernberg, "feels it is not getting the backing of this board properly. Although that staff has been doing an excellent job so far, you are in danger of losing the co-operation of that staff in terms of goodwill."

He was worried, said the director, that the dispute over the committee could lead to the resignation of some of the building inspectors.

Almond said he had discussed the committee with Chief building inspector Morris-Reade, who is "quite prepared to give it a try."

At the conclusion of the board meeting Bernie Mulligan restated his wish to resign from the committee saying, "Already there has been a conflict of interest with my company."

Later Hoernberg said that Almond had set up the committee "to appease the public."

"The regional board," he told the Times, "is trying to shove its bad image onto its administrative staff. But it's unfair and illegal and I don't think the public will buy it."

Regional district employees are to hold a staff meeting this week to discuss the situation.

Happenings around the Harbour

PENDER HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

The PH Hospital Auxiliary will be celebrating its 40th anniversary May 11. Therefore on this same date they will be having an Anniversary Tea in the Legion Hall at 2:30 p.m. Admission will be $1 and door prizes are included. Guest speaker will be the Administrator of St. Mary's Hospital, Mr. N. Vucurevich.

ROYAL CANADIAN LEGION BR. 112

The Easter Bonnet Parade held at the Legion Br. 112 produced a very colourful display of hats. There were two that tied for first prize and from the applause there was no dividing the winners. Mrs. Caryl Cameron and Mrs. Hodgson both received first prizes. Second prize winners were Mrs. Jean Morrison and Mrs. Betty Adamson who also tied. The prizes were given for the most original (first) and most comical (second). The Harbour Lights Band was at its usual best with the exception that Doreen Lee was unable to join them as she is still recuperating from her accident down south. The mural behind the band was painted by Joe Harrison and it featured fishing boats. Mr. and Mrs. Mike Cashaback celebrated their fourth wedding anniversary at the Legion the same evening as the Easter Dance.

NEW PROGRAMS FOR SPRING

Starting April 22 at 2 p.m. "Mother and Tots Swimming" to be held at the home of Fred and Norma Duthie, Sunshine Coast Highway, Madeira Park. Children must be three and over accompanied by mother or adult in the water. This will be a water-fun experience with the idea to adjust and relax the child in the water, for future lessons. This service is brought to you free of charge from the Physical Fitness Service and the compliments of Duthie Plumbing and Heating. It is hoped that grade 4 and 4 students swim classes will be starting within a week or two. These classes will run until June. Other recreation events are running smoothly.

The girls exercise and ballet class are learning aerobic dancing and hope to put a routine on at the end of the school year. The boys floor hockey is well attended and as the weather gets warmer they might try field hockey. Anyone interested in archery? Some equipment is available for use and it might be just your thing and this sport has no age limit. Call Robi Peters for information on any of the classes. Roller skating as usual 10:30 - 12 Saturdays, 12 and under 50 cents and it is held at the Community Hall. Number to call is 883-9923.

Candy strippers receive awards

A year has passed since the last award night for the Junior Volunteers to St. Mary's Hospital, and the girls in their candy stripe uniforms have amassed more hours to their credit.

The evening of Friday, April 15, in the cafeteria of St. Mary's Hospital 40 or so people were on hand. This included parents and friends and fellow auxiliary members from the six auxiliaries.

Mrs. Muriel Eggers, Volunteer Director, advisor, confidant, supporter, the lady who has brought these girls along to fill a need in the hospital, welcomed the gathering.

Introducing Ida Leslie, President of Gibsons Auxiliary, who presented 25 hour certificates to Helen McKennie, Sylvia Webb, Loretta Harrison, Nella Pisanu, and Jenny Garnet.

Val Morrison, R.N. Head Nurse on the second floor awarded caps to Helen McKennie, Sherry Friesen, Jenny Garnet, certificate and cap achieved by Charlene Danroth but not present to receive.

President of the Co-ordinating council for the six auxiliaries Chris Ward told the girls how much their work was appreciated. The gift shop and wards benefited from their time. Chris hoped they would continue on and perhaps take up nursing as a profession. She then pinned Sherry Friesen with her 100, 150 and 200 hour pins, Dianna Webb 150 hours, and Rhyl Wood her 100 hour pin.

Chairman of the Board for St. Mary's Hospital Society, Gordon Hall, had the honor of presenting Wendy Flay with her 250 hour pin and 300 hour pins.

Volunteer Director Muriel Eggers pinned Debbie Newman with the most hours 400. Many of these were spent in aiding the director in many ways.

Debbie is already carrying on in the medical field. Started out in Langley Memorial for her first year in volunteer, continuing on in Sechelt, now she is on her first step to becoming a nurse. Enrolled at the Malaspina College in Nanaimo, Debbie urges any girl planning on going into nursing to do so.

Wendy Flay on behalf of the Juniors presented a memento to Debbie. Willie Rodgers, President of Roberts Creek, presented a gift from the gift shop volunteers. The Juniors man the gift shop in the hospital Saturdays and Sundays, taking over other days in the summer months and doing a great job. Especially in this area Debbie Newman was one of the mainstays.

