Says Vander Zalm

Government to probe Sechelt zoning

Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm agreed last Wednesday to a preliminary investigation into alleged irregularities in Sechelt village council's handling of zoning, subdivision and development proposals.

The decision was made following a meeting between NDP-MLA Don Lockstead (MacKenzie) and Vander Zalm on the basis of a 27-page letter from the Sechelt Ratepayer's group to the ministry itemizing the alleged irregularities.

"I want the air cleared," Lockstead told The Times Friday. "As long as there are these kinds of allegations...you know what it's like in a small community."

The investigation will involve a "senior ministry official talking to those who made the allegations, and the council, "Lockstead said.

The preliminary investigation will determine whether the allegations are warranted and whether a full inquiry, involving the RCMP, is needed, Vander Zalm told the Times Friday.

"The investigation was requested by the MLA and the inspector of municipalities (Bill Long) complied with that request, Vander Zalm said.

"Investigations of this kind are not uncommon," he said "We've had perhaps two or three in the last year."

Vander Zalm said he had not yet seen the ratepayers' letter, but these requests for investigations are not uncommon either, and "particularly when the request comes from an MLA, or a responsible citizen, the inspector of municipalities responds."

Vander Zalm said the inspector of municipalities has "no comment at this time."

"We're looking at the complaint, that's all I can say," he said.

Long would not discuss previous investigations into other municipalities, nor would he say whether these investigations have ever led to a full inquiry.

Long also had "no comment" on which specific points in the letter will be investigated.

Sechelt Ratepayers Chairman Chuck Dowman said the preliminary investigation comes as "a bit of a surprise."

His "secondhand" information he said, was that if council elected to place a 90-day moratorium on the present zoning amendment bylaws, "they (municipal affairs) would send someone to help out."

Alleging that council may be involved in some wrong-doing "was not our intent at all," Dowman said.

The letter had "nothing to do with pay-offs" he said. "Where the government came up with that, I don't know."

Dowman said the original letter contained certain statements which may have alleged some illegalities on the part of council, but these were struck before the letter went to Victoria because "we had no proof."

The letter was not released to local press, because the group's board of directors agreed to "put a lid on it," Dowman said.

However, the Vancouver Sun reported Thursday, the letter charged that rezoning applications have been "rushed" through council and hinted at possilbe outside influence by developers."

According to documents submitted by the ratepayers to the inspector of municipalities, the Sun continued, there have been cases of zoning and re-zoning amendments "extending back more than a year where the Municipal Act has allegedly not been complied with."

Also, some concern voiced by residents to the council over zoning matters have remained unanswered.

Council surprised, shocked at inquiry

The municipal affairs ministry's decision to conduct a preliminary investigation into charges of irregularities in zoning, subdivision and development proposals handled by Sechelt village council has sparked reactions of surprise, shock and disappointment.

And the actions of the Sechelt Ratepayers' group now has helped two aldermen decide whether to run for re-election in November.

"I am certainly not running (for re-election) after this treatment of council by the ratepayers," Alderman Morgan Thompson told The Times Friday.

"I feel they have claimed we are doing something wrong," Thompson said, "I feel badly that people in this group feel council is unapproachable...I am just sorry it was handled in this way rather than coming to council to discuss it.

"I can find no fault with them for disagreeing with us . . . but I do't feel that . . . council was given the chance."

Thompson said he thought the group "went off on a very bad tangent," which has caused "some disappointment" of the coucil in the ratepayers group.

Both Thompson and Ald. Frode Jorgensen wondered what would be investigated, since all zoning and re-zoning bylaws have to be approved by Victoria.

If one bylaw is at odds with another, Thompson said, the ministry of minicipal affairs will not accept it. Thompson called it "double protection."

"We work hard at it (village administration)," Jorgensen said. "and we do our best."

"We are not experts in any field, but that is why we have advisors."

Jorgensen said he has not decided whether to run for re-election.

