HEY MUM! Corporal Wade's the nice guy at the Sechelt RCMP detachment who showed us the thing drunk drivers blow into and the cage where they might go if they look like they might hurt themselves. Then he took our fingerprints, but we were allowed to take ours back to kindergarten to hang up on the wall because we didn't do anything wrong — except plan our mass break from Sechelt Elementary school for Friday afternoon.

Measles shots recommended

Because of a local outbreak of measles, it is recommended that infants age six months and over, and all children of preschool and school age Who Have Not Had Natural Measles Or Been Immunized Against Measles seek immunization now.

Clinics will be held as follows:

Thursday, May 17, 3:30 p.m. - 4:30 p.m., Gibsons Health Unit and Friday, May 18, 3:30 p.m. - 4:30 p.m., Sechelt Elementary School.

Lockstead re-elected but with doubts about Socreds

New Democratic Party's re-elected MLA for Mackenzie, Don Lockstead, said after Thursday's provincial election that at one time during the returns he thought his party would be able to form the government and added a few of his fears he had hoped to allay by an NDP majority.

"The future of Ocean Falls and all those people up there is in serious doubt. The 500 kv Cheekye-Dunsmuir line is another. I'll do my bit and fight the fight (against it) in Victoria. But they are likely to proceed. The whole project of the natural gas pipeline to Vancouver Island is dubious now. If they proceed on that it will probably be the Southern route (Gulf Islands) instead of by way of Powell River and the rational economic development of this area will be in doubt. It will be founded on a political rather than a rational basis."

As transportation critic for the NDP opposition last term, Lockstead said he would not be opposed to changing to another assignment for the experience.

He mentioned forestry or mining and added he is "quite interested in being critic to the energy portfolio" since he served the government in that ministry for one session previously. He said he would like to change because "there is so much to learn."

The MLA said he would not be in support of the government's proposed Jetfoil passenger service to Langdale and Powell River from Vancouver harbour because of excessive noise, cost and operating problems.

"I'd be inclined not to want to live within about a mile of the launching area" because of the noise Jetfoils make in leaving and arriving.

"I'm not convinced it is the transportation answer. It may be part of the answer for passengers only. But it would require a heavy subsidy, it would be expensive to operate and I'm reserving judgement on it."

He said on his return to the legislature he would be looking into charges against the Social Credit government of "direct political interference in crown corporations' namely the B.C. Ferry Corporation.

He had indicated before polling day that the government ministry had been rescheduling ferries without even letting the executive director of the ferry system know until later.

He said he would be dealing with the summer scheduling for the Horseshoe Bay to Langdale run where one additional afternoon sailing had been added for Friday and Monday only and stated the "problems will be horrendous."

"I want to see improved sailing schedules all year round.

"I think Social Credit got the message," Lockstead said in regard to their reduced majority. "In day to day constituency matters they will look a little more closely."

But he is still concerned about what he termed the "arrogance" of the Social Credit government in matters of health and education.

He said if Pat McGeer is not taken out of the education ministry and Bob McClelland out of health ministry "there will be real problems".

"If Bennett got the message at all, there has to be changes in both those portfolios," Lockstead said.

He said he is "not sure it's a good thing" that Conservative leader Vic Stephens was defeated in the Oak Bay riding because now we will not have even one of Canada's top major political parties represented in the B.C. legislature.

"Vic Stephens, in spite of his oddball ways, made a considerable contribution to the legislature," Lockstead said.

Rejects nuclear

Hydro chief insists 500 kv line needed for Island power "crisis"

Fresh new warnings of critical electric power shortages on Vancouver Island, with demand outstripping supply, were sounded Saturday, May 5, by J.N. Olsen, president and chief operating officer of B.C. Hydro.

But in a prepared speech before the Association of B.C. Municipalities at Courtenay, Olsen said the looming crisis can be warded off if a proposed 500 kV transmission link to the mainland is permitted to proceed on schedule.

He said a firm proposal now before the B.C. government resulted from a decade of studies by B.C. Hydro in which numerous alternative sources of power supply — including nuclear — were rejected.

Last winter's severe strain on exisiting facilities, coupled with an anticipated demand for future supply, has brought new urgency to bolstering Hydro's plans for expansion of the Vancouver Island power supply.

The Island's peak demand hit 1,255 megawatts last December 29, which was 60 megawatts over forecast, but fell within six per cent cold weather contingency allowance.

"We just managed to squeak by without serious load shedding," said Olsen.

Last year eight industrial firms indicated they would need about 200 megawatts of additional supply in 1981 and 1982, but "we were forced to advise them that we could not serve them until the fall of 1983 at the earliest, and only then if we have successfully added more power capacity.

"The situation still prevails today," Olsen added.

"To solve the problem of how to meet the forecast load in 1983 and beyond, increasing at the average rate of 100 megawatts per year, we have examined a dozen alternatives.

"The conclusion drawn from all these studies — carried out over a ten-year period and updated to current cost levels — was that Cheekye-Dunsmuir 500 kV transmission extension would provide the needed energy at the lowest long-term cost," he said.

Alternative power sources considered and discarded by Hydro included hog fuel co-generation, expansion of Campbell River power production, oil fired gas turbines and coal-fueled steam electric plants. Limited power production capability, high costs, pollution controls and attendant environmental impact problems ruled these out.

Nuclear power?

"We looked at it quickly but rejected it as not being feasible," explained Olsen, "either in the time required or in the area of public acceptance, even though it could be economic.

"Our major concern now is that the proposed transmission project to the mainland be delayed or disallowed, and we will have to take some fairly drastic steps to avoid serious brown-outs or black-outs in the winters of 1982 and 1983, and continuing until an adequate supply is established."

"The over-riding objective in this whole process," Olsen explained, "is to provide an adequate amount of electrical energy with a safe, reliable system at the lowest feasible cost. There is no other purpose. We don't build a generating station or a high-voltage transmission line because we think it is fun to do so. We do it only as a result of an analysis to determine the lowest-cost long-term supply to meet the anticipated loads in the area in which they occur."

Olsen said that B.C. Hydro is currently embarked on a public information program in an attempt to slow down the rate of load growth. It includes TV advertisements, school programs, thermogram displays, an insulation finance program, seminars with industrial and commercial plant managers to improve load management, and a pilot project aimed at controlling hot water heaters

Two polls go Socred here

Only the advance poll and the Irvings Landing poll went Social Credit on the Sunshine Coast in the provincial election last week that saw Premier Bill Bennett re-elected with a reduced majority and Mackenzie NDP-MLA Don Lockstead re-elected with nearly 10,000 votes while his opponent Socred Gerry Gray got just over 6,000 votes.

All other local polls favored the incumbent, among them Gibsons with 1,302 for Lockstead and 716 for Gray, Sechelt 854 and 793, Roberts Creek 459 Lockstead and 244 Gray, Madeira Park 310 and 280 in favor of the NDP and Hopkins Landing with 247 for Lockstead and 133 for Gray.

Halfmoon Bay had 211 votes for Lockstead and 133 for Gray.

Irvings Landing favored Gray 110 to 99 and the advance poll showed 145 in favor of Gray with 116 for Lockstead.

There are those who say unity, others say constitution, and a large majority say the economy, says incumbent MP Jack Pearsall about the issues in this riding.

"I place the economy up front and then feel that the riding looks to local issues. In this bracket I believe our resources are the concern of all.

"Fisheries, forestry, tourism, these three play a major role regardless of where you live in the riding. Campbell River — needs a larger boat harbour for its duo industries, fishing and tourism.

West Coast fisheries policy came in for criticism when federal NDP candidate Ray Skelly addressed a public meeting in Pender Harbour Friday night.

In response to questioning by fisherman Sonny Reid, he called for a Royal Commission to sort out the tangled mess of fisheries policy. He suggested that fishing boundaries were used as a bargaining chip by Trudeau to gain advantage in other economic negotiations.

B.C. to spend seven times more on wind, solar, tidal energy

Minister of Energy Mines and Petroleum Resources, James Hewitt, and federal Minister of the Environment, Len Marchand, today announced the signing of a five-year, $27 million agreement for the development and demonstration of energy conservation and renewable energy technologies.

Under the agreement, the governments of Canada and British Columbia will share costs of projects ranging from energy-efficient building systems to energy production from wood residues and municipal solid waste.

In the area of alternative technology, projects will evaluate the potential of geothermal, wind and solar energy as well as tidal power.

The program is a major boost for B.C.'s energy conservation and renewable energy program and represents a seven-fold increase over previous provincial expenditures.

"Energy conservation is a cost-effective way of extending our energy resources, but to date is not being practiced widely enough," said Hewitt in making the announcement. "This major new program will provide concrete examples of the benefits of conservation through demonstration projects carried out both in the public and private sector."

"The British Columbia agreement is part of a $380 million package announced last July by the federal government of which $114 million had been allocated for cost-sharing agreements with the provinces," Marchand said. "The development and demonstration of renewable energy and energy conservation is part of the Government's national strategy for energy self-reliance by the mid-1980's and will help limit our demands for import oil."

The program will be managed by the recently formed B.C. Ministry of Energy, Mines and Petroleum Resources. The actual project selection will be done by a federal-provincial management committee.

The grim didya-see-the-debate reaper cometh

The Sunshine Coast is not the most populated portion of the Comox-Powell River constituency we know. But we also know that incumbent Liberal-MP Jack Pearsall's home and campaign office are only a short ferry ride away and that, even though Conservative candidate Al Lazerte has headquarters on the Island, he has a pilot's license and flies around a lot. But, except for the all-candidates meeting at the Elphie Forum a month ago, we haven't seen hide nor hair of these two around here.

It's quite possible they come and go privately. But that would seem to be a funny way for somebody seeking public office to go. Especially at election time. Especially during the campaign.

Mind you, their platforms came in the mail so we know what they are running for. But that's no substitute for the flesh. It may be bad timing on our part, but we haven't been able to shake their hands, or look into their expectant faces. Just the one time. Don't we matter enough over here?

Sure we do. We matter to NDP candidate Ray Skelly. He was at the Forum. He was back when national labor leader Henry Lorrain passed through helping to scare the pulp-workers into some NDP votes. He was hanging around NDP's various campaign offices quite a bit.

He was throwing rotten tomatoes at poor Geoff Madoc-Jones in Gibsons and Skelly himself forked out a dollar or two for a smoothie button so he wouldn't end up with juice on his own young and beardless face. He was at the Timber Days Dance in Sechelt last weekend dancing it up with wife Dorothy.

He's everywhere. He comes into the office in his shirtsleeves and talks it over and he brings you his thoughts in person even if he's from Courtenay across the way.

He deserves a gold star for attendance. And if his activities now are any indication of how he'll be if he gets elected, he deserves the best gold star an elector can give. A vote.

Not only that, but his national leader old bent Ed is looking better all the time. We hope he came across as well in the great debate as he does on his commercials. We couldn't see the big three-way yak on Sunday because of business. Newspaper business.

When the grim didya-see-the-debate reaper comes to our door, all we will have to say is "I gave at the office."

If he comes to your door, be honest with him. Tell him you saw it all, you thought it over, and you're going to vote for the next candidate you see in person.

Ten to one it'll be Ray.

A fine line

Like Science Fiction

—by Bruce Robinson

I have always had enormous respect for science fiction writers, even though I seldom read books. The books I have read, however, have consistently impressed me with their foresight and imagination, pre-requisites for any SF writer of stature. But another ingredient, not so heralded and yet perhaps the most important element of all, is "a sense of humanity." The SF writer's love for man, and his concern for the direction the human race is taking, pervade his stories. It is these writers more than anyone else who appear to be dealing realistically with our future, even though they deal in fiction.

Nobody can consistently foretell the future. But the track record of SF writers shows they have in the past guessed as accurately as anybody what the contemporary world has become. They are valid. They now tell us what kind of condition the human race will be in a hundred or five hundred years in the future.

So what are they telling us? Well, as they are obviously fascinated with the potential for change in the future. They are saying "let's take our time." But we are clearly not taking our time with technology. We are integrating gismos and formulas into industry as fast as we invent them. Are we ignoring their warning to look before we leap?