Muriel Eggers pinned a lovely rose corsage on the candy stripper of the day Debbie Newman. Each of the Junior volunteers had fresh carnation corsages. Twelve Junior volunteers pledged in unison to the hospital including the award winners and Debbie Seymour and Linda Hansen.

Physiotherapist Ian Hunter told how well the girls had worked in his department last summer and hoped they would remember summer was approaching again, when replacements are needed for vacationing volunteers.

Mary Redman provided piano music. Entertainment was provided by the Middleton children from Gibsons. A very talented family, Debbie, 10 years old, was winner of the outstanding dancer award in recent local festival, Leanne, 8, twins Angela and Suzanne, 7, Dougie, five.

Director of Nursing Dana Kearney attended to the tea and coffee for the hospital, cakes and sandwiches from the Auxiliaries. A gorgeous red and white huge cake with caps, scrolls and 400 with roses were the decorations on the top.

Representing the medical staff, Dr. John Farrer was the speaker for the evening. Here two years Dr. Farrer originally from Melbourne, Australia, trained in England, spent three years in Newfoundland and looks like he stepped out of the case of that British show "Is

There a Doctor In The House."

We found Dr. Farrer's remarks particularly interesting and thought it might be useful to reprint them here.

Dr. Farrer:

"While you work in the hospital you see many things happening. You see acutely ill people, some of whom can be saved by techniques which may have been around for only a few years, and some who can't. You see the chronically ill and the measures which are taken to keep them as happy and comfortable as possible. You see strange psychiatric illness, which may be quite difficult to understand.

"You see tragedies, like the sudden unexpected death of a young person — as well as happy events like the birth of a baby.

"Sometimes it seems as if a hospital is a fancy garage, where people who have gone wrong come in to get fixed up, and many people think that is just what it is.

"I would like to give you another way of looking at it. You see, most of the people who arrive here sick had a problem long before they arrived at admitting. In order to show you what I mean, I have invented a few imaginary patients to tell you about. They are all imaginary, but I am sure you have all seen real people like them.

"First there is Bob, he came in last night with a broken leg, and he is waiting for an ambulance to take him to Vancouver so he can have it fixed up.

He hit a tree in his car last night, but his problem started three years ago when he began visiting a local drinking establishment three times a week. Now this may not be a bad thing in itself. But he used to drive home loaded. He will continue to have a problem until he either cuts down on his drinking or learns to take a cab home.

"Then there's Bill. He is a hardworking real estate salesman who came in a week ago with severe chest pain. His doctor diagnosed a heart attack. His problem really started 10 years ago when he decided that he was too busy to take regular exercise, but he wasn't too busy to eat and drink too much.

"With the right treatment and a bit of luck, he will get over his heart attack, but he will not be cured until he understands that all the real estate sales in the world will not make up for a heart which doesn't work properly.

"Then there's Donna. She has a cough and a high temperature. It started as a slight cold and might have ended that way, but for one thing. Then she became very ill and her doctor diagnosed pneumonia. Now she is in bed on intravenous antibiotics and having a rough time, although she will get better. I said she might have got better but for one thing, and that may have got some of you wondering. Others will know the answer. Donna started smoking when she was 15. Now she smokes one pack a day, and as any self-respecting germ knows, all smoker's lungs are a place where it can have a really good time.

"In another bed is old Mable. She talks strangely all out of one side of her mouth, and she is paralyzed down one side. She has had a stroke. It started as a mild case of high blood pressure, but she kept forgetting to take her medication! One day the strain got too much for one of the blood vessels in her brain.

"I could go on telling you about many other people, but I think you should have the right idea by now. People who end up in hospital don't just "get ill." They have usually been on the way there for months or years.

"They are the concern of anyone connected with health and if they should end up in hospital, people concerned with health have, in a sense, failed.

"And who is concerned with health? "Not just doctors and nurses, but you, and your friends, and anyone who believes that people are better off not lying in hospital beds.

"If you fix the patients' illness without healing the cause, we have only done half the job. We have not really cured his disease, and if we all learn to look at it this way, it becomes possible to cure the disease before the patient even arrives in hospital.

"This brings me to my six basic rules for staying out of hospital — as a patient that is!

"You can talk about how much of this or that vitamin you need, or whether you should eat that kind of meat or not. You can discuss endlessly about what someone has shown about some food additive or what insecticides do to Panamanian toads. But these are all minor. Perhaps a few people have got cancer from saccharine, but millions have died from overweight.

"My six rules are:
"1. Don't smoke — ever.
"2. Drink in small amounts and never before driving (one in four in hospital).
"3. Don't eat more than you need to, and don't eat highly processed foods.
"4. Always wear a seat belt. You or the driver of your car may be safe, But what lunatic are you likely to meet?
"5. Exercise regularly.
"6. Remember, whatever dreams you may want to pursue, you have to be healthy to appreciate them.