"A lot of people have made up my mind for me, but I have not," he said.

Mayor Harold Nelson said he was considering not running for re-election, however this investigation has changed his mind at this point.

He feels the ratepayers' letter to Victoria "must have hinted at something" or there would be no investigation. He also mentioned the necessity of the ministry's approval before bylaws are adopted.

"Can you see Victoria letting us do something wrong?" he asked.

Nelson said the group could have "gone about it in a different way," but he said, "in the long run it (investigation) is going to help us out."

Alderman Joyce Kolibas also felt the ratepayers could have approached council first, but "if they feel they are justified then it's their right to go that road."

"I don't feel there have been any irregularities," Kolibas said. "If the ratepayers thought there was--well, they've had every chance to come to the meetings and find out."

Alderman Larry MacDonald returned from a vacation Thursday morning to find his resignation as planning committee chairman had been cited in the letter as support for the request for some form of action by the ministry.

"I did not resign because I thought there was any wrong-doing--it was because I disagreed with council's procedure," MacDonald said.

"I think the ratepayers have made a mistake. A lot of the things said in there (the letter) need to be talked about. I think it was premature to bring in the province."

MacDonald said he thought the ratepayers main complaint concerned the village roads and that an informal meeting ("a coffee-shop session") among some developers, ratepayers and council had promised a further meeting which never materialized.

He thinks the council should sit down with the ratepayers "to see what prompted such a large jump" from an informal meeting which led him to believe in further meetings to calling in municipal affairs.

He called the ratepayers' action an "over-reaction . . . done out of emotion."

Peninsula may get uranium hearings

The Sunshine Coast Regional District is in support of holding local hearings by the Royal Commission on Uranium Mining after receiving a letter and brief from Freda Hanford, a member of the Coalition for Nuclear Responsibility.

A motion at the regular meeting last week backs a letter from Hanford saying nuclear technology is "extremely hazardous" and "for the safety of us all it should be abandoned by man."

It states that since uranium is the fuel used in nuclear power stations, their shut-down means there will be no need for uranium.

"So why start mining it?" the letter asks.

It says radio-active contaminated air and water can reach many places in BC if uranium mining goes ahead, not just areas where the mining is carried out.

Handford asked the board to consider hearings "in order to get the facts on which to base (your community's) protection."

The coalition's submission to the commission accompanying the letter states:

"The BC Uranium Mining Royal Commission will be an opportunity for citizens to hear about this problem...The impact on the nuclear industry (environmentally, biologically, genetically, socially, economically, politically, and internationally) will be great and possibly irreversible.

"It is important that all citizens of British Columbia should have the priviledge of holding uranium mining Blow up towers if Cheekye line built?

Blowing up the towers of BC Hydro's Cheekye-Dunsmuir transmission line if they are built was not exactly advocated by the Sakinaw Lake delegation to the SCRD board meeting last week but it was admitted, by both Ivo Cargnelli and Area A dir. Joe Harrison, that threats of blowing up towers by Lasqueti Island protesters were the reason Hydro did not pursue their original proposal to route the line there.

Cargnelli, on the steering committee of the 250-member Sakinaw Lake Owners and Leaseholders Association, said security was the only reason they were given that Hydro didn't pursue the Lasqueti route.

Dir. Harrison added he had heard that the only reason the line didn't go across Lasqueti Island "was because the people said they'd blow it up."

Such statements of frustration are being expressed now more than ever after Hydro's final route selection for the 500 kv Cheekye-to-Dunsmuir transmission line across the Sechelt Peninsula includes a Sakinaw Lake crossing after a previous Agamemnon Mouth crossing was abandoned as their choice.

"Anything would be better than crossing Sakinaw," Cargnelli told the board. "Not crossing the Sechelt Peninsula would be a prime victory. But not crossing Sakinaw would at least be second best."