Technology is as insidious as it is progressive. The main advantage of invention in the past has been the convenience it provides. Industry constantly looks for ways to cut costs, while the consumer, perenially frustrated in that pursuit, at least succeeds in increasing his leisure time. Inventions will do both, but too often we forget to weigh the consequences of introducing a new process or a new product without studying extensively the possible implications.

If something new is implemented into industry before its ramifications are fully understood, it may be extremely difficult to adjust without incurring immense costs. And we all know that industry has a tendency to try numerous alternatives before taking definitive measures to correct its mistakes, as necessary as those steps might be. Meanwhile, destructive reactions occur as industry 'stalls. It is a dangerous game.

The most obvious example of irresponsibility in our recent past is the development of nuclear power. The potential for disaster at Three Island pointed out two things — what we know about nuclear power was not being acted on, and what we didn't know was being dangerously ignored. When nuclear fuel is examined from all possible viewpoints, and when we know all of its characteristics and all of its possibilities, it may turn out to be one of man's greatest blunders.

Science Fiction writers talk at great length about the dangers of over-increasing reliance on machines. Industry responds that machines will never think for themselves, and that man will always be required to program such machines. Already we have seen evidence of many employee whose jobs have been rendered obsolete by computers, but perhaps that is not the most alarming result of the so-called computer age.

For the past few weeks I have been teaching math at Chatelech Junior Secondary, and I must admit a strong aversion to calculators. Many of the students are literally lost without them. The argument for them is that students will have to understand systems before they can utilize their calculators, but that is not entirely true. The procedure of changing decimals into fractions and the converse process have always puzzled a portion of students. Calculators will make those changes without a student really being aware of what transpired. As well, their basic computation abilities, that of adding, subtracting, multiplying and dividing are disintegrating in many cases. Problems they could have readily solved in grade four or five, are now hopelessly complex.

As a final statement on the age of convenience, I'd like to mention an occurence at the bank the other day. I had gone there to make a rare deposit but had neglected to bring my savings account book, forgetting the number of my account as well. The teller found my card without too much difficulty but reminded me that the bank would be switching over to computer within the month. What this meant, she said, was that the bank would no longer need to know my name; All they required was my number.

Socred policy gives pensioners price of two loaves of bread

Editor, The Times:

Well, one election has come and gone. The parties came out close to even which may mean a more reasonable line of thought by the Socreds. Gerry and his sidekicks won't be able to go off on far "business" junkets at taxpayers' expense. Who ever heard of a business man going off on a "business" trip and not throwing in a goodly chunk of fun? They won't be "funning" at our expense because if the government tries to push through one of their wealthy man's goodies and the poor man's loss they may be defeated in the house.

Another thing. The media, which in most cases we all know is all out for the Socreds, is saying Dave Barrett will maybe step down after what they call two party defeats at the polls. Rubbish! NDP didn't quite make it but it was far from a defeat. DON'T STEP DOWN DAVE. You have a whip in hand now.

They want you out of there. you are a thorn in their side. So stay with it and we'll bless you for it. Anyone with thoughts like these should write to NDP caucus members. It will keep future insanities from being inflicted on those who cannot afford them, such as knocking $2 off GAIN at the same time the federal government gave an increase in OAP of $3.35 leaving us the price of two loaves of bread extra per month.

Let's see them live that way and be forced to like it.

Sincerely
Keith Comyn.

Old People's Revenge Party will kick'em out of pubs, off welfare

By MARCIA POULTICE

Voting day at the polls was interesting. The Gibsons Legion looks just as it does for dances, the only difference being the pre-fab cardboard voting cublicles. I missed the mysterious little flapping black curtain which used to be a feature of the polls. It used to twitch with the vigour of a voter marking his X. I guess by now everyone knows what a disgrace the voters list was. One man had the distinction of having been dead through three administrations. This remarkable achievement is almost equal of some members of the Senate. One voter, Mary Carmichael of Gibsons came trumpeting in plugging a new party she has planned. It will be called the Old People's Revenge (OPR) party and the first plank in her platform is to "kick everyone out of the pubs and off welfare!" Well, Mary . . . by 1990 that may include all of us!

A 73 per cent turnout is something British Columbia can be very proud of though it was a little embarrasing to have one poll call happily in with the news that they had 103 per cent turnout. Hundreds of section 80 special ballots had to be made out for those who stoutly maintained that their names were indeed on a voting list somewhere and the same special ballot under section 117 for those too lazy to make it to their own polling place. In that comment I am not referring to the senior citizens but rather to those who couldn't afford to be late for bowling. Those special ballots were sent away and I am told that most of them will not be counted. Many nineteen-year-olds were irate at not being on the voters list although they had made not the slightest effort to place themselves on it. Their most common excuse being that they didn't know where to go! Well, little lambchops, did it never occur to you to inquire at the Newspaper of City Hall? You seemed to know exactly where you could get your first legal drink, why not your first vote?

I think we have the most beautiful older ladies here on the peninsula. They came to the polls looking absolutely immaculate in their lovely bright springtime colours and they contributed a delightful fashion show of their very own. They must have gone to a lot of trouble to look that charming and not for themselves but for the eye of the beholder. It does brighten a room. While speaking of brightening the Legion, Joe Caumpman brightens up any room just by entering it. He looked very dashing in his yachty bright red with cap to match but with Joe it's mostly his smile which lights any room. First thing you knew all the grim harassed faces were smiling. What a nice way to be and how sad if Joe goes through with his talk of moving to Victoria and taking that blazing smile with him.

Getting back to more serious matters such as results. The SoCreds now have a very narrow margin of four votes in the house (when you knock off the appointed speaker). This should save the taxpayers a lot of money in that there will be much less junketting off to Europe, Africa or where ever at our expense. The vote margin will be too narrow for even a 'flu epidemic. When that buzzer rings in the legislature for a vote the members must all be within range or ZAP goes the legislation. Any floor-crossing will be a serious business.

Did anyone keep track of all those promises? I sort of lost count but there is one thing I do believe. I do believe that it will be a longish time before we see another three-year election called. The government may fall but will not look to the hustings again without a great deal more thought. So much for the Provincial, gasp . . . and now on to the Federal.

Great big warm family hugs best for Mother on any day

By MARCIA POULTICE

Mother's Day has become a commercial enterprise but the initial idea was good. Mothers go through a lot trying to be everything to everyone. Their hours are long and many of their tasks are tedious. Neither their wages or hours are union scale and there are no retirement benefits. Most mothers are pretty nice and they usually say they don't need anything for Mother's day but they do. What they would rather receive more than anything else, I suspect, is a good healthy hug. Great big warm family hugs are the most precious things around and they will often lay to rest the most fearsome family feud. Hugs especially, please, from the boys. Boys who started out as fat little babies just rolling in hugs, then became open-hearted clumsy eating machines and all of a sudden were great big, out in the world, men. They may seem suddenly urbane but their mothers still think of them as the awful darlings and reminisce fondly about socks, gonchies, runners and soccer strips. We love the girls too but the girls are always lovely about hugs and sometimes boys forget. Gentlemen, if you can't hug your own mother, go hug someone elses, if she has been nice to you.

My own mother was very tall (5'9") and beautiful. She had flaming red hair and a vibrant creative personality. She was positively histrionic at the dinner table on every subject from politics through literature to street cleaning. She was never without an opinion or the ability to voice it vividly. She had, as most mothers have, a colossal repertoire of old maxims which were trotted out at appropriate moments. They are all true and still useful for passing on to assorted grandchildren — mothers being mothers and grandmothers the same.

But my mother had an interesting side fetish: she was always interested in teeth. She wanted everyone she knew, particularly the young, to have good strong teeth.

She felt healthy teeth meant general good health. If one of us had a stomach ache or slight fever she'd check our teeth before moving on to other remedies. All our cousins, the children of the less fortunate, or really anyone over whom she had any direct sway, was shipped down to our dentist at my father's expense. I don't remember ever hearing him complain about what must have been astronomical dental bills. This was during depression times and mother belonged to some eager group who assisted the jobless in finding work. They were always given a nights sleep, a bath, some good food and a task about the gardens. (This was to maintain their pride, nothing was a handout). If their lot was our house a trip to the dentist was included.

Our dentist was a cranky stout man with upward mobility in mind and he didn't care for the looks of mother's clientele. There was a scathing verbal scuffle at one time about his not wanting mother's group in his waiting room. This was settled by his taking them first. For many years he kept the better dressed waiting while mother's hordes sashayed through.

After this she went battering around to every business she supported, pointing out where men could and should be employed. She was not above a little boycotty-type blackmail and always went right to the head man. She was usually successful, but was considered too forceful and energetic for many of her tea-sipping contemporaries. Many of the persons she helped did get on their feet and many returned to visit. And thanks offered was brushed aside with the admonition "please just pass it on" and then we would get down to the serious business of "was that molar or bicuspid still giving him trouble?" She was glad he was prospering but "keep after those teeth".

There was a lovely atmosphere of helpfulness throughout that awful depression and all was accomplished with the most exquisite tact. During her "tooth" years, mother also kept a secretarial school occupied with the young women she was continuously putting through their six-week blitz course so that they might better face a hostile world. What lovely memories I have of her as a person in her own right rather than just my mother or my father's wife.

Her thousand little autocracies were splendid too. One of many, always accompanied by a glare, was "Anyone who has to use the same adjective more than once a day is a bore." No if's, and's, or but's. If any of us had a tale to tell we had better tell it with colour or remain silent. No one in our house remained silent.

My mother died in 1949 after a long and ghastly illness. Her funeral was understandably crowded and many dentists attended. I wondered, at the time, if she had put one over on Dad and employed several of them.

So — to those of you still lucky enough to have mothers, I hope you saw to it that she got a hug and a flower on Mother's Day or any day for that matter.

Marcia negative on Arts Center

Editor, The Times:

The comments on the new Arts Centre by your columnist Marcia Poultice are excessively negative.

A small number of people with very limited resources have indeed devoted a lot of time and energy towards bringing a facility to promote all aspects of the arts here. It was expected to be a farily lengthy process, especially when our initial source of funding was a Canada Works Grant covering "wages only" at $3.60 per hour. The Arts Council had no option but to build with raw materials and we have endeavoured to do the best we can with what we had.

Nevertheless, the building has been under construction for about a year and a half with a break of about six months while further funding was awaited.

There are no "garbage-like heaps of left-over rubbish" around the building. The village is moving the last of their materials out so that the nearby completed building can coincide its opening with the sewer start and landscaping can commence.

The Arts Council is providing a valuable service to our community and requires lots of support instead of hindrance.

Attack not warranted

Editor, The Times:

It is unclear to us why Joan Foster (alias Marcia Poultice), an active Arts Council member, would choose to condemn the largest project the Arts Council has ever undertaken. True, the completion of the Sunshine Coast Arts Centre has been delayed, but this does not warrant Ms. Foster's scathing attack.

We disagree with her belated comments on the building's design. Did she make her opinion's known during the initial discussions? In our view the Arts Centre is the most imaginative building in Sechelt. The "inexpensive" panabode which Ms. Foster champions would not only be indistinguishable from the other buildings in Sechelt, but would in no way reflect the aesthetic standards the Arts Council is presumably fostering.

The stacks of wood, etc. around the building are merely part of a "proper construction" site. From what we can see, no "cover-up" will be necessary. Rather, the completion of the landscaping ideas already proposed will provide Sechelt with a showpiece no hastily constructed panabode could match.

With the opening date approaching, Ms. Foster's criticisms can only be counter productive. We look forward to an active arts program which never would be possible without this building.

MABEL KENT

Mabel Kent passed away May 10, 1979 in Haney, B.C. and will be remembered by many long-time residents of the Harbour. She resided in Pender Harbour from the early 40's to the mid 60's and left the area after her husband Captain W.A. Kent passed away. Mable was an active community worker in those days, had been P. President in the R.C. Legion Br. 112 Ladies Auxiliary, helped with hospital and Community Club projects and made many friends.