1. 20 to 30% more efficient combustion makes the flame up to 1000 degrees hotter.
2. Because of the much higher combustion temperature it makes it necessary to reduce the size of nozzle, eg. .85 to .65
3. No fire brick to heat up, to burn the oil, and to continually cool down cold oil and air being sprayed into the fire pot.
4. The efficiency of your furnace is greatly increased eg. 71% to about 85%.
5. This oil burner is 20 to 30% more efficient, can be installed into any existing residential boiler or furnace and can be set for 0soot.

Halfmoon Bay Happenings

—by Mary Tinkley

The Halfmoon Bay Fire Committee has received official approval of a grant of $22,000 from the Canada Works Programme for the hiring of people for the building of the fire hall.

The Easter weekend was an exciting one for Jack and Jean Mercer of Secret Cove. On April 9, there was the wedding of their daughter, Wendy, a report on which we hope to have ready for you next week.

On April 11, Nancy, the wife of their eldest son John, gave birth to the Mercer's first grandchild. Nancy had attended the wedding. She kept her appointment with the stork just two days later, giving birth at St. Mary's Hospital, to an 8 pound 14 ounce daughter, Sheena Irene. Sheena's other grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Wiley of Pender Harbour who already have 16 grandchildren.

Mrs. Violet Woodman is being welcomed home after a sudden illness which confined her to St. Paul's Hospital, Vancouver, for 16 days while she underwent tests and observations. Still very weak when she left St. Paul's Hospital, she spent a few days recuperating at the home of her son, Bill and his wife Donna in Delta. Vi pays high tribute to her daughter-in-law, who drove from Delta to visit her in St. Paul's every day during her stay there. Donna also drove her home to Seacrest, and stayed for a day or two, cleaning the house from top to bottom so that her mother-in-law could take the rest she needed without worrying about housecleaning. Vi wants to thank all her friends for their cards, visits and many kindnesses. Many suncoasters called to see her in St. Paul's and her younger son, Dave, flew down from Vernon twice to visit her.

Halfmoon Bay Recreation Commission held its regular monthly meeting at the Welcome Beach Hall April 11. Among the events planned were a pancake breakfast at the Welcome Beach Hall on May 8, Mothers' Day, from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. The meeting also discussed a suggestion for an entry in the Timber Days Parade in Sechelt May 22. Any children who would like to participate should telephone Mrs. Wickwire at 885-9750. The commission holds regular meetings at the Welcome Beach Hall on the second Monday in each month, with the next meeting scheduled for May 9. Chairman Peggy Connor wishes to stress that the Recreation Commission has no set membership but represents all adults and children interested in recreation in the Halfmoon Bay area up to an including NorWest Bay and Secret Cove.

Another local organization planning to take part in Timber Days is the Halfmoon Bay Hospital Auxiliary which will organize a tea garden, serving tea, coffee, cookies and pies. The convener will be Grace Rutherford, assisted by Eileen Hansen.

At the auxiliary's April meeting, members heard a report of the St. Patrick's Day Bazaar which had proved very satisfactory and were reminded of the Blood Donors' Clinic to be held from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. on April 28. RN Nancy McKay was assisted by Doreen Richardson in the showing of a film on self-examination for the detection of breast cancer. The auxiliary's next thrift shop duty will be on April 30 and donations will be most welcome.

Daryl and Elsie Kippin of Surrey, accompanied by their two sons, Scott and Todd, spent the Easter holidays on Merry Island visiting Daryl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Kippin. On their way home last Thursday, they took time out to play the Good Samaritan, when they found Don Ross had run his car off his driveway into the bush. Having got him safely back on the road, they were still able to make their ferry for home.

Back at Redroofs after a two week holiday in California are Bill and Frances Urquhart. They accompanied their son Ross, his wife Lynne and their two children and some friends in a second car. Quite early on they learned how hopeless it was for the two cars to try to travel together, for they became separated in the long line-ups at the border, after which they travelled independently, planning to meet at the next stopping place each day.

Travelling down the coast on Highway 101, they stopped for a visit to the sea lions' caves in Oregon. The sea was very rough at the time with high waves breaking against an almost vertical rock cliff. The sea lions had been out feeding and were trying to get back on to the rocks. Both the adults and the children were fascinated to watch the manoeuvres of the sea lions in their valiant attempts to get ashore. They would watch for a big incoming wave, very much as a surf rider would do, and would ride the wave as it came in. Often they would land on the smooth rounded section of the rock and would be swept back into the water by the backwash. When they landed in one of the crevices of the rock they would quite often be successful in hanging on.

At San Francisco the party visited Fisherman's Wharf. They had hoped to take a ride in the cable car but there was a power failure and, after waiting for half an hour, they gave up the idea. They spent three nights in Monterey where they enjoyed the government wharf, the good restaurants and the abundance of wild life, including sea lions and many species of birds.

It was impossible to find a motel in Anaheim, but the Urquharts found good accommodation at Cost Mesa, 15 miles south of Anaheim where they spent three nights. They had a most enjoyable visit to Disneyland it is difficult to ascertain who enjoyed it most, Grandpa or the grandchildren.