He said after two years of studies and meetings Hydro's route selection across the Lake is a big disappointment.

"Hydro listened and we thought we'd made our point," he said.

But, according to Cargnelli and his Lake supporters, Hydro's "divide and conquer" tactics are not going to work on the residents. He indicated he thought the route options were given by Hydro but that they knew all along where the line would go.

The line is not crossing the lake. It's too high a price."

Cargnelli said that it has even been said that some are at the point that if the line begins across the Lake it could be "blown off the side of the cliff."

He added that with Hydro's tract record of what they tell the public, "we don't know if Hydro's Vancouver Island power needs are justified."

He gave as specifics against the line, firstly the fact that within five years the lake would be polluted by leaching herbicides Hydro would use to keep the line right-of-way cleared, and secondly the "visual trauma" that would be experienced when they "slashed through here...to destroy one of the last wilderness areas around."

He said he was concerned about the area's future recreation potential being destroyed if the line went through.

He pointed out the slash required for the double 250 kv cables would be " 700 to 800 yards wide" and that there is no way they would clear it by hand.

"They'll use herbicides...We are going to have herbicides in the Lake. And we drink the water," said Cargnelli.

He said cost of the line could escalate to $1 billion and said that up to a recent point "Hydro didn't even know how much the cable would cost or if it could be obtained."

Board chairman Ed Nicholson told Cargnelli, and steering committee member Blake Cyr also at the meeting, that he had always been a strong advocate of the Reception Point route (crossing under water from the Trout Lake-Redrooffs Road area to Lantzville on Vancouver Island).

This route was ruled "absolutely unacceptable" by the Ministry of Defence as the submarine cable would have to cross a Canadian Forces marine testing ground.

The Sakinaw committee has written defence minister Allan McKinnon saying the residents of the Sechelt Peninsula find the proposed power line "absolutely unacceptable to the surrounding countryside".

They are asking the minister's help in finding a solution that will make a "well-marked and well-charted submarine cable acceptable to the Department of National Defence Test Range," making the Reception Point route a possible alternative.

Several Vancouver Island communities and the Cowichan Valley regional district have written the SCRD board in support of additional power to the Island by way of the Cheekye-Dunsmuir line.

The letters were precipitated by a request from Area F Director David Hunter to the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities who recently passed a resolution in support of the line.

The board, however, is not satisfied the line is justified and is not satisfied with

SCRD doesn't condone destruction of towers

SCRD board chairman, Ed Nicholson, released a statement Saturday, indicating the board's adopted policy toward recent developments regarding Hydro's proposed Cheekye-to-Dunsmuir transmission line.

Following is a text of the statement:

The board of directors of the Sunshine Coast Regional District wish to express their concern over some of the statements reported recently by the media in reference to the security of the proposed Cheekye-Dunsmuir 500 kv transmission line.

Under no circumstances whatsoever would the regional board encourage, support or condone any action taken which might result in the damage or destruction of public property.

We believe that any suggestions that such action might be taken were made as a result of the anger and frustration felt by many of the residents of the Sunshine Coast after our repeated failure to obtain clear evidence of the economic necessity for this power line.

The official policy of the Sunshine Coast Regional District, adopted unanimously on July 13, is as follows:

1. We urge the provincial government, as requested by our MLA Don Lockstead, immediately table in the House all documents relevant to the Cheekye-Dunsmuir line, including the Shaeffer memorandum. A delegation from the Sunshine Coast will travel to Victoria next week to support that request.
2. We are deeply concerned over the effects that the actual construction of the line across the Peninsula will have on both the environment and the economy of the Sunshine Coast. The presently proposed route for the line would take it through an area not only important to the residents as a base for recreation industry but is also vital to them as a source of drinking water.
3. Although we are sympathetic with the concerns of the residents and local governments of Vancouver Island over the spectre of "jobless, shivering in the dark", we do not believe that they are in possession of all of the facts on this matter.
4. Nevertheless, if it was clearly and conclusively demonstrated that the need for the Cheekye-Dunsmuir line exists, the Board would continue to advocate the adoption of the Reception Point - Nanoose Bay route as the most logical choice in terms of economics and ecology.