She was 84 last September 19 and had been cared for by the Homemakers group. A memorial service was held in Haney.

Captain W.A. Kent passed away May 27, 1962. He used to run the Post Office at Irvines Landing in the early days of the Harbour and then he looked after the little Post Office in Madeira Park. He also operated the school ferry before Wilkinsons took over with their Dakota Belle, and at one time he was Sec.-Treas. of the R.C. Legion Br. 112. Kent Road in Madeira Park was named after him.

ROYAL CANADIAN LEGION BRANCH 112.

Sechelt notes

Salute to Kathy and Carl

By Peggie Connor, 885-9347

Two relative newcomers to Sechelt, Kathy Acton and Carl Chrismas, are devoting their energies to making this Timber Days an exciting time. There are many energetic workers assisting them but a lot of planning, ordering of tickets, trophies, ribbons, guests, etc. fall to the chairman of any group.

Kathy Acton is in charge of Special Events — ten teams vying to points to put their representative on top to be Ms. Timber Days. Carl Chrismas is the man in charge of Timber Days Logging events and the General of Timber Days, both doing a fantastic job.

The Village of Sechelt and surrounding district would do well to show their appreciation by full attendance.

Dorothy Goeson is well known for her work on May Day events and helping her is Sandy Cavalier, the star of May Day. The new queen elect, Lisa Blackwell, is still in England and will be back in Sechelt by tomorrow.

One worry now is how to feed the Navy Cadet Band that is coming up from North Vancouver. They wouldn't turn down any offers of help. The Navy League Cadets and Wrens from Gibsons will be marching with them. This makes four bands for the parade and Parade Marshall Homer Glass is anticipating participation of over 30 floats. The other bands are Chatelech, Elphinstone and the Legion Pipe Band.

VOLLEYBALL

Special Events Volleyball takes place Thursday, May 17 starting at 6:30 p.m. with spectators invited. Friendly rivalry will prevail.

FIELD EVENTS

These start at 1 p.m. Sunday, May 20 at Hackett Park. It's fun and antics as the ten teams try to outdo each other in a three-legged race, egg and spoon race, sack race, slosh race (this one has to be seen), sleeping bag race and the tug-o-war. For the latter I'm sure they will rope the public well back so everyone may see.

BAKING CONTEST SUNDAY, MAY 20

Each team will supply one apple pie, on baker's dozen butter tarts, one loaf of bread, chocolate cake. Competition was close in this event last year.

CHILDREN'S SPORTS AND FREEBIES

The first kids to arrive will receive free tokens to purchase either a hot dog or drink. Then their sporting events will start at 11:30 a.m.

PARADE ON MONDAY, 11 A.M.

A bigger and better parade, with the bicycle decorating contest. Entrants to be at Sechelt Indian Band Grounds by 9:15 a.m.

CEREMONIES FOR SPECIAL EVENTS

Monday, May 21 at 1 p.m. at Hackett Park, crowning of Ms. Timber Days '79, Timber Cup presentation, draw for the 50-50 raffle.

LOGGERS SPORTS

Also Monday, the Loggers Sports take over with a special junior class for the young, up-and-coming loggers.

PAST MAYDAYS

Traditionally May 24 weekend is Sechelt's celebration day and the Navy Cadet Bank has participated for many years. They first were brought up by Ted LePage on board his "Gulf Wing" vessel to play and form the honor guard for Mary Parker, now Mrs. Cecil Gordon. Mrs. Powell, an English lady, was the originator, then came Lee Redman, Ada Dawe, Winn Toynbee and others who were the mainstay for years keeping the event going. It is good to see new arrivals taking up the duties to assure Sechelt its celebration days will continue.

SALMON DERBY

Better not forget the second day of the Timber Days Salmon Derby is Saturday, May 19, weigh-in Hackett Park 2 to 3 p.m. No entry fee, no registration, and prizes donated by the Sunshine Coast Credit Union, including their big trophy.

MERCHANTS TOPS

The response of Sechelt merchants in support of Timber Days is simply fabulous. The committee are high in praise for the way the majority contributed willingly, so read your program carefully and note who is helping make this weekend a true community effort.

VICTORIA SPRING CEREMONIAL

The Shriners biggest ceremonial in Temple history, held recently in Victoria, was attended by local residents Charlie and Kay Mittesteadt, Mick and Betty McKay, Cecil and Mary Gordon, Bill and Bea Rankin and Andy Atcheson went complete with crutches, having broken his leg doing a good deed. Mrs. Fleetham of North Vancouver travelled with the Mittlesteadts. Held May 3 to 6, it was for a four-day affair, with Thursday's golf game for the Noble Candidates at Cedar Hill Golf Course. Kay Middlesteadt was the only woman that played and she received a small trophy.

VISITORS

Mrs. Dorothy Tomashewski is a frequent visitor to Davis Bay to visit her daughter and son-in-law Ken and Ann Pearson. This year she is particularly glad to leave her home in Teulon, Manitoba where spring is dragging its feet about coming. A great lover of seafood, it is suspected it is not just for family reasons she comes to the coast.

Cliff and Liz Lindsay at the Cozy Court Motel have their parents visiting. First to come were Cliff's parents Paul and Mable Lindsay from Pointe Quebec for two weeks and they enjoyed themselves immensely. Mr. Lindsay found the salmon most co-operative on this his first trip here. At present Dr. and Mrs. Buckley from Hightown, England, Liz's parents, are here for several weeks. They too have been successfuly in catching many salmon. The Buckley's will take a boat trip to Stewart and take in other parts of B.C. This is a second-time visit for them.

NGAIRE MORGAN, wife of Lions International first vice-president Lloyd Morgan of New Zealand gets a knowing look as he speaks to Gibsons club last week.

Gibsons glimpses

World's greatest club

by Marion Alsager, 886-2458

At the Gibsons Lions dinner meeting in honor of Lloyd Morgan, International first vice-president from Lower Hutt, New Zealand, Larry Campanas, district governor from Tasu, Queen Charlotte Islands, said, "I feel humble to have the honor of introducing the International vice-president."

Mr. Morgan brought greetings from Lower Hutt and said he was here because of his fellow Lions, that the Commonwealth of Lionism is one of fellowship — that is how he met Ray Holbrook, who invited him to Gibsons. He said that ideas stem from thoughts and individual action from all club members and that is why the Lions Club is the world's greatest club and that it originated in the U.S.A. They reach out beyond community borders to help the more unfortunate, i.e. youth exchange, a costly but a very successful program.

Morgan said, "Think of how many people who have been made happy through the Lions Club." There are 32,664 Lions Clubs and he told the Peninsula club members to be proud of the emblem they wear, whether they are local club member, district or international. Morgan emphasized that the Lions are a "people to people" organization and their challenge is to bring mankind together and harmony amongst people of the world! This year, "Year of the Child", members should reactivate themselves towards the "child" by care and concern for all infirmities, so that they might be avoided in future times.

Past district governor Ed Porter responded to Morgan's address and said, "Power belongs to the Clubs." Mrs. Porter was also at the head table. She is the former Olive Service and it was our pleasure to have had a chat with her. She and Ed live in North Vancouver. Present were Lions Club members from Pender Harbour, Sechelt and Vancouver. Mayor Blain welcomed Lloyd Morgan and presented him with Gibsons Centennial coins. The Gibsons Lions Club presented Morgan with The Gibson's Landing Story and to Mrs. Morgan a dogwood design china cup and saucer.

RANGERS

Nadene Smethurst and Heather Cattanach were the two girls from this area who attended the B.C. Ranger council Conference, where 56 representatives came from White Rock to Taylor to Prince Rupert. The elected council members were all from the Lower Mainland. The girls say they really enjoyed themselves even though it snowed on the Friday and in Ft. St. John the pussywillows were just out. The next B.C. Ranger Conference will be held in Victoria next May. We must congratulate the girls for winning second prize in the Gong Show!

RUGBY

Congratulations to the Elphinstone Girls' Rugby Team who defeated the Garibaldi Girls last week.

BOUTIQUE

Rosemary Carlisle and Mara will soon be opening a boutique shop in Lower Gibsons at the bus stop. They will also have quality used clothing for sale.

IN HOSPITAL

Doug Meldrum is in St. Paul's Hospital and is in satisfactory condition after his operation.

AUSTRALIA

Evelyn Blain has just returned from a five-week trip to Australia, Fiji, New Zealand and Cook Islands. She had a wonderful time despite the loss of her luggage. It seems they just did not transfer it in San Francisco and it finally caught up with her a few days later.

LEGION LADIES

The Royal Canadian Legion Ladies Auxiliary Convention was held in New Westminster May 6, 7, 8, 9 and Val Parker, Tillie Knowles, Vi Wilson, Ivy Fiedler, Cathy Mandelkau, Ann Pearsall and Sandra Neild from the Gibsons Branch attended. They say the convention was very fruitful and they enjoyed themselves and were very well looked after by the different Legion branches in the New Westminster area. Thre off our ladies were lucky enough to win prizes, Ivy and Gladys won car waxes and Cathy won a tablecloth.

At the Convention it was decided that the new Children's Hospital be the Golden Anniversary project and it was moved that the Ladies Auxiliary raise $25,000 towards this hospital. There were 143 auxiliaries represented and approximately 1,000 women present. It was moved that we contribute $1,500 to the Royal Canadian Legion Bursary fund also. The amount of $11,000 was donated at the Convention by two Auxiliary Branches from Nanaimo and Vancouver areas. This Children's Hospital is near completion and is situated on the Shaughnessy Hospital grounds.

There were 147 flags in the color party in the parade, and most certainly did look impressive.

SUVEGES-ANDERSON NUPTIALS MAY 5, 1979

A beautiful wedding was solemnized in the Gibsons United Church, officiated by Rev. Canon Minto Swan, uniting in marriage Mona Suveges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Suveges and Duane Anderson, son of Mrs. D. Anderson.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked radiant in a gown of white chantilly lace and fingertip veil. Her headpiece was lace with flowers matching her bouquet. She carried a cluster of bridal pink roses and baby's breath with leather leaf and pink streamers.

Mava Schneider was maid of honour and bridesmaids were Heather Wright, Debbie Stromquist and Cheryl Bone. Bridal attendants were gowned alike in pink chiffon overlay gowns. They each carried colonial bouquets of blue carnations, pink roses and baby's breath.

The groom, best man and ushers wore blue tuxedos. Best man was Trevor Swan and ushers were Martin Swan, Clint Suveges and Lance Suveges.

The bride's mother wore a floor length gown of pale blue and lace and her corsage of blue carnations and white roses complemented her ensemble. The groom's mother wore a floral gown with blue sheer overlay and her corsage of pink carnations complemented her ensemble.

The reception was held at the Legion Hall, Gibsons with Darwin Suveges, uncle of the bride, as Master of Ceremonies. The bride's uncle, Ivan Labree, proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom responded. The groom then gave the toast to the bridal attendants.

The five-tier wedding cake was beautifully decorated with pink rambling roses topped with a bridal figurine. The hall was decorated in a pink and blue motif. The guests enjoyed dancing to the Mainlanders' Band and out of town guests came from Manitoba, Prince George, Kamloops, Hope and the Lower Mainland.

The happy couple left for a honeymoon trip to California and upon return will be residing in Richmond.

Pender Harbour Auxiliary to St. Mary's Hospital

The Pender Harbour Auxiliary to St. Mary's Hospital held its annual Membership Tea on Wednesday, May 9. Nature co-operated and under sunny skies members and guests arrived to be greeted by our President Jean Prest. The tables were beautifully decorated with flower arrangements in which pink dogwood from the convenor's garden was the conversation piece of the day. The dogwood was mixed with lilac and other spring flowers and set off to perfection by blue tablecloths. Doreen Webb was convenor and like the decorations the refreshments were a sight to behold and a delight to sample.

The business meeting was short and was followed by an address by Dr. Eric Paetkau of Sechelt. He commented on the work of auxiliaries and stressed its benefit to patients. He spoke too of the history of our auxiliary, the first to serve St. Mary's Hospital. Dr. Paetkau went on then to describe what is being done at St. Mary's during this building and improvement period. He spoke about the Master Plan being set up for the hospital — a plan that is laying a foundation now for the fulfillment of future needs.