Returning home by Highway 5, they stopped for some shopping at Portland where they had the excitement of seeing a real life "cops and robbers" episode. A shoplifter, running from Lloyds' Centre, was being chased by a young store clerk, while security guards radioed for police help. The store clerk caught up with the shoplifter before he had gone more than a block and by that time a police car was on the spot to take him into custody.

The fit never quit.

A FINAL RENDERING of the east wall of Vancouver's newly-restored Orpheum Theatre. The Orpheum, largest theatre in Canada or on the Pacific coast, which opened in 1927, was once the

The Orpheum lives — rejoice

By MARYANNE WEST

A few weeks ago an official letter arrived resplendent with Vancouver's coat of arms. I opened it, with some degree of curiosity, to find a formal invitation from the City of Vancouver to the opening of the Orpheum. Puzzled for a while, I wasn't aware we knew anyone on city council. I then remembered that two or three years ago we had made a nominal donation to the Save the Orpheum Fund. A nice gesture of the City Fathers to remember everyone who helped in however a small way and send them an invitation. Such thoughtfulness being deserving of some measure of reciprocity, we went.

It was, of course, an occasion of rejoicing and, if one can relate the equivalent of human feelings to an inanimate object, rejoicing not least for the Orpheum itself. In 1927 it was the largest theatre in Canada or on the Pacific Coast, and it watched over the last great days of Vaudeville, the end of silent movies and the beginnings of the "talkies". Within its encircling colonnades the symphony developed from a small community ensemble to an orchestra with a national and international reputation.

The city searched out people who had been associated with the theatre in those early days and those who had attended the opening in November 1927, which included a silent movie, "The Wise Wife" starring Phyllis Haver and a number of on-stage vaudeville acts. Then, as now, there were the official speeches, and I suppose somewhere in the archives the texts are available. I find myself wondering what Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith, M.L.A., said in her 1927 "Appreciation from the Women of British Columbia."

The 1977 version was a mixture of the pomp and ceremony, befitting the Orpheum's Spanish Renaissance opulence, and speeches from all levels of government which were happily brief and informal. A pipe and drum escort and a trumpet fanfare announced the arrival of the official party. Somehow trumpeters in sombre green uniforms playing the part of medieval heralds seems incongruous. For the past three years the Orpheum has echoed not to orchestral harmonies but to the reverberation of hammer and drill and the slip-slap of paint brushes. A collage of sounds and voices from this period introduced the program, at once a tribute to all who worked on the restoration and a link between one group of professional craftsmen and another, the musicians to whom the theatre was being officially presented.

The stories of the Orpheum's excellent acoustics haven't been exaggerated. It's so compact under the painted dome that it's hard to believe the seating capacity is almost equal to the Queen Elizabeth. It now as a modern, built-in sound system as well, and a battery of amplifiers and speakers which descends dramatically from a panel high in the dome. John Roberts, the Secretary of State, joked that he had expected it to announce "thus spake Zarathustra!" It has power enough to nearly lift you out of your seat in the upper balcony.

Understandably, I suppose, the nostalgia which save the Orpheum from the wreckers didn't involve many of the under thirties, few of whom were in Saturday's audience, but the theatre will be a valuable addition to Vancouver's musical community and concert goers of whatever age or persuasion.

The celebration brought together musicians and lovers of music from across the country for the evening symphony performance, while the afternoon ceremonies linked the past and those who had been associated with the early days with the future as the children from the Community Music School studying violin by the Suzuki method performed with professional ease and confidence. It reminded us again that mankind doesn't progress from A to B in a straight line but by a spiral of circles.

It seems something out of a fairly tale that the artist who had worked on the original decorations could be found. And not only found fifty years and more than 750 theatres later, Tony Heinsbergen, now 82 years old, returned to supervise the interior decorations. Even more amazing, he painted the canvases for the mural which surrounds the dome and with the help of two assistants worked on the 70-foot high scaffolding putting the finishing touches to his work.

Mr. Heinsbergen, who in his long career has decorated churches and temples, libraries, hotels, restaurants and civic buildings of all kinds, works from diminutive, but meticulous, scale drawings, the design painted in water colours. A selection of these drawings — many of them the working models he presented to a client with suggestions for a roof or set of panels — can be seen in the Vancouver Art Gallery until April 24. Included are work from the early twenties to the preliminary drawings for the restoration of the Orpheum.

These sorts of skills are rarely taught in contemporary North American art schools, and the architects were equally fortunate in finding Josephy Tinucci, a craftsman capable of reproducing the Orpheum's ornate plasterwork. Mr. Tinucci learnt his craft from his father in Italy and studied at the Florentine School of Art.

It was our first visit to the Orpheum but there are probably people living on the Sunshine Coast who remember how in the days of the Depression thirties it was possible for a dime to enter the Orpheum's doors, climb the plush carpeted staircases to balcony and surrounded by all the warmth and extravagance of gold leaf and velvet hangings, crystal chandeliers and silk wallpaper, escape to another world of Hollywood's imagining.

Secret Cove gets final ok

The much debated strata title development in Secret Cove was given the final go-ahead last week by the regional board after months of public hearings and delay.