To this end, the Board is writing to the Premier and Minister of National Defence requesting them to come to an agreement which would allow BC Hydro to construct the power line through the naval testing grounds if the power need is justified.

This would demonstrate to the people of this province in general and the residents of the Sunshine Coast in particular that tourists are more important than torpedoes.

B.C. group supports Sargeant's Bay park

The British Columbia Waterfowl Society can offer no financial or managerial support to the Sargeant's Bay Society for preservation of 30 acres of waterfront west of Sechelt due to other commitments but they fully support the group and recommend the SCRD manage the area on a continuing basis if it can be acquired.

The information came in a letter to the board which stated Sargeant's Bay is an "eligible and worthwhile acquisition for the Second Century Fund" and the society stated they would write to the fund in this regard in the near future.

Two directors of the BCWS recently visited the property. The group has offered managerial and technical advice if the SCRD takes over the area for public use.

Owner of the unique waterfront marsh below Redrooffs Road is developer Art Angell who recently revealed plans for a $6 million high-density condominium, housing and marina project on the property.

The local Sargeant's Bay Society wants the land parcel acquired as a regional park and operated as a wildlife refuge and nesting ground.

Lockstead to press government on Hydro

Mackenzie MLA Don Lockstead told the Times from the legislature Friday that he will continue Monday to question Environment Minister Rafe Mair and Energy Minister Jim Hewitt about a memorandum from economist Marvin Schafer concerning economic aspects of the environmental impact of the Cheekye-Dunsmuir transmission line.

Lockstead said that in questioning Friday, Mair said he didn't know of any such report but knew only that the Environment and Land Use Committee had looked at various routes for the line.

"It seems he's not telling us the whole story," the MLA said.

"His answer is inconsistent with the facts."

Lockstead said it appeared ELUC did brief the minister in spite of the fact he said he wasn't aware of the memorandum.

"I collared the minister in a bit of a lie. He denied he had seen the study."

ELUC secretariat senior biologist Brian Gates told the Times recently that, though no study of justification of the Cheekye-Dunsmuir line was undertaken by ELUC's hired economist, there had been a memorandum by Schafer filed with the minister.

Lockstead said he had information from Hydro chairman Robert Bonner that he had "made up his mind" the line would go through and that the decision was partly based on a $250 million expansion of Crown Zellerbach's Island operations to be located at Elk Falls, Campbell River area.

SCRD dir. Joe Harrison, an opponent of the line, said Thursday he was advised that day that Crown Zellerbach hasn't had their forest allotment sorted out and questioned how Bonner could make a commitment to the company.

"How can they contemplate expansion," he asked.

The questioning, however, may never be answered.

The Environment Minister has denied a request by the regional board for a full public inquiry into the line's justification, and according to Harrison, Energy Minister Hewitt has stated there is an energy crunch and "no time for public input."

Said Lockstead from Victoria: "My overall assessment is that they fully intend to proceed with this project and I'm very angry that Hydro and the government knew all along the route they are going to proceed with.

"It's just another example of Hydro's arrogance and the government's arrogance. They (Hydro) must be broken up and brought to heel."

Poking at the monster

According to MLA Don Lockstead the Social Credit government has some 27 reports in various ministries that they are refusing to date to table in the legislature.

It's understandable that in a highly technical and supremely beaurocratic age such as this there is a lot of information and expert opinion available to the government. It's understandable that it is a real job to keep abreast of everything that is going on that affects provincial affairs.

Also, making reports is a favorite pastime for Socred hacks that have been put out to pasture. The government can pay their debt to a bagman or supporter by giving him or her a report to write.

We wouldn't expect to hear the contents of them all.