We were interested to learn that St. Mary's Hospital has an enviable record in the field of Day-care Surgery, a form of care which reduces the need for bed-care and thus frees bed-space and personnel for the care of the acutely ill. The improvements in the Emergency area presently being completed will greatly enhance this aspect of hospital service.

Several guests became new members and we welcome them to our auxiliary. We urge others to follow their lead. As mentioned before, new members are like a blood transfusion. They add new life and vitality to the organization. We welcome new ideas and enthusiasum.

Residents of Pender Harbour are asked to take note that there will be a Blood Donor's Clinic at St. Mary's Hospital on Monday, June 25 from 3 p.m. to 8 p.m.

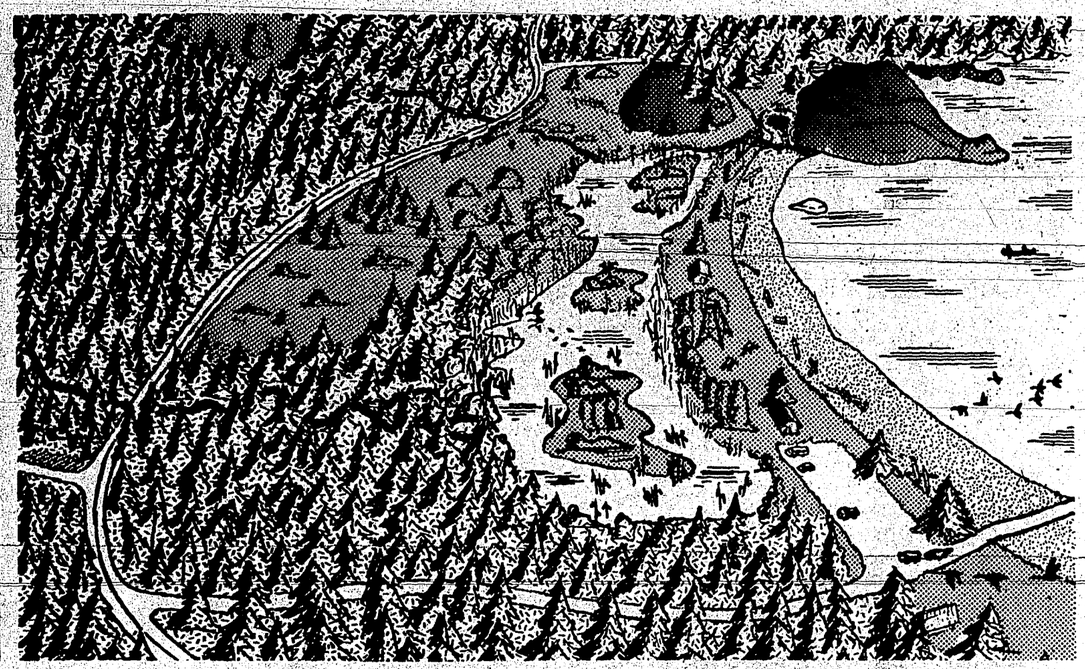
SARGEANT'S BAY now . . .



PROPOSED SARGEANT Bay regional beach and nature park.

Sargeant's Bay Society seeks members for park

Last year some residents around Sargeant's Bay formed an association to promote conservation of the natural habitat of Sargeant's Bay. At that time the beach and the marsh were threatened by plans for a marina.

Now, the Society is proposing a Regional Beach and Nature Park for the area with a parking lot, boat launch, washrooms, picnic area, walking trails, waterfowl sanctuary, view tower and a nature house. If the area were purchased for public use, it would become an attractive park for the enjoyment of all Sunshine Coast residents.

The Society has letters of support from the Fish and Wildlife Branch and Ducks Unlimited, who will change the marsh into a productive breeding habitat for waterfowl. There are favourable reports from the Land Management Branch and by shoreline expert Wolf Bauer. The National Second Century Fund of B.C. and the provincial government have been approached for funds.

Anyone on the Sunshine Coast who agrees with the Society's objectives can join as a member. They are: To promote conservation of the natural habitat of Sargeant's Bay, and: To act in the best interest of those who wish to enjoy the rural atmosphere of Sargeant's Bay. The membership is $5 per year.

Anyone concerned about the future of Sargeant's Bay and in support of the proposed Regional Park, should contact the Secretary, Judy Malnarick, P.O. Box 1562, Sechelt, B.C. VON 3A0. Phone 885-5698.

Coast Strokers

motor-cross

By Dennis Gray

The following, to the best of my memory, is a conversation I had the other day with old Duff . . .

I've got a problem. Well don't tell me, he says I've got enough of my own . . . what is it? Well, I whisper looking around to see if anyone is listening, we are going to have a motor-cross in Sechelt for Timberdays. A moto-cross! in Sechelt? He bellows back, where you gonna have it? I'll have the boys come up and try it out, he says.

This loud outburst, which takes place at work, has my boss looking at me over his glasses. I pick up a wrench and begin taking apart a piece of equipment that needs nothing more than to be left alone.

That is my problem, I says, we cannot ride until Sunday afternoon and if we advertise it there may be bikers swarming in there like wasps looking for a rotten fish.

Well, if you don't advertise it, Duff says, you'll have to ride it yourself. Why didn't you advertise it at the Mission City Moto-Cross last Sunday? There must have been five hundred people there and they sure wouldn't take the ferry up here before the event just to ride on the track.

Oh sure! says I, can you imagine what they will do to me if a crowd came up from town? If three hundred trucks, vans and campers rolled in here like a bunch of prairie schooners and began regurgitating bikes, equipment and boisterous kids I'd be run out of town. Besides, I says, I want it for the local kids, I don't want them intimidated by a bunch of riders from town.

Where in hell you gonna have it? On the main street of Sechelt or something?

No, I reply, more like skid road.

Well they can't stop you from having it in your own yard, he laughs as he heads out the door.

The boss meanwhile has walked over and asks, problems? Huh, oh yeh, I says, I have to advertise something yet keep it a secret. Perhaps I could call it a sack race, I mumble, how does this sound? SACK RACE SUNDAY, MAY 20 at 2 P.M., PRACTICE AT NOON, SIGN UP AND DIRECTIONS AT COAST CYCLE.

The boss pulls out a little black book and begins writing something in it as he walks away shaking his head. (Damn there goes my promotion).

Psst. there will be a class for enduro-type bikes as well as minis, helmets and protective clothing are a must as is consent from a parent or guardian for all minors. See you all at noon Sunday, rain or shine and bring a friend, it will be a Le Mans-type start.

Keep strokin..

MB REPORTS: The third in a series of five.

Our roots are deep in British Columbia

In the current five-year period (1978-82), MacMillan Bloedel is investing an extra $700 million in B.C. mills, logging equipment, transportation equipment to make us able to produce more efficiently, to deliver better products for B.C.'s huge international markets. These investments will help make each worker able to produce more, keep us competitive in the world, make B.C. jobs more secure. MacMillan Bloedel's business is international; our roots are in B.C.

We are building a brand-new, $163 million newsprint machine at Powell River. We're rebuilding four other newsprint machines in B.C. to increase production and improve paper quality at a cost of $32.7 million.

Our new self-propelled log barge, the HAIDA BRAVE, was built in Victoria at a cost of $13 million. It eliminates losses through logs sinking. Each of its cranes can pick up 40-ton bundles of logs (about the weight of 35 Datsuns). At Port Alberni, we're spending more than $73 million to build a new sawmill and modernize our own plywood plant.

These are just some of many hundreds of improvements MacMillan Bloedel is making to keep our products competitive in tough world markets.

We are an independent B.C. company, putting capital to work in this province, where our roots are. Our mills, plantations and production in other provinces and countries bring income to B.C.

The HAIDA BRAVE is just one of hundreds of investments MacMillan Bloedel is making in B.C. Total: $700 million by 1982.

If you have a question or would like to know what we have told shareholders about MacMillan Bloedel's investments, profit, plans, write for a copy of our latest annual report to MB REPORTS, 1075 West Georgia Street, Vancouver, V6E 3R9.

Port Hardy needs a Marina to handle the marine traffic that pours into the Port, and Pt. McNeil needs a marina enlargement, and Alert Bay is desperately in need of harbour expansion.

"The same applies to Bella Bella and Bella Coola. Down south it is Gibsons and Lund seeking expansion of their small boat harbours.

"Tourism is tied to every one of these towns. The services must be made available.

"At the calling of the election, I was involved with small craft harbour officials in both Ottawa and Vancouver in my capacity as Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Fisheries. Priorities were being considered and all avenues of funding were discussed.

"The Salmon Enhancement Program is a major project in British Columbia and must not be allowed to slow down. The next five years are most important. The drain on our fish stock increases annually and the sources of supply must be maintained. I have spent the past two years fostering the Enhancement program and recently was successful in preventing cut backs in this program due to monetary restraints. The program will continue on last year's basis.

"Why am I talking forestry which is generally a provincial priority? I have attended the last two annual meetings of the Canadian Forestry Association held in Ottawa. It is very shocking to learn as I did at the 1978 meeting, that Canada is now over cutting its timber resources. Last year, only one firm was reported as making any major effort to reforest and replant in British Columbia. The message was delivered again three weeks ago by the Association. Someone is still not listening.

"As a native born of British Columbia, I am concerned. I want all people in this riding to understand, we have a Salmon Enhancement Program. How about a Forest Enhancement program? It is one of our major resources, let's protect it now, next month may be too late.

"Transportation? Yes the problem is still around. Once a Federal responsibility to assist in the maintenance of service to remote and isolated settlements along the British Columbia Coast, now it's a Federal-Provincial responsibility that includes both sea and air. How are we doing? It depends on where you live. The north coast is still awaiting a suitable passenger — freight water service. The central coast fares better through the continuing of a freighter service with passenger service between Vancouver and Bella Coola. It took nearly two years of battling the Ministry of Transport to keep this freighter service from being scuttled. I am still not satisfied and feel the provincial government has not done its part. The federal government has transferred $17 million to the provincial government for transportation assistance to both the British Columbia Ferry system and private operators. Where did the money go? There has been no reductionn in ferry fares. No private operators have received any help during the tough and lean winter months. I want Premier Bennett to tell me what he did with the $17 million. To date, he refuses to answer me.

"On employment, I have never accepted the job creation formula of the Minister of Employment. In my opinion we should have concentrated on job training instead. He has seen the light and the new programs introduced earlier this year are now in the system. I would hope we will have trained enough tradesmen to be available for the Northern Gas Pipeline project that swings into action next year.

"My long association with the native people along the British Columbia coast has provided me with an inside knowledge of their concerns. I have been most fortunate in having as my advisors for many years, Senator Guy Williams as well as Clarence Joe of the Sechelt Indian Band.

"There are other issues of a local nature or on a more personal level relating to individuals. These I know of through my nearly five years as MP.

I feel my experience and continuous contacts with the various departments of government in Ottawa can be of assistance, to someone with a problem.

First elected to the House of Commons in the 1974 general election, Pearsall has served on several Standing Committees of the House of Commons including Fisheries and Forestry and the Special Committee on the Northern Pipeline. He has lobbied successfully for improved radio and television coverage in his riding, pushed for better and more landing strips and wharf facilities and demanded improved postal services.

Before his election to the House, Pearsall was a senior payroll clerk for MacMillan Bloedel in Powell River where he had worked for 34 years. During those years he became involved in such organizations as the B.C. Heart Foundation and Toastmasters Incorporated.

He and his wife Ann have three children; Janet, Susan and John. He was born in April of 1915 in Vancouver.

AN INCREASE in Sechelt rezonings, subdivision and everything in general will keep new village clerk Malcolm Shanks, 38, of Victoria busy for a long time to come. Shanks takes over the position after a three-year absence from municipal work. Previously he worked six years as deputy-clerk and tax collector for Central Saanich. Shanks also has accounting experience with B.C. Hydro and its predecessor as well as the City of Victoria.

the West and East Coast boundaries and ended up winning both?" asked Skelly.