The motion to approve the project's land-use contract was moved by Peter Hoernberg who is the board director for the Secret Cove area.

Local residents have strongly objected to plans by the owners of the Secret Cove marina to build 29 houses in the cove and expand the existing boat moorage. They charge the development is unsuitable for the rocky terrain in the area and will add substantially to water pollution in the small harbour.

At a second public hearing held last month a 116-name petition opposing the land-use contract was handed to the regional directors.

At the same meeting a Vancouver lawyer, hired by residents of the cove, presented a brief outlining the objections to the development.

These objections had been noted, regional district planner Paul Moritz told the directors at their April 14 meeting, and had led to some changes in the final draft of the contract.

The developers have scrapped their plans to provide water for fire protection from a swimming pool and instead will install a 60,000 gallon covered tank, said Moritz.

The planner told the board that the move eliminates one of the residents' major criticisms which concerned the safety of supplying water from an open pool. Extra fire fighting equipment is also to be provided.

Another change, said Moritz, clarified the point that the homes could not be occupied before the installation of the sewage disposal system, something the original contract "didn't say in so many words."

If approval is not granted to put extra parking stalls on Department of Highways property then the developer will now have to provide the space within the project, explained Moritz.

"The final major change," he said, "is the question of service bonds." A financial bond covering 50 percent of the cost of installing the sewage system is to be deposited with the regional district for a period of two years. The money will then be returned minus any amount the district has had to spend to service the system in the event the developers do not maintain the facility.

A further $35,000 is to be deposited with the district for five years to "ensure the care a replanting of vegetation" uprooted during construction. "People are concerned," said the planner, "that this development is going to create an eyesore. It was one of the major points at the public hearings." The bond would ensure that the replanted vegetation takes hold at the site which Moritz described as "a very steep, very rocky area that faces south to southwest."

Some directors objected that the bonds were an "awful lot of money" but Moritz observed that "it's a very complicated land-use contract and the public has to be protected." The developers had agreed to post the bonds, he said, noting that the actual money did not have to be deposited but only a bond guarantee that the funds were available if required.

After Hoernberg's motion to approve the development easily passed, director Bernie Mulligan demanded "how the hell can you build on this peninsula if you have to come up with that sort of money?" Reminded that the developers had consented to the bond, Mulligan replied, "They were forced into signing."

From the pulpit

By PASTOR GERRY FOSTER

Homosexuality is on the increase today in our society. One report said it is becoming more popular "amongst top executives, university students, professors and even priests". In fact a member of the latter group wrote that he is "no longer ashamed of myself" and that he knows "that homosexuality is the normal and natural part of my personality".

This comment is rather interesting. First of all he says, "no longer ashamed" suggesting that shame and conviction of wrong-doing once accompanied his homosexual activity. Now shame has disappeared. But this is the way it is with all persons and regardless of what the sin is. At first we know it to be wrong but then our hearts become hard and we lose all sensitivity. But is something right because we no longer feel a sense of shame? Never, because God never changes. His holiness is the same as it was when He first instructed the human race in moral matters.

Secondly the above quote said "that homosexuality is the normal and natural part of my personality". What does the Bible say about it? Speaking of a period of moral decay it says: "women exchanged natural relations for unnatural ones and in the same way the men also abandoned natural relations with women and were inflamed with lust for one another. Men committed indecent acts with other men." Homosexuality is sin. And the new emphasis on it in society indicates the moral degradation that we as a nation are currently facing. Repentance and personal faith in Jesus Christ, who dies that we might be forgiven, is the only thing that can save us.

Feedback

By JAMES MANCHESTER

This week we begin a series of reviews of local restaurants by food and wine authority James Manchester. Mr. Manchester holds a diploma from the Paul Mayer School of Cooking in San Francisco and has served as head chef on cruise vessels and in several noted establishments. He has travelled extensively through Europe, Africa, Scandinavia, the United States and the South Pacific, as well as Canada from coast to coast. Now a resident of the Sunshine Coast, Mr. Manchester notes the increasing number and diversity of local eating establishments and feels that their qualities should be introduced to the people of the Sunshine Coast.

BONNIEBROOK LODGE
Ocean Beach Esplanade
Gibsons,
886-9033

Open for dinner every day
Unlicensed.

Owned and operated by the Achterberg family, the Bonniebrook Lodge is superbly situated at Gower Point with a fine view over the Georgia Strait.

Ordering dinner at the Bonniebrook is an experience in itself. There is no menu; one calls in the morning to confer with Mrs. Achterberg on the availability of fresh meats, fish and produce. The diner thus has the unique feeling of actively participating in the bill of fare, a welcome alternative to reading through a pre-printed list in the hope of finding something one fancies. One is also assured of the main ingredients' freshness.

Cooking is decidedly homestyle wholesome. Although the Achterbergs are of Dutch descent, B.C. residents will find the dishes neither unpronounceable nor unpalatable. It's a fine place to enjoy simple family dining. Quantities are ample, with the main dishes surrounded by soup, salad, rolls and vegetables. Dessert is available as an extra. For $7 per dinner, one is assured of not leaving hungry.