But surely when the opposition asks to have a report tabled on the basis that if affects a good number of people in serious ways, then it is the duty of the government to table that report and make the contents public.

This is not a secret society. This is not the Klu Klux clan but the government of the people, by the people, for the people.

We don't believe they have the right to hide information sought by members of the legislature.

Granted, Environment Minister Rafe Mair has his hands full at the moment with oil tanker ports, people trying to wipe out the wolf population, and other matters. They are crucial and must be deal with.

But the Hydro debate and the Cheekye line are crucial as well.

Members of the opposition, notably Bob Skelly and Bill King, are doing a good job of reminding the government that one of their own reports recommends Hydro's organization be decentralized. It will still be a monster but a several-headed one. It could then be prevented from being, as the minister admits, out of control.

Our MLA is on that team, too, and is pressing both Mair and Energy Minister Jim Hewitt for revelations of important Hydro and Cheekye matters -- especially information done for ELUC regarding the cost of the line.

Hansard shows that our man in Victoria gets in a good dig at this Bonner-headed monster -- this dinosaur of a public utility that is run in semi-secretcy -- when he can. He is known for that. We commend his efforts.

We want to know what they know. Everything they know. And we want to know it now before a final line decision is made -- before it's too late.

We'd like to see him keep poking at that monster until it spews out the whole story. It could be hot stuff.

Remember -- council is NOT dabbling in illegalities

By HELEN PARKER

All hell broke loose in the world last week — terrorists took over the American embassy in Ankara and the B.C. government agreed to an investigation into certain charges against the Sechelt council.

What can I say? We all have our beefs against Sechelt council, but it seems the Sechelt Ratepayers Assoc. went right-to the top with their beefs and got action they never dreamed of.

But it was our MLA Don Lockstead who got there first — before the ratepayers' 27 — page letter made it into the hands of minister of municipal affairs Bill Vander Zalm and inspector of municipalities Bill Long.

What has to be made clear, even though this is headline material and doomed to be written into the ground, is this is a preliminary investigation and though everybody seems to be convinced council is dabbling in illegalities — they are not.

Council has done nothing illegal until the preliminary investigation turns into a full inquiry, the RCMP lay charges and a judge has determined council, or a part of it, guilty.

Though the ratepayers never intended any allegations of wrong-doing, the allegations are there and have to be cleared away and that was Lockstead's purpose in his personal meeting with Vander Zalm.

Vander Zalm and Long were typically difficult to get hold of and were typically non-committal once they were reached. But they were reached and hopefully Vander Zalm's comment that such investigations are not uncommon will ease the public's mind somewhat.

Maybe the ratepayers' should have gone over that 27-page letter with council as carefully as they did with their lawyer.

And then, maybe, they wouldn't have had to send it to Victoria.

If Lockstead had not met with Vander Zalm, the letter would have received just as prompt attention, because, as Long told me, "you can't just offhandedly ignore a ratepayers association."

Successful students vastly outnumber school failures

Editor, The Times:

Our esteemed North American society appears to be breaking apart at the seams — energy crisis, street violence, family break-up and an imperfect school system are the symptoms of of its demise.

Even the Sky (lab) is falling and we have our own Chicken Little — editorializing for the Coast Snooze.

Schools, and the society which they reflect, have in this turbulent setting failed some. But those failures are vastly outnumbered by successful, stimulating and inquisitive young adults graduating from our schools every year.

It is tempting to look at only the failures of an imperfect school system. It is always the easier path to criticize rather than to construct (for fear of being labelled an innovator).

In fact, some teachers were so overwhelmed by these challenges and responsibilities that they gave up and left.

When those ex-teachers begin to rant about an imperfect system for which they have fled, then there can only be one response — that response which was given to Chicken Little.