Japanese connrol, loss of the processing industry, and boat licensing issues were also raised by fishermen.

Skelly attacked the "gold rush mentality" used in managing fish stocks.

Poor fisheries department budgets, direct political interference by fish companies, the consolidation of the industry in fewer and fewer hands, the progress in salmon enhancement were mentioned by Skelly as problems.

"I don't have all the answers. It will take a long time to sort it out. This resource belongs to our children. Fishermen and processors have to sit down and work out a rational policy," he said.

Hitting the Alaska boundary negotiations, Skelly said that international law recognizes that andromous stocks such as salmon belong to the country where they were spawned. He said most of the salmon Trudeau gave away to the Alaska pandhandle are spawned in B.C. rivers that empty into the Pacific in Alaska. "If we don't get benefit from our fish, many people want these rivers used for hydro-electric dams," he stated.

Asked about his chance of being elected, he said Jack Pearsall is not campaigning and is neglecting his responsibility.

"I am optimistic and if I had my choice I would choose this riding over any other in Canada," said the candidate.

"You're getting to be a politician already," said one may to the crowd's laughter.

A North Lake resident, Ann Satherwaite, raised the question of pensions for housewives and a Mr. Tapio said he thought husbands should be able to pay the Canada Pension contribution for their wives. B.F. Friesen voiced concern about those on fixed incomes and said tax exemptions were too small.

Skelly outlined Ed Broadbent's economic package.

"The corporate share of taxation is shrinking while the wage earner is paying more every year," said the candidate.

He mentioned Tommy Douglas' proposal to keep oil prices low to stimulate employment and keep our products competitive.

"If the NDP holds the balance of power in a minority government, they'll sing a different tune when it comes to the new Bank Act and mortgage rates," he added.

Regional director Joe Harrison thanked Skelly for his dedicated and thoughtful approach. Skelly promised to make himself available to his constituents and to speak for their concerns if he is elected.

Local piper Jock Cummings piped him into and out of the meeting to a rousing Scottish tune.

"I'm no stranger to the sound," Skelly quipped. "Our house was often filled with pipe music and my brother (re-elected NDP-MLA for Alberni, Bob Skelly) is a piper of some note."

At earlier meetings, the candidate has outlined other campaign priorities.

"There are 7,000 people seeking work in the Comox-Powell River Riding," he has stated, "and more than a million in Canada. Full employment is my first priority. We all pay the price of high unemployment.

"We've been exporting jobs with our resources. The next priority then, is Canadian control of Canadian resources, and processing them in Canadian factories. We must husband our resources more wisely.

"There are many concerns that are specific to this riding that I want to give close attention: coastal transportation, emphasis on Air-Sea Rescue, better balance and communication between the agencies governing forestry and fisheries.

"The most common concern of the people I have talked to on the doorstep is the high cost of living," Skelly stated, "and helping working people fight rising costs will be a top priority."

Specific proposals for Comox-Powell River are reforestation grants for employment now and in the future, rehabilitate fish spawning grounds, local research project to investigate woodwaste as an alternate energy source, local man power training programs geared to local job opportunities, and a grant system to small businesses to stimulate employment.

Skelly, 37, has tried his hand at a number of different occupations: labourer, steam engineer, first aid attendant, correctional officer and teacher.

Born and raised in New Westminster, he teaches Social Studies and Psychology at George P. Vanier Senior Secondary School in Courtenay.

He has been active in union work in the International Woodworkers of America, the B.C. Government Employee's Association and the B.C.. Teachers Federation.

He has served for several years as chairperson of both the Comox Valley Family Court and the Comox Valley Resources Board.

Skelly has been active in the New Democratic Party, serving as president of both the provincial constituency and federal riding associations. His brother Robert, is the Member of the Legislative Assembly for the Alberni constituency.

Skelly and his wife Dorothy live in Courtenay with their three daughters, Christine 11, Karen 9 and Kathy 6.

Olsen then warned of drastic measures if efforts fail to slow down the load growth and if additional capacity is not available. These include: rejection of all new electric space heating from portable plug-in heaters to fully electric-heat-designed homes and buildings; rejection of any additional large commercial or industrial electric loads.

Taking note of the fact he was speaking on the eve of an approaching election, the 33-year Hydro veterarn, who in 1949 was local power utility manager in Courtenay, emphasized that "nothing I say is intended to carry political undercurrents. poor habitat control and increased efficiency of commercial gear), my position is that the sports fishery (which catches 2 per cent of the salmon stocks by weight) regulations be left as is until accurate data is gathered over the next two or three years.

"Presumably the Commercial fishery (which catches 96 per cent of the fish crop) will be straightened out within the same two to three year frame."

In other words, Lazerte says, no saltwater fishing licence, no barbless hooks and no reduction in the present "first four fish caught in a day" limit. Further, any changes in the future would be made after consulting the individuals and organizations involved in the various fisheries.

On law and order, Lazerte says, prostitution, pornography and organized crime must be reduced to the lowest possible limits. Capital punishment must be restored as a possible option for juries in crimes of terrorism, premeditated murder, armed robbery, etc. Gun Control legislation should be amended in light of its bureaucratic delay and failure to keep weapons out of the hands of criminals.

It was a Conservative Government that established Canada as a confederation, he says about national unity. Joe Clark will work to hold Canada together.

It is a time for a fresh start — a time for Canada to realize its potention, he states. With Joe Clark, we will have a New Beginning and he quotes Joe Clark:

"We are determined to restore a sense of building to Canada and to give Canadians a stake in the development of their own country. That is and will remain the major thrust of our policies for Canada — to help Canadians own a home, expand a business and participate in the ownership of their own resources."

Although economic recovery was Lazerte's main topic to Comox Rotarians recently the question period concentrated on "How to get rid of Trudeau and would he go if defeated." The candidate gave his opinion that there were two ways to elect Trudeau. First is to vote Liberal; second to vote NDP, explaining that this would split the anti-Liberal vote. The way to assure that Trudeau would go, would be to elect a PC majority. Lazerte expressed his fear that Trudeau would cling to power with the aid of the NDP as in 1972.

Lazerte, 51, is a graduate in Arts and Law from the University of Alberta and practiced law first in northern Alberta and then in Edmonton until 1966.

His political background is campaign manager for Jack Bigg, MP Athabasca during four elections, Alberta Progressive Conservative Organizer, one of five candidates for Progressive Conservative Alberta provincial leadership in 1958, Progressive Conservative candidate in Comox-Alberni in 1974 and former school trustee for School District No. 72.

He is married with five children.

He is a licensed pilot, who enjoys hunting, fishing, hiking and has travelled extensively in Mexico, Carribean, Europe, Israel, and is a student of Political History.

He is a lawyer with Lazerte and Schmidt of Campbell River and has practiced since returning to British Columbia in 1966.

Volunteer helpline

Volunteers have been busily crocheting and knitting afghans for the Save the Children Program. These are all made from recycled wool from knitted garments (hand or machine made). Most of these blankets are sent to children in various parts of the world.

In order to raise some money to purchase more wool and for some other special projects connected to the Volunteer Bureau, a raffle is in progress. The afghan (winner's choice) and the rug which are being raffled will be on display again this week in both the Gibsons and Sechelt malls. Tickets are 25 cents each, or five for $1. The draw will be made on May 20 at Timber Days. If you have any knitted garments you would like to donate, please leave these at the Volunteer Bureau or at the display in the mall. Any new volunteers to the program would be most welcome.

VISITOR

An elderly couple in the Gibsons area would really enjoy spending time with an Italian-speaking person or couple. Have you a couple of hours each week to share with these people during the next few months?

for persons earning less that $20,000 annually and the elimination of income tax for those making less than $15,000, he said.

"Working people have worked too long and too hard for too little," Pederson said. "I'm sick and tired of hearing that working people aren't producing enough." The problem is that the results of the labor are not being distributed fairly, he explained.

"We need public ownership and democratic government control . . . We need people like you and me on the boards (of the companies)."

"I favor strict control of foreign investment in the fishing industry, as well as any other industry, to insure maximum returns for the Canadian people. Any company that is not prepared to abide by government control of foreign investment should be nationalized and put under democratic control.

"I support the union's call for a full investigation of concentration of ownership in the fishing industry.

"With respect to the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union being investigated by the Restrictive Trades Practices Commission under the Combines Investigation Act, I believe this action is inconsistent with the original intent of the Act which was to prevent corporate price fixing. It is imperative that this Act be used to control monopolies not working people.

"The membership of the UFAWU are workers and as such should be certified under the Labour Code of Canada. If elected I would certainly raise the question of the prostitution of the Combines Investigation Act against the UFAWU.

"I support the union's call for a Canadian negotiating position that maximizes Canada's boundary claims and access to stocks which would include strong opposition to the surrender of any part of Dixon Entrance to the United States. The Canadian government has continually retreated from the pressures of the American negotiators for concession. Canadian sovereignty is not negotiable.

"As a candidate for the Communist Party of Canada, I believe that the issues facing the fishing industry workers are issues important to all workers — the rights of workers over monopoly interests, jobs for Canadians, and the protection of Canadian sovereignty."

Zoning methods made planning chairman quit

By HELEN PARKER

Sechelt alderman Larry MacDonald said last week he hoped publicity over his resignation as chairman of the planning committee did not create "a smoke-screen" over more important matters.

He was speaking of the proposed rezoning of the remainder of Block 10, Lot 18, for higher density dwellings which he has voted against since the proposal Bylaw 146.5 was first introduced.

A public hearing is set for 7:30 p.m. May 23 at the Senior Citizens' Hall.

MacDonald feels too much land in Sechelt has been set aside for higher denstity population in the community plan and points to a letter from the ministry of municipal affairs senior planning coordinator Tom Maftechuk which supports him.

But the rezoning is only part of his reason for resigning.

"The reason I resigned was because council didn't go along with decisions made at committee level," he said.

In his letter to Mayor Harold Nelson, MacDonald said, "I find it very difficult to understand what happens between a planning committee meeting where all council members are present and a council meeting, but the agreements reached are not being followed through . . ."

He cited two cases including the recent approval of Bylaw 146.1, the eastern portion of Lot 10, where agreements were not followed.

He said he believed he had the full support of council when he told those attending the bylaw's public hearing that Marine Way was to paved from Reef to Trail.

At council's regular meeting May 2, from which MacDonald was absent, council gave final approval to the bylaw and accepted Norm Watson's $22,250 letter of credit which covers paving of only two-thirds of Marine Way.

The statement with the letter of credit fulfils only one and one-half of the nine conditions originally agreed upon at committee, MacDonald said.

"Council chose to accept Mr. Watson's assurance that a portion of this road would be completed by a third party," he said in his resignation letter.

His second reason was that, except for a bond to cover the road servicing of Pebble Holdings' industrial lots, council gave final approval to Bylaw 146.3 without all conditions being met.

"Pebble Holdings was to pave the lane next to Neptune Street to the satisfaction of the village, bring the extension of East Porpoise Bay Road where it intersects with Trail Avenue up to grade, prepare a profile of the East Porpoise Bay extension from Trail to Wharf at the expense of the village and pave the road to service their lots rezoned to industrial," the letter said.

"I believe Stan Anderson (partner in Pebble Holdings) will do it," MacDonald said later. "But that's not the way you do business."

Vandals slash police tires

Vandals have been busy in the Sechelt area with reports of slashed police car tires and flag thefts as well as smashed automobile glass.

Two tires of a police car parked on Mason Rd. were slashed May 4 while the constable was checking the Wakefield Inn premises. The tires are valued at about $70 each.

The Canadian flag was reported stolen May 7 from the flag pole outside the Sechelt village office.

The report follows another the same day of the theft of the flag from the Cenotaph. A few days prior to this, an attempt was made to steal the Canadian flag from the Sechelt Legion.

Meanwhile, members of the General Investigation Branch from the RCMP's Vancouver headquarters have been investigating leads to the whereabouts of Julia Helen Klachan, since she was reported missing April 5.