Our only complaint at a recent dinner was that the vegetables were limp and overcooked — one suspects they were frozen. However, apparently later in the season the Achterbergs' own garden provides a variety of fresh produce for the table.

Despite this drawback and the rather uncreative style of fare, the Bonniebrook remains a pleasant dining experience.

Board approves student excursions

Sechelt School District Trustees last week approved wilderness experience excursions for students at Gibsons Elementary and Pender Harbour Secondary.

About 43 Gibsons students from grades four and five will spend three days at Gambier Island's Camp Latona.

The Pender Harbour trip will include about 25 students and is a one-week excursion to Cape Scott Provincial Park on Vancouver Island.

In other action, the board, meeting last Thursday at West Sechelt Elementary, approved a schedule for the process of selecting a new principal for Sechelt Elementary. Current Sechelt Principal Sam Reid will become principal at Gibsons Elementary.

April 30 is the closing date for applications for the job. A community meeting was set for May 4. Short listing for the position will be May 7 with interviews to follow on May 14 and 15.

The board also struck a committee to select two students for provincial scholarships, which will be awarded through the district.

The committee will be composed of the high school principals, Director of Instruction John Nicholson and Trustee Peter Preccsek.

Handicapped camp free now

Free camping privileges in provincial parks, recently approved for senior citizens, have been extended to include physically and mentally handicapped persons.

The parks branch has, for the past two years, been building all new public facilities in accordance with the national building code requirements for the physically handicapped. Major projects such as the new nature houses opened last year at Goldstream Provincial Park near Victoria and at Kokanee Creek Provincial Park near Nelson and their toilet buildings and changehouses have the requisite ramps and other features to accommodate the physically handicapped.

This extension of free camping privileges is additional to the free camping in parks already available to organized groups including the handicapped.

The pros and cons of driftwood fires

If you plan to burn driftwood and your heating unit or chimney is made of cast iron or mild steel, you will have to face the possibility that corrosion will probably occur somewhat faster than would otherwise be the case. (No worry with brick or stainless steel).

Metal plus salt plus moisture unfortunately spells corrosion. Of course, it follows that the extent to which this happens will vary with the amount of salt in the driftwood and moisture in the air. It will also depend to some extent on the way you handle your ashes. This is because a good part of your salt content will remain in the ashes, since the boiling point of salt (sodium chloride) is in excess of 1400 degrees centigrade, a heat not reached in an ordinary wood fire. Ashes tend to absorb moisture from the air in an unheated room, producing the very combination of moisture, salts and metal that speeds the corroding process.

The trick is not to leave your ashes lying in the grate after your fire is out and the room cools off. The following lazy man's method that will slow the rate of damage. Supposing for purposes of illustration you have a metal acorn fireplace. Place an aluminum foil liner below the grate in such a way that it will catch your ash. This will both protect the metal floor and provide an easy quick way to carry out the ashes whenever your room is to remain unheated for any length of time. You just bundle them up in the foil and dump.

If good supplies of driftwood are right before your door and you are debating the question of "to burn or not to burn," here are a few thoughts you might wish to turn over in your mind: On the one hand, you risk shortening the life of your heating unit and may have to replace it somewhat sooner. On the other, firewood can run anywhere from $25 to $75 a cord and driftwood costs you nothing. Calculating comparative costs you might find that in the long haul, burning driftwood ends up on top.

Cable TV rate hearing in Vancouver May 3

Coast Cable Vision's application for a rate increase will be considered in a public hearing in Vancouver Tuesday, May 3.

The company is asking for a 27 percent hike in residential service, from the current $5.50 per month to $7.

Also requested in an increase in the monthly rate for additional outlets from $1.25 to $1.50 and in the charge for initial installation of a cable outlet from $15 to $25.

The hearing before the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission is on an application originally made by the company in March, 1976, according to local manager Carl Bobardt.

He noted that if the application is approved it will be the first rate hike for the company since its inception in 1970. Bobardt said Coast Cable Vision has 3,000 local subscribers.

By way of comparison, Bobardt offered the following monthly rates for cable television service in other areas:

Vancouver, $5.75; New Westminster, $6; Squamish, $7; and Powell River, $6.50. Bobardt said Powell River applied in January for an increase in the monthly rate to $8.

The Leisure Outlook This Week

Shakespeare to hockey

This week CBC radio visits the Farmer's Market in St. John, N.B.; salutes the 361st anniversary of Shakespeare's death, begins live coverage of World Hockey from Vienna as Canada ices a team for the first time since 1969 and presents a major documentary on Russian Poet Vladimir Mayakovsky, 1893-1930.

Mayakovsky was the most boisterous of the Russian futurists, described by his friend and contemporary Boris Pasternak as the foremost poet of his generation. He wrote of his dramatic love affairs, literary and political quarrels and the whole panorama of his life with such fervour it was impossible to be indifferent to him. He was a huge, clumsy, gentle man with wit and generosity as massive as his shoulders, who was given to striding down the street wearing a bright yellow tunic, top hat, clown's mask and with a wooden spoon and a radish in his button hole. Special Occasion, Sunday, 5:05 p.m. will stage a dramatic "meeting" with this multi-faceted eccentric.