Reflections

Back in the berries again

By Vern Giesbrecht

The Clearbrook-Abbotsford area bills itself as "the raspberry capital of the world." When I picked raspberries in the Fraser Valley some 20 years ago, this claim had not been made but even then there were hundreds of berry fields to beckon students as soon as summer vacation began. When I heard several weeks ago that long-time acquaintance was looking for pickers, I impulsively said I'd help out, which is why I'm back in the raspberry fields again.

The two-acre raspberry patch is situated near the southern shore of Mill Lake and is bordered on the west by a row of Lombardy poplars. There is very little traffic on the quiet street; we are entertained by the roosters which crow incessantly from the neighboring property. Swallows and robins flit around the 20 rows of raspberry vines and a swarm of bees congregate at the end of the twelfth row.

It's pleasant work, for the most part, wheeling carts along the well-cultivated rows and filling the 12-basket flats with ripe berries. Most days have been cloudy and cool but it's rained heavily twice and one day was extremely hot. At lunchtime I and the other pickers sometimes have a picnic at the lake's edge or feeding the ducklings or wade into the lake to pick water lilies.

Wages have increased 250 per cent in 20 years but this is still not a lucrative job. I'm glad I'm not dependent on my earnings. At 15 cents a pound of raspberries picked, the most I've earned a day has been $18.90.

The owner of the raspberry field is John Nickel, who lived at the top end of Tims Road when I was a boy. I remember him as a shy, vague bachelor of indeterminate age who shared a household with his parents and two spinster sisters. The Nickels were the only people my mother know in Clearbrook when she moved to B.C. from Saskatchewan so they have a special place in her heart.

Helen and Mary (my mother still refers to them as "the Nickel girls") were always very protective of their brother and when he gave signs of relinquishing his bachelor status, they became alarmed. He defied them by eloping and now, seven years later, they seem resigned to the fact that he's married.

The Nickel sisters, probably in their seventies, come out to pick raspberries once in awhile, Helen has trouble bending for the low berries and stretching for the high ones, so Mary, a few years younger, helps her. At noon they sit on the green front step that was salvaged from their parents' home before it was burned.

"I come out here to pick sometimes because living in the condominium is so boring," Helen says.

"If I was younger, I'd race you to see who could pick the most," Mary says to eight-year-old Barry, the youngest of the 10 pickers. "I'm slowing down, though. I can't pick as fast as I used to."

Until this summer, I had not exchanged more than a few hundred words with John Nickel but now, it we happen to be on adjacent rows, he becomes almost voluble. I learn that he's an avid photographer, enjoys flying and is very interested in current affairs. We chat about the alarming crime rate (he's strong on capital punishment), speculate on the probable landing site of Skylab and reveal our respective biases about Trudeau and Clark. John's wife Isabel joins the discussion and explains that the established political parties have been infiltrated by Communists. She says she has proof that Trudeau is "a card-carrying Communist" but won't reveal her source of information. Though I tease her about being paranoid about Communism, she remains firm in her beliefs.

Among the occasional pickers are relatives of the Nickels', Allan and Louise Schmidt of Hope. We talk about mutual acquaintances in Hope and I'm surprised to find that I know the same Sunshine Coast residents that they do, such as Willie and Pat Takahashi and Bjorn and Gisella Bjornson. Another picker's mother comes from Hague Ferry, Saskatchewan, where my parents lived briefly. When relatives from the Prairies drop in to see me one lunch hour, it's learned that the Nickels knew their folks, also back in Saskatchewan. Yes, things are very cosy here.

The raspberry patch won't be here next summer, because John has sold the property and bought a larger house. The field will be plowed under and will probably sprout deluxe townhouses instead of the vines that have borne fruit for almost 30 years.

It's a shame, John agrees. He hopes the new owners won't cut down the trees near the lake.

"I don't know what the market for raspberries will be like in the future and I want to enjoy the fruits of my labors, so to speak. Some people wait until they're 65 to retire, and then they get sick and die."