Constable Gary Tidsbury is the third constable assigned to the case from the GIS. Sechelt RCMP report there is no further information and the case will be treated as a missing persons' case until evidence proves otherwise.

Klachan, 31, was last seen early February 20 in the Madeira Park area.

Sechelt RCMP are investigating the theft of $400 from a man's wallet at the B.C. Forest Products camp at Narrows Inlet May 10.

Vandalism was reported May 9 after a rock was thrown through the windshield of a van at Coppings Car Town the night before.

Specialized fishing gear valued at more than $200 was reported stolen from a 25' Reinell boat moored at Osborne's Marina May 7.

Stolen, was a short, green fibreglass rod with a roller tip and a large wooden reel holding seven-strand wire line. Also stolen was a Fenwick seven-foot mooching rod with plastic guide eyes and an open-faced mooching reel.

The rod is hand-made and caramel-colored. A green tackle-box containing various fishing tackle was taken also. It is suspected the gear was stolen by a person pulling alongside in another boat.

Two plastic company signs were reported stolen May 5 from a truck parked at the Park Motel. The signs, reading Norway Logging Ltd., Port Coquitlam, are valued at about $80.

The rear lights of a vehicle parked at the Gibsons' Executive Apartments were reported smashed May 9, Gibsons RCMP said last week.

Shrubs valued at $250 were reported stolen from outside a Dougal Rd. residence May 7.

The potted shrubs stolen included a bonsai, two Japanese blockpines and an assortment of others.

A color TV and an AM-FM receiver and turntable valued at $1,600 were reported stolen May 6 in a Hwy. 101 residence break-in sometime during the first weekend in May.

A Davidson 10-foot, white boat and Mercury 4½ hp. motor were reported stolen May 6 from the Gibsons Government Wharf. The two are valued at about $500.

The Dept. of Highways reported a sign missing from the corner of Pratt and Hwy. 101, May 5.

The structure of the real estate profession

The real estate industry in B.C. is formulated for your security and protection.

The Real Estate Act is explicit in its protections to the public and is administered by the Superintendent of Brokers & Insurance on behalf of the Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs.

People in the real estate industry must be qualified to hold either a salesmen's or agent's license, both of which require basic study courses and examinations conducted through the University of British Columbia.

Under the Act, all newly licensed people are required to update their practical and academic knowledge and each of the eleven B.C. Real Estate Boards accepts as a serious responsibility a continuing education program for their members.

The real estate professional is trained in a service that is complex, exacting and very necessary to the majority of home buyers and sellers.

Let your salesman sell. Leave the showing of your house to your salesman. He know the features to best emphasize; he knows what his clients are looking for.

School money meets Pender pool need

By HELEN PARKER

The Pender Harbour Aquatic Society's chances for receiving a recreational facilities' assistance grant hinges on a monetary commitment from School District No. 46 to share the proposed swimming pool for the basement of Pender Harbour High School, Shirley Vader told school trustees.

Because the society's application deadline was already extended two weeks to May 14, the decision must be made at this particular meeting, she said Thursday.

After discussing various alternatives, the board agreed to rent the pool at a cost per hour equal to the estimated operating cost of the pool.

Further, for 1980 that rental is, and shall not exceed, $5,000 and the swimming program offered to the students shall be determined annually by the board and recited in its annual budget.

To be eligible for the $89,000 grant, the society was told a "signed, complete addendum" outlining the agreement between the school board and regional district must be added to their original application, Vader said.

"I don't think an agreement-in-principle would suffice," she answered to that suggestion.

As long as the regional district's involvement is within the limits already established, it is agreeable to any addendum the board finds acceptable, school district secretary-treasurer Roy Mills advised the board.

In Vader's lobby for the board's support, she reminded them of the "overwhelming" success of Pender Harbour's pool referendum April 21.

The Area A referendum carried with a 69.5 per cent majority, and the regional board has already accommodated the society by giving three readings to the necessary bylaw, she said.

"It is a joint facility school and we hope it will continue as that," she said.

Though it is against board policy to deal with briefs on short notice — some trustees had only just received it — the board agreed after much discussion to waive policy.

District superintendent John Denley said he felt the board would be "dealing with a political issue rather than a program issue" if the brief was dealt with that night.

There were a few of the "cost-saving suggestions" he did not like at first glance, he said, and the board could be faced with paying approximately "$25 per pupil because there is a pool here."

Trustee JoAnn Rottluff said the thought of the board committing itself immediately for the economic life of the facility bothered her and wondered if it could be reconsidered after a period of time.

Vader explained the board was in no way restricted to the program outlined in the brief, but it was an attempt to show the estimated cost to the school board for 200 hours of pool time per year.

The brief estimated costs for pool rental, instructor and lifeguard wages and bus transportation at $5,220 for a grade one to 12 swim program, swim meets and recreational programs.

DESCRIBED AS the finest saxophone player on the coast, Riccoh Talento entertained parents along with the Elphinstone Concert Band, including seven Pender Harbour students, at the education meeting at Pender Harbour high school Thursday.

Sr. Citizens Br. 69

By ROBERT FOXALL

I always feel sorry when, for one reason or another, members have to miss some of our social events. The same holds true for those who were unable to attend at the show of May 10 given by the Burnaby Rascals. Our visitors arrived by car just minutes ahead of lunch time to be greeted by a goodly number of our membership and all were soon seated at the tables around the hall. President Bill welcomed our guests, who added a lot of color to the surroundings with their white slacks and red jackets, and then called upon Dave Hayward to ask the blessing so that we could all tuck into a welcome lunch prepared by the Social Committee under Ruby Breadner. Surnames were not very prevalent so I can only say that after the lunch we were thanked by a lady I must call "Scottie" for her accent could not have come from south of the Border.

As soon as the tables were cleared the program began and the "Rascals" marched into the Hall to the tune of "The Old Grey Mare". By this time they had all acquired white stetsons and the ladies were carrying red and white parasols which they twirled most rapidly as they marched. Forming a circle and with parasols twirling they performed a most intricate and colorful dance. With guitars, banjos and ukeleles and two harmonicas accompanying the pianos and drums the group sang "Turn on the Sun (and smile again)". One of the men, a fine baritone, then sang "Let's Go Back To The Bible" a song with a lot of sound philosophy for our troubled times, which was followed by "This Land is Our Land"

With the audience participating the group then sang "Brown Eyes", "Buttons and Bows," "I wish I was on the Farm" (with a few ribald additions to the words, and, "I'm An Old Cowhand".

Norah (one of the active participants and the pianist) then taught the audience to yodel to the tune of "He Taught Me To Yodel".

Following was "Put A Little Sunshine in Your Heart". Then the ladies to the tune of "Wagon Wheels" gave us a fine exhibit of Parasol twirling.

We all joined in singing "Something to Sing About, This Land of Ours" and the Rascals a paraphrase of a well known song which they called "Sechelt By The Sea".

Surrey is celebrating its centennial this year and Freddy played his own composition "Let's Celebrate, Surrey" written to honor the occasion.

Dorothy in Top-Hat and Tails led in singing such songs as "Country Fair" "The Home Town Band", "Little Brown Jug" and many others.

Then came the clowns portrayed by two of the ladies of the group and an exhibition of dancing and the "Tiger and its Trainer" played by two of the ladies in which the tiger turned the tables on its trainer, seized the whip and drove the trainer off the stage. It was a most happy afternoon and it is our hope that the Rascals arrived home safely and will soon visit us again with more of their fine entertainment. It could be seen, also, that they were having fun from their performing.

I would like to think that it resulted from my mention last week of the swimming at the Gibsons Pool that there was a larger turn out on Friday than I have yet seen, and we have had several inquiries as to times and the availability of lessons. Come on down — it's fun.

Fish landings decreased drastically	Offshore freezing capacity to provide work for shore processors
Fish processing well below capacity	Change regulations to ensure fair sharing of the catch
Half of Canada's fishermen earn less than $7500 per year	Establish effective advisory councils
70% of fish caught are loaded on foreign ships	Appoint a Deputy Minister for each Coast

A SOLID DEFENCE for Elphinstone girls netted the team its first win of the rugby season. Elphinstone defeated Garibaldi 12-4 in a home match May 8. Coach John Spence said he is pleased with the team's rapid improvement during its first season.

Two wins for girls

Two Elphinstone teams scored their first victories of the season on Tuesday, May 8 — the girls' rugby team by defeating Garibaldi 12-4 in a home match, and the tennis squad by edging Brittania 6-5 in Vancouver.

Tries by Carla Paetkau, Shelley Wagner and Peggy Swanson and a solid defence gave the Elphine girls the first win of their inaugural season, after three losses.

Paetkau opened the scoring on an eighth man pick-up play and Wagner increased the margin to 8-0 by touching down the ball after a Garibaldi miscue near the goal line. The visitors scored to cut the lead in half but Swanson dashed down the right sideline on a set play following a penalty to put the game out of reach.

Garibladi nearly pushed in for a try late in the game but fumbled the ball at the goal line.

Coach John Spence, pleased with the team's rapid improvement, said an important factor in the victory was Wagner's tough defensive play. She keyed on Garibaldi's standoff and kept her off balance for much of the game, Spence said.

Elphinstone played in a round-robin tournament with Garibladi and Port Coquitlam at Garibaldi yesterday.

In tennis, easy wins by two girls' doubles' teams and triumphs by Lena and Robbie Jomas in singles' matches allowed Elphinstone to win six of 11 matches against an East Vancouver school, Britannia.

Debbie McDonald and Bonnie Janiewick whitewashed their opponents, 6-0, 6-0, while Shirley Ten and Lisa Bjornson won almost as handily, 6-1, 6-1. Lena Jonas shut out her opponent 6-0 and Robbie Jomas won his singles' match 6-2. Elphinstone almost won another set when the Jonas' team lost a mixed doubles' set in a tie-breaker.

The Elphinstone tennis team will host Windermere tomorrow (Thursday).

Meanwhile, a doubles' tournament sponsored by the school team has been scheduled for the last weekend of the month, Friday and Saturday, May 26-27. Entry fees of $2 per person per event may be paid at Trail Bay Sports in Gibsons.

There will be championship and consolation flights in men's, women's and mixed doubles. The tournament is expected to begin about 9 a.m. Saturday, May 26.

B.C. Rain doesn't stop Renegades

By CHRIS SNAPE

Sechelt Renegades placed in the top three in the B.C. zone two soccer playoffs May 5 and 6 in Squamish and will go to the B.C. finals after beating out their own local competion, the Chiefs.

Renegades defeated the Chehalis Golden Hawks in the Saturday morning game by a 6-0 score with Darrien Dixon and Vern Joe getting a pair each and singles by Stuart Craigen and Robert Joe for the victors. Tony Paul got the shutout and the two game stars were Darren Dixon and Robert Joe as selected by Renegade coach Hubert Joe.

The afternoon game saw a heavy rainfall that made the ball hard to control but it lead to a 3-0 for the Renegades over the Chiefs.Barry Johnson, Bradley Joe and Vern Joe scored with Gary Feschuck and Darren Dixon picked as game stars. Lloyd Jackson picked Howie Joe and Kirby Jackson as the two stars for the losing Chiefs. Again Tony Paul got the shutout.

The Renegades went into penalty shots but lost the much-disputed Sunday morning game to the Sliammon Sounders after the Sounders scored 46 seconds after the game should have been over. Confronting the referee about the almost-46-minute half instead of 45 he ruled that there was a two-minute injury time allowance. Goal scorers for the Renegades in the 5-4 game were Darrin Dixon, Vern Joe, Stuart Craigen and Robert Joe with the two Sechelt allstars Robert Joe and Darrin Dixon.

Sunday afternoon the Sechelt Renegades walked all over the Chehalis Chiefs with a 12-2 victory on goals by Vern Joe with 5, Rick August with 4, Darrin Dixon, Bradey Joe and Barry Johnson. Sechelt goalie Tony Paul got 4 assists in the game that had Vern Joe and Tony Paul selected as allstars.