Team Canada takes to the ice against the U.S. in its first championship game Thursday at 11:30 a.m. Actor Alan King presents the best of the Bard on Anthology, Saturday at 10:05 following the visit to the St. John market at 9:05 p.m.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 20

Mostly Music 10:20 p.m. Edmonton Symphony Orchestra and the Canadian Brass, Purcell's trumpet Sonata and Beethoven's Symphony No. 2.

Nightcap 11:20 p.m. Theatre and actors.

Clint Eastwood returns in Harry Callahan role

Clint Eastwood returns to the screen as Harry Callahan when "The Enforcer" opens at the Twilight Theatre on Wednesday, April 20.

This time Dirty Harry faces a vicious group of terrorists who have the city of San Francisco at their mercy until Harry takes them on with his .44 magnum in a series of gun battles.

"The Enforcer," the third in the series for Eastwood, was filmed on location in San Francisco and the island of Alcatraz which once held some of America's most dangerous criminals.

Appearing with Eastwood in the film are Bradford Dillman, Harry Gaudino, John Mitchum and Tyne Daly.

The film deals with the new types of urban terrorism police in some cities face today. As the original "Dirty Harry" and in "Magnum Force," Eastwood plays the maverick officer who would rather apply direct action than go by the book. "The Enforcer" runs through Saturday, April 23. It is rated restricted and carries the warning of brutal violence throughout.

Sharing the bill on Friday and Saturday are two Walt Disney films, "Never a Dull Moment" and "The Three Caballeros."

Running at the Twilight Sunday, April 24, to Tuesday, April 26, is "Gator," starring Burt Reynolds.

Reynolds portrays an ex-moonshiner undercover agent in this adventure film. It is rated for mature audiences and carries the warning of occasional violence and coarse language.

BOOK LOOK

by Murrie Redman

THE ART OF KISSING by Hugh Morris, Doubleday Dolphin Books, 119 pages, $2.25 historical treatment of great kisses. It is certainly not a study of the physiological effects of kissing. Neither is it a dirty book. What is it, then? It is a portion of each with a large share of satire mixed in.

Hugh Morris treats his subject in the manner and style of the flapper era. His choice of words is satiny and his phrases are outrageously romantic. Even illustrator Emanuel Schongut participates with his art-deco style line drawings and the 1920 embellishments that he uses to decorate each second page. Ladies languish in the arms of besuited lovers offering "cherry-red lips". Swooning females drape themselves on divans looking wistfully up at the handsome gentlemen looming dreaming over their sofa back.

The text is directed toward the young gentleman who wishes to have lessons in the correct application of the caress. The author recommends whispering "sweet, airy nothings in her ear" and bussing her with gentle kisses like "the touch of a butterfly's wing". Remembering the ever-famous line, "all women like to be flattered", the ardent swain charts his course on the road to romance using the kiss in all its variety as his vehicle.

After the first few pages, I began to laugh aloud at the book's unabashed sexist overtones, but by the end, I sighed just a little for the days when love was a game and not "an unconscionable burden on any healthy relationship."

Could it be, I asked myself, that permissiveness destroyed something that our grandparents once enjoyed and that keeps them together in these days of the quickie divorce?

Just out March 18, THE ART OF KISSING promises to be popular with the newly revived short-haired, pointy-toed generation that likes old Boston Blackie movies and kissing "the fully flowered romantic" way.

HOSPITAL ACTIVITIES

Thirty members and two guests of the Gibsons Auxiliary to St. Mary's Hospital met Wednesday, April 6, at the Coast Garibaldi Health Unit.

Guests were Mrs. Valerie Wilson, who is the area representative of the hospital auxiliaries of the Lower Mainland, and Mrs. Germaine Olson, Mrs. Wilson's secretary. Mrs. Wilson spoke briefly, encouraging auxiliaries to accept the responsibility of an executive position not only in their own auxiliary, but also on the area level. She also urged us to attend Convention in May, with the idea in mind of what we can put into it. We can exchange ideas with other auxiliaries, and form strong friendships.

We were reminded of the Hospital Society meeting 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 20 in the Sr. Citizen Hall, Sechelt. A workshop on Parliamentary Procedures was brought to our attention. We, with the other five auxiliaries, have been invited to Tea by the Board of Trustees and the Staff of St. Mary's Hospital, June 26.

Gladie Davis reported four and a half tables of bridge on March 28. Miss Thatcher reported sending sympathy card and get well card during March. Annie Metcalfe reported that six members spend 21 hours in Extended Care, hosting a double birthday party on March 14. Jean Longley donated two beautiful corsages to the birthday ladies. Gentlemen are now welcome to join the Auxiliary. Men patients will be happy to have one of their own give them some of the attention they have hitherto had only from the ladies; it will be a treat for them to engage in some men-talk.

Oney DeCamp reminded us of the paint-in at the Thrift Shop on April 17. Three ladies worked ten hours at the shop plus several hours collecting, sorting and arranging articles. Four workers spent 20 hours helping in Therapy during March. Vases and flowers were sent to two hospitalized members. A minute's silence was spent in honor of our late auxiliary, Miss Dorothy Biggs.

Mrs. Lowther knit five baby sets to be sold at the Gift Shop, and Mrs. Enemark, who makes the afghans we raffle, had her sister visiting her from California and Mrs. Alma Stoffersen knit six knee afghans for our extended care patients. These are so colorful, warm and appreciated. Isobel Leech has volunteered to sew our quilt strips together during the summer, so we can start quilting in the fall.

Our May meeting will feature a film called Decision, about self-breast examination. The public is cordially invited at 2:15 p.m. at the Coast Garibaldi Health Centre on May 4. Our regular meeting time is still 1:30 p.m.

Help your Heart Fund help YOUR HEART.

Auxiliaries, remember the Friendship Tea, Thursday, April 21, at St. Hilda's Hall 2 p.m. Host auxiliary, Sechelt's Auxiliary to St. Mary's Hospital.

April 20 is the St. Mary's Hospital Society meeting 7:30 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Hall, Sechelt. This will be the annual general meeting. To vote one must be a member of over a month. Memberships are available at the door. Join, and learn about your hospital.

Birthday celebrations were held on the second floor of the hospital, Friday, April 15, hosted by the Sechelt Auxiliary. The celebrants were Maude Aitken, Beatrice Davey and Constantine Zetkin. A happy birthday with to them.

Volunteers serving were Ada Dawe, Mary Redman, who also entertained by playing the piano, Ruth Steele, Florence Doig, Doreen Jenkins and Volunteer Director Muriel Eggins.

Muffins, Welsh cakes, sandwiches, sweek pancakes, a delectable table of goodies topped only by the gorgeous cloverleaf birthday cake with the name of each of the three on a cloverleaf. A centerpiece of lovely spring flowers were sent by Louie Hansen.

Guest singer who was a great hit with the patients and friends was Catherine Kelly of Halfmoon Bay. Catherine has a delightful voice. Her rendition of "Amazing Grace" is music to the ears and her singing manner makes her audience like her even more.

GAMBLING JACK MAYNE

The Senior Citizens of Sechelt had the usual trip to Reno late in March and Jack Mayne with his friend of 40 years, Mrs. Ruby Osborne, enjoyed the trip very much.

Forty seniors filled the bus with Dave and Eva Hayward taking charge of the arrangements, including a good bus operator Lloyd and Jill the hostess.

They played bingo, had a sing-song and various games to keep them busy on the long journey. Breaking the trip, they stopped at various places for coffee breaks and lunch. The first stop being Salem, Oregon, then on to Reno arriving Sunday evening.

The accommodations at the hotels were out of this world and they enjoyed the comfort and service, especially at the Kings Inn, Reno.

Three days in this wonderful hotel with all the facilities for losing your money right in the hotel.

Jack won $60 the first day and $50 the second day, lost it all on the third day trying for the Jack Pot (with his name on it, figured it was his) which showed on the machine he played to be $113,884. He thought that would be just enough for him to win, but the machine won. However, that is what you go for, to have some fun and use a little money.

On the way home they stopped at Eugene, Oregon, and that evening they had a cheese and wine party. The highlight of the party was the dressing of the men as ladies and we used the name 'ladies' loosely. It was a scream with Herb Ebach, Jack Eldred, Ernie Booth, Frank Bonin and a couple more acting as 'ladies', again using the world loosely.

Herb Ebach took the top prize being topless and bottomless (discreetly). It was lots of fun and Jack shall not forget the pleasure it gave him to see these fellows acting. They arrived home on the Friday evening after a grand trip and it will not be his last, he is going again and again.

ARTISTS AT WHITAKER HOUSE

This Saturday is the last Saturday to meet artist Vivian Chamberlin. However, if you read this on Wednesday, you still have four days left to view this versatile lady's accomplishments.

The following week, April 26 to 30, the Welcome Beach Sketch Club will display samples of their art work. Members of this club are Dorothy Hall, Marg Morgan, Olive Clear, Thea Leutche, Jerrie-Lou Wickwire, Joyce Williams, Barbara Gough and Peggy Connor. Some, if not all, will be on hand April 30 to face the public — oh! meet the public.

The juried art show will be open to public viewing, April 30, Gibsons United Church Hall, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Juror for the show comes from Burnaby Art Gallery. Artists come from many parts of the Sunshine Coast and is very interesting to see.

BRIDGE TOURNAMENT WINDUP

The Merry-go-round bridge tournament windup party will be held at St. Hilda's Hall, 7:30 p.m., Friday, April 22. Sponsored by Sechelt Auxiliary to St. Mary's Hospital, it should be known as the Margaret Humm windup. Fun for all, public invited to attend.

HORSE SHOWS

April 24, Ted Bowie's property on the Sunshine Coast Highway, Roberts Creek near Crowe Road. First horse show of the season promises to be a good day for entertainment or for participating.

May 1, Brushwood Farms, Gibsons will sponsor a horse show, English and Western.