The decididng game for third place at 3 p.m. Sunday put the Renegades up against the Sechelt Chiefs once again with a 3-2 win for the Renegades with Chief goals by Kirby Jackson and Kenny Paul who were also picked game allstars while Robert Joe got two for the victorious Renegades and Vern Joe added one as the two Joe's were selected Renegade allstars.

This game gave the Renegades third place and entrance to the B.C. Zone final playoffs.

All in all the bad weather didn't dampen Sechelt spirits with fans enjoying a great weekend of soccer and Sechelt came home with six trophies.

Tony Paul was picked best goalie, Darrin Dixon, Ernie Dixon and Vern Joe were tournament allstars with Joe getting a top scorer trophy for his ten goals and four assists.

Special thanks must go to Frank Dixon for boosting team morale for the Chiefs.

Although the Sliammon Sounders won the tourney, I'm sure the Renegades are looking forward to their next confrontation.

The club's annual membership drive is now underway and 14 new members have joined so far. Anyone considering joining, can call club manager George Lieth at 885-9212 or any club member.

Tribute to Jack Hall

by Mary Tinkley-Shannon 885-9765

Jack Hall, who died suddenly at his home at Welcome Beach on May 7 in his 79th year, was born in Forfar, Scotland. In 1910, he accompanied his family to Canada and they settled in Vancouver. He was only 16 when he enlisted in the Canadian Field Artillery and served for four years in World War 1. Returning to Vancouver at the end of the war, he worked as a salesman for the Gutta Percha Company and later with the B.F. Goodrich Rubber company, he rose from salesman to become head of the Industrial Products Division, responsible for the whole of western Canada. He married his wife Dorothy in 1943 and they made their home in West Vancouver where he becmae a Mason and a member of the King David Lodge.

After their marriage, the Halls were frequent visitors at the home of Mrs. Hall's cousin, Jessie Meikle, so on retirement in 1965, they bought the lovely waterfront home where they had so often been guests. Jack took an active interest in the Welcome Beach Community Association and worked hard to establish the shuffleboard club. It wasn't always easy in those days when there was only one shuffleboard, no furnace and frequent water problems. He would make numerous journeys from his home to the hall to start up the heater, open up the hall for the players and pack water for the mug-up when the water lines became frozen, but Jack played an important part in building up the group to the part it now plays in the community. He also served for a term on the board of St. Mary's Hospital Society.

During his years of travelling through B.C. both with the Gutta Percha and Goodrich companies, Jack Hall became intensely interested in the history of B.C., particularly of the older places like Quesnel, Barkerville, Williams Lake and Prince George. He started collecting items of historical interest and when he settled in Welcome Beach, he started a small museum where he loved to show friends his collection of old telephones, railway equipment and farm implements. He was an entertaining companion and liked nothing better than to tell anecdotes about his travels around B.C. He was a good and enthusiastic cribbage player and will be sorely missed by his many friends.

Jack Hall is survived by his wife Dorothy, a son Peter of West Vancouver, a daughter, Marguerite MacKenzie of Prince George and five grandchildren. A memorial service was held at the Welcome Beach Hall on May 12 with the Rev. John Paetkau officiating.

LITTLE RENO NIGHT

On Saturday, May 19 at 8 p.m. social evenings at the Welcome Beach Hall will wind up for the season with a Little Reno Night. Everybody is welcome and the admission price of 50 cents will include refreshments. Come along and enjoy the thrill of a 25-cent chance on Bingo, Poker, Shuffleboard, Carpet Bowling and many other skills without any danger of losing your shirt.

HMB HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

When 21 members of the Hospital Auxiliary met at the Welcome Beach Hall on May 7, the president, Geri Smith, welcomed two new members, Pat Dickenson and Mary Sewell. Members were informed that the Thrift Shop was in urgent need of used clothes and that any donations would be most welcome and could be left with Grace Rutherford at the post office.

A Mothers' Day party at the Extended Care Unit was being planned with Mary MacDonald as convenor. The Auxiliary had also agreed to put on its usual refreshment stall for Timber Days, serving tea, coffee, sandwiches, cake and pie. Grace Rutherford will again act as convenor. On June 4, the last meeting date before the summer recess, the Auxiliary will hold its usual smorgasbord supper at the home of Mary Dolmage.

WANTED — A GOOD SAMARITAN

Some three years ago, Bob Paulhus, a community minded resident of Redrooffs Road, was concerned to find that several elderly people using the Shoppers' Bus on Thursdays, were finding it a problem to get their groceries home. He volunteered to pick up their groceries each Thursday after he left his job at B.C. Hydro and deliver them. It proved a wonderful service for the people concerned, but when Bob Paulhus was transferred to the Prince George office, it seemed for a time as if the bus passengers were back to square 1. However, another public spirited citizen came forward to fill the breach. Earl Perry agreed to carry on the good work with the help of his mother as chauffeur. He has done a fine job for the past eighteen months but will no lonner be able to continue as he will be working during the summer vacation and then will be going to Gibsons to school. The Perrys wonder if there is another good Samaritan who would be interested in carrying on this work. If so, please telephone Donna Perry at 885-3742.

BEEFS AND BOUQUETS

This week we have a Beef and a Bouquet. The Beef if from a resident of Redrooffs whose children have had permission to work their horses on the land behind the Harold Ives property. The parents had installed six drums and some poles on the property for the equestrian exercises and some of these have been stolen. Residents are reminded that the land in question is private property, as are the drums and jumping poles.

When the officers of the Welcome Beach Association came to raise the hall flag at half mast in tribute to the memory of Jack Hall they were unable to find the flag which, when it was taken down after the death of the late W.A.C. Bennett, was not put away in its usual place. The Executive asks that anybody who knows where the flag has been stored should telephone Grace Rutherford at 885-9672. Alex Ellis nominates Bill Dolmage for this week's Bouquet for coming to the rescue and providing a flag so that the Association could pay due honour to a loved and respected member.

RETURNING TRAVELLERS

Bill and Alice Fraser are home after two weeks in Hawaii. They spent a week in Waikiki which they enjoyed but which they found to be all hustle and bustle. They thoroughly enjoyed the biggest bargain Waikiki has to offer, a 25-cent bus ride all around the island. They decided to celebrate Bill's birthday with a dinner-boat cruise. When it was discovered that Bill was the only person on the cruise celebrating his birthday, he was honoured and feted. Of course, he blushingly received the usual lei and kiss from a very lovely Hawaiian girl. The second week they spent in a delightful condominium on the north-west coast of Maui. The beach was beautiful but the breakers huge, so they swam in the two very fine pools belonging to the condominium. They met many interesting people from all over B.C. and from the States.

Another returning traveller is May Holgate who journeyed by train to Regina for a visit with her father, sister, daughter Joe Buss and her grand-daughter Julia. She found the train journey interesting and relaxing. It was just like a house party, she says, with a great deal of visiting and even some bingo.

"Hey," said the beetle, "there aren't any cherries in that tree!"
"I know," replied the snail, "but there will be by the time I get there."

Political playoffs...

Like hockey the finals of Canada's political game are at hand where some hard checking in the political arena will

The Times published candid pictures of well-known political personalities each week, like these of Clarke and Trudeau week, like this of Broadbent, during the during the campaign.

Each had a blank balloon in which you wrote what you thought was an appropriately funny expression, thought or quip.

We chose such provocative portrayals to tickle your sense of humour and to inspire you to think up suitable captions to broaden everyone's smiles or to downright break us up with laughter!

The winner each week will get two tickets to Ray Boothroyd's Twilight Theatre and the prize entry published in next week's issue.

Print your quip in the blank balloon, clip the entire picture, attach your name, address and telephone number and send to Parliamentary Playoffs, c-o Peninsula Times, Box 310, Sechelt, or drop it into the office on the Sunshine Coast Highway.

All entries to qualify must be in our office for judging no later than 5 p.m. Saturday.

In the event of identical entries, the winner will be the one opened first by our judges.

Sharpen your pencil and your wits . . . get in on the fun . . . join the election antics . . . and win! Last chance!

Okay! Here's Joe and Pierre.

THIS SYMBOL or logo for the Sunshine Coast Community Services Society was designed by the students of Chatelech Secondary School with art director Mrs. Campbell's guidance. The longer you study it, the more significant it becomes that children realize a helping hand extended, reaching out either to give help or receive it is, in fact, the strength of any society. Our strength as a community is our people. Our people working to help each other whenever or whatever need arises. Local dancers shine in Surrey

The Surrey Dance Festival April 23 to 27 is the largest in N. America and has operated for the past 12 years. It is backed by the City Council of Surrey and the Mayor and has entries from all over the Province and some out-of-province entries. The Dance section of the Festival had some 2,500 entries and covers all forms of dance, National, ballet, tap, stage and own-choreography.

Three local girls who participated and accredited themselves in the Festival were Karen Boothroyd, Susan Francis and Debbie Middleton. Karen placed 1st in Duo Tap Stage, 2nd in Jazz Solo over a field of 20 contestants, 3rd in a Tap Solo and earned a Certificate of Merit for a Duo Jazz. Susan placed 1st in a Duo Tap Stage and earned Certificates of Merit for a Solo Song and Dance, a Tap Solo, a Tap Solo Stage and a Duo Jazz. Debbie earned a Certificate of Merit for a Solo Tap.

As a point of interest, Debbie and Leanne Middleton, who study Voice with Geneva Colandges (sister to local Helen Sinclair), also participated in the Coquitlam Festival, held during the first week of April. Debbie placed 2nd in her Voice Class and Leanne scored 84 per cent in her Class.

Susan and Karen are students of the Gibsons School of Theatre Dance, under the direction of Mrs. Jean Milward. Debbie studies dance in Vancouver at the Bonnie Lee Academy. Susan and Karen also particapated in the Coquitlam Festival and placed 2nd in a Duo Tap Stage Classification.

The Garden Corner

Test before germinating

By Guy Symonds

In a recent column it was promised that a procedure for testing seeds would be described and somehow that promise got lost. So now it must be redeemed.

No one, surely, who has a spark of feeling can fail to be awestruck with the power that lies within a tiny seed. Any gardener feels the magic every time he is given the privilege of starting new life on its way by giving these tiny miracles the chance to fulfil their destiny.

Everyone who talks about seeds and their value in money always emphasizes that it is so cheap that one should never use any seed left over from the previous year. Here is one gardener, however, who cannot bear to see it go to waste and last year got a very good carrot crop from seed that was two years old. Admittedly, the percentage of germination was not as high, but still its use made good economic sense.

Now, in a recent article on the subject, a gardener offers advice on a method for testing seed before taking chances on its germinating power in the garden, and claims that it works very well.

First, he says, you take 10 seeds and spread them out on a wet paper towel and roll up the towel. Then you place the rolled-up paper towel in a piece of soaked terry cloth and roll that up too. Finally, you put both rolled up towels in a plastic bag, seal it and leave it in a warm place to encourage germination. After the proper length of time, could be anything from four to 10 days depending on what variety of seed it is, unroll the towels and count the number of seeds that have germinated. If seven of the ten seeds have sprouted, obviously you have 70 per cent germination. Some people say that the test is not accurate because of the small number of seeds being used. Well there is nothing to prevent any number being tested provided that the result is reduced to a percentage.

If you have noticed how the price of a packet of seeds has increased both in the amount of money demanded and in the vastly reduced amount of seed in the packet, the old idea about seeds being cheap loses some of its impact.

While still on the subject of seeds and the result of the germination of seeds, this gardener has run into a problem that is quite unique in his experience. In a lifetime of growing green peas in the garden with admittedly varying but generally pretty good success, this year has injected a new and baffling development.

This appears to be some kind of a cut worm that chews up the newly-sprouted stem at just about soil level. But not only that, it seems to operate in the same fashion as the weevil that attacks rhododendrons. That is, its thrice-accursed offspring chew pieces out of the leaves all around the edges. This does not kill the young plants but it certainly must hurt their growth. After they have grown three or four inches high the attacks cease. So bad has this been that the Feltham Earlies had to be resown as the loss was at least 50 per cent and it looks as though the Kelvedon Wonders that were so successful last year will also have to be resown.

Not being able to find the answer, this gardener has resorted — much against his will — to the use of diazinon to try to control the cut worm if cut worm it be, and to a Malation spray to take care of whatever is chewing the leaves.

The annoying part is that this had seemed to hold the promise of an ideal growing year as far as the weather was concerned, and since extra effort was put forth to bring in a good lot of mushroom compost to add to the green manuring and the garden compost heap, good results were confidently expected.

If anyone has the answer it would be most gratefully accepted by this gardener who must humbly accept the fact that once more he has been given the lesson originally laid down to Adam — it is never going to be easy to grow anything.

So far it does not seem to be all that good a growing year — or maybe one gets too impatient, but the ground does not seem to be responding as it used to. Maybe the very penetrating frost we had in the late winter means that it takes more time to raise the soil temperature and one has fallen into the trap of trying to get things into the ground too early.

It calls for all the philosophical rationalizing of which one is capable.

"No success or failure — only results!"

Provincial Court

Judge Johnson concluded Richard Arthur Emerson did not intentionally ram the Pacific Salt with his commercial vessel and found him not guilty of operating a vessel in a manner dangerous to life or limb last week in Sechelt Provincial Court.

Emerson was charged following an incident in the waters off Frances Peninsula May 21, last year.

A small fine and a long driving suspension was handed down to Peter Viggo McKenzie following a conviction for driving while disqualified.

McKenzie was fined $100 and suspended from driving for three years. Judge Johnson said the lengthy suspension was for the protection of others, since McKenzie has committed other driving offences in the past and he is under "heavy medication" for chronic arthritis and hemophilia.

McKenzie earlier was found not guilty of driving while impaired by a drug. Because the Crown charged him with driving while impaired by a drug when evidence led the judge to suspect impairment was caused by a combination of a drug and alcohol, Judge Johnson said he had no alternative but to find McKenzie not guilty of the offence.

Richard Peter Brehm, 20, pleaded guilty to driving while impaired and was given a $350 fine and six months probation to attend the impaired drivers' course.

Andrew James Watt pleaded guilty to being a minor in possession of liquor and was fined $100.

Times reporter on the high seas

Submersible can't make her irascible

By HELEN PARKER

Dear Editor: I know late copy equals over-time at the printers and I really meant to organize my time this week, but not much typing can be done out on choppy seas near Trail Islands on a Thursday afternoon.

And the camera can be explained too. But when I'm gripping with my knees to the seat of the Sechelt Rescue 11 Zodiac, as if to a bucking horse, do you really expect me to pull out liquid lens cleaner and paper?

And so I was late for the school board meeting. No one noticed, and I did manage to do my duty and vote just before the polls closed.

But it all started with a rendezvous behind the Selma Park breakwater with Provincial Emergency Program coordinator Art McPhee and a life-long dream for what you might call a real scoop.

So when I discovered Art was arranging to take the Zodiac out to Pandora 11 which was spending the afternoon around Trail Islands, I called him and asked to go.

The Pandora 11 is the mothership for the Pisces 1V. The Pisces 1V is a submersible, obviously the technical name for tiny submarine, and used to make biological observations of the ocean bottom.

Art and I reached the ship just in time to see Pisces 1V emerge and change crews. Even its weight of about eight tons didn't prevent the submersible from bobbing around a bit.

But, hopefully, we weren't going to spend a few hours bobbing around ourselves until the next good picture opportunity when it emerged again and was taken aboard.

And the buoy marking its descending point kept disappearing and we didn't want to get in the way. Then a voice from the radio invited us aboard for coffee, and after a short detour to warn a fishing boat away from the sub's vicinity, I found myself in a ship's bar for the first time.

Art's interest was in the ship's bridge and that's where he headed, while I stayed in the bar, with my coffee, and asked a few questions.

The senior project biologist, Darcy Goyette, explained the complicated family tree of those aboard, including the submersible.

The crew comes with the ship, which is chartered by the Dept. of Fisheries and Oceans and Goyette and his fellow biologists are with the Environment Protection Service. The Pisces 1V is owned by Dept. of Fisheries and Oceans and somewhere, I've forgotten now, the Institute of Ocean Sciences comes into it.

The reason they were in the area was to "observe general bottom conditions — sediment types and indications of currents — for the proposed sewer outfall for Sechelt," Goyette said.

The outfall is a proposed extension to somewhere around Trail Islands of the present 1,500-foot outfall. The extension may be five to 10 years into the future.

The biologists had been out on the ocean since Monday checking sewer outfalls at Macaulay Point and in the Victoria area, ocean dumpsites in the Victoria area, and at Harmac pulp mill.

From Sechelt, they were headed to Woodfibre with a stop to take a few shellfish samples to see if the copper concentration in them had reduced since Britannia Mines closed.

The Pisces 1V kept contact with the mothership through underwater telephone. The biologists aboard the Pisces 1V used a 16 mm film camera and 70 mm still camera as well as tape recorders in their studies of the ocean bottom.

Goyette said the submersible was Canadian-designed and built and is the first Pisces to be certified safe, manned, at 6,600 feet below the surface.

Unmanned, Pandora 11's second mate Harry Johnson said, it can go down 7,200 feet.

I went up to the bridge to take a few pictures and found the crew trying to locate the buoy to take a radar reading. Again it had disappeared. Finally, it was spotted closer to Sechelt, where the crew was probably checking out the present outfall.

They were running behind schedule and didn't expect to finish for another hour, but in the meantime, Art and I were invited to stay for dinner.

Just as we finished a good meal of roast turkey, the Pisces crew informed the mothership they were ready to emerge.

We put on our lifejackets, climbed back into the Zodiac and followed Goyette and Bob Taylor, a Pisces 1V pilot with fisheries and oceans, in theirs, in search of the buoy. Once the Pisces emerged, I crawled out on the front of the Zodiac and peeked over the conning tower to look at the hatch.

It made its way back to the mothership with Taylor standing on top to attach it to the grappling hook. From there it was raised on to the ship and rode on runners inside.

As we parted company, the Pandora 11 toward Britannia, and Art and I back to Selma Park, Art radioed:

"Pandora 11, Pandora 11,

"Sechelt Rescue 11.

"Thank you kindly."

UNIQUE LIFESTYLE of Logger Fred and his boat-eating goat was experienced by Deserted Bay students on their recent visit to head of Jervis Inlet.

Deserted Bay report

By LISA COLBECK

This week we had six students away, so there were less dishes to wash! Tiis was our first week in a while that we didn't have visitors. We enjoy them very much but we all needed a break to take off the strain that some of us felt.

We managed while the weather was okay to go and visit with a logger named Fred. He lives at a deserted logging camp near the head of Jervis Inlet (Huna-Chin). His family are two big pigs, goats, chickens, rabbits and a dog. He keeps them just for pleasure.

Everyone was on a chase to catch rabbits since he said we could keep whatever ones we caught, but we had no luck. His place was interesting and we plan to see him more often.

While we were at Fred's, Mr. Micky Jay and Mr. Eugene Turenno came up on their troller "Garry Al".

They also gave us three salmon that we barbequed on an open fire. We really liked eating them.

On Wednesday, Mr. Clarence Joe, Gilbert Joe, Rob Robson and Dave Newland came up for a surprise visit on Clarence's boat the "Hunachin Princess" for a couple of hours.

We did some landscaping around the camp. We planted grass seeds and the bulbs from Joan Allan and Bonnie Colbeck will become flowers and plants to decorate the area a lot more.

On Thursday some of us went out fishing. Rob Graham caught a red snapper and I got two dogfish.

We had an easy week this time. We would like to thank Roy Mills for changing the times for travelling. And congratulations to the Nicholsons on the birth of a baby boy.

Don't get caught by our spring showers. Rain hats and hoods or scarves are always available here. Many colours to brighten your day. — Miss Bee's, Sechelt.

Book Look

By MURRIE REDMAN

HE: AN IRREVERENT LOOK AT THE AMERICAN MALE by Florence King, Stein & Day (McGraw-Hill Ryerson), c1978, 204 pages, $12.95.
'SALEM'S LOT by Stephen King, Signet paperback, $2.25

Stephen King is no relation to Florence King but the two books bear a relationship in their bite. The former author writes about vampires, while the latter chooses biting humour as her style. While Mr. King deals in men who bite, Ms. King prefers to bite men.

HE is not only "irreverent" as the title so snidely identifies itself, but also downright mean. No male, stereotyped or otherwise escapes King's scrutiny. The macho strutter who assumes all females find him irresistible and the "liberated" young househusband are objects of ridicule. The old swinger and the nice-guy-next-door fall to her cutting words.

But, and even male readers must agree, there is nothing so healthy as laughing as oneself. The book is truly one that should be read in private. The guffaws and giggles that are apt to escape are decidedly ones that will drive onlookers to stare or bedmates to take up their pillows and sleep in the den. Those who read it will hear themselves saying "of course", "how true" and "exactly".

King's book puts all of those secret foibles which you have often noted about the male sex down in text. It is unkind, it is nasty and it is thoroughly and riotiously hilarious. Recommended for all women and men who can retain their sense of humour, is HE.

Author of CARRIE and THE SHINING, Stephen King brings an even bloodier tale of the macabre out in print. The story is set in a small village much like those on our fair peninsula. The people there centre their lives around each other and the goings on within the boundaries of its self-contented and self-contained confines. Mr. King excells at seeing the ordinary as the perfect backdrop on which to superimpose his occult novels.

Ben Mears, author, comes to 'Salem's Lot where he had experienced as a child, a ghostly encounter. In the old Marsten House on the hill there had been a strange murder-suicide. On a childish dare, he had returned trembling to the very hallway leading to the room where the murderer had hanged himself. When he threw open the door his young eyes had bugged at the vision of the hanging man.

Needing to settle after a personal tragedy, Ben decides to return to 'Salem's Lot. There he meets an attractive young woman and things go swimmingly. Strangers rent the Marsten House and townspeople begin to disappear. Untimely deaths and tales of ghostly vampires are whispered. In the usual King manner, vampires or ghosts are not vanquished as are those in old movies.

Ben and his friends must devise ways of fighting back at the encroaching vampire and his company of bloody servants. When the whole town is under the control of the stranger on the hill, only Ben and a little boy are left to search out the offenders and do what must be done.

King describes the stench, the sight the gore of it all to satiate even the most demanding occult fan. Readers are in for the bloodiest of vampirical endings in 'Salem's Lot.

Decorate your bicycles for Timber Days contest

Get out the crepe paper, pump up your bicycle tires and get ready to roll 9:15 a.m. Victoria Day, kids, because the Sechelt RCMP are again judging the Decorated Bike Contest during Timber Days.

There are three categories: for children one-to-four-years-old; five-to-eight-years-old and nine-to-12-years-old.

Constable Tom Hansen and Special Constable Carl Dixon will be awarding trophies to first, second and third-place winners in the two older age groups and cheques for $10 and $5 to the fourth and fifth-place winners in the same groups.

Preschool winners will receive rosettes. Judging takes place in front of the Indian Band office. Entry forms have been distributed through local elementary schools and are available from the Sechelt RCMP detachment.

The RCMP prefer the entry forms to be handed in at the detachment before the contest so they have some idea of the number of children they will be dealing with.

Local woman to lung meet

Mrs. Patricia Murphy of the Sunshine Coast Christmas Seal Committee, will attend the 1979 Annual Meeting of the British Columbia Lung Association to be held May 17 and 18 at the Sheraton Plaza 500 Hotel in Vancouver.

Delegates from around the province will be attending, and in addition to participating in the business transactions they will have the opportunity to hear progress reports from the directors of several research projects funded by Christmas Seals in British Columbia. Health education and smoking cessation programs which are also an important part of the Lung Association's work will be discussed and reviewed.

Speakers at the meeting will include Dr. Kam S. Tse, a Vancouver physician actively concerned with asthma research, Dr. W. Hulbert, an Electron Microscopist working in the pulmonary research laboratory at St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver, and the Hon. Bob McLelland, Minister of Health for the Province of British Columbia.