So this is the last hurrah for the field that has produced something like 200 tons of raspberries over the years. Some of the rows are straggly and withered but most appear capable of producing indefinitely. It doesn't seem right to destroy so much potential fruit but housing, which has taken over so much of the once-rural Fraser Valley, is a much more lucrative proposition than berry farming. Last year, John Nickel cleared about $3,000 from his berry operation. You can't blame him for wanting to get a better return on his investment. Still, it will be sad to see this calm cheerful place turned into yet another housing site. Perhaps the birds will continue to sing but the bees will certainly be gone and the ducks may have to seek another sanctuary.

That's progress, in the heart of "raspberry capital of the world."

Not personal

Ed.'s note: A letter from one of Sechlet's most concerned citizens to Mayor Harold Nelson.

Dear Mayor Nelson:

This letter is composed on the morning following Sechelt's public hearing of July 11, 1979. I wish to diassociate myself from remarks of a personal nature heard at that meeting against individual members of Council.

Although I have frequently disagreed with Council's policies and regretted its lack of understanding of the wishes of the "ordinary" citizens of the community, I have never doubed the integrity or honesty of individual members of the present Council.

In private conversations with other residents of the Village regarding local government I hope I never fail to point out that I believe in your probity and your sincere desire to serve Sechelt. Also your clerk, Mr. Shanks, has been unfailingly courteous and cooperative.

Yours sincerely,
(Miss) Helen Dawe.

Naturalist's corner...

By ALISON WATT, Porpoise Bay Provincial Park naturalist.

Warm summer evenings bring many creatures out of cool daytime hideaways. These are the animals that forage in the half-light of dusk and often into the black of night. Among them are the bats.

Bats are among the few animals that have adapted well to man's communities; attics and caves provide fine sites for their hibernating colonies and summer maternity wards. Their natural habitations are caves and hollows in trees, especially near insect-ridden areas like quiet ponds.

Bats are insectivores, like the shrews, and the only mammals that can truly fly. If we put these two facts together we come up with a hunter that pursues insects on the wing.

Many birds are insectivores, but the bat wing is very different from that of a bird. If you ever have the good fortune to look closely at a bat's wing you will see the usual five-digited mammalian hand (like your own) but the forefingers have become greatly elongated. A Flexible leatherlike membrane is stretched across these fingers and attached to the bat's side forming the wing. The thumb has become a tiny claw-like hook at the wrist and the bat uses this to cling to and drag itself across surfaces.

A membrance is also stretched between the back legs and tail of the bat. It forms a "Basket" into which unlucky insects are scooped as the bat flies in its erratic fashion. A tricky hunting technique? Not as tricky as the hunting method which is referred to as "ecolocation". Bats emit sounds beyond our scope of hearing. These soundwaves bounce off any solid object and back to the bat allowing it to locate flying insects and to navigate its way around any obstacles with great accuracy. So if a bat appears to be flying too close to your head don't worry, ladies, they won't get tangled in your hair.

My talk on Night Life on Friday at 8 p.m. will reveal more about bats and some of their nocturnal cohorts.

Other activities this week:

Saturday 8 a.m. Early morning bird watch, 9 p.m. Dusk walk.

Christian Science

"Let us then be up and doing, with a heart for any fate." So said Longfellow.

After the crucifixion, Jesus' disciples went back to their fishing and their nets, but Jesus did not leave them there. He said, "Cast the net on the right side. . ." (John 21:6).

A helpful quotation is, "If our hopes and affections are spiritual, they come from above . . . and they bear as of old the fruits of the Spirit." (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy).

Pender Harbour happenings

In memory of C. Peacock

by Doris Edwardson 883-2308

Colly Peacock was the best of Hartley and Haywood in Vancouver and from there he moved to Kamoops where he was the top of the line in his sporting goods store, then he went to Egmont for awhile and came to Garden Bay 2 years ago, had a Charter boat business with the boat "Peco 111" and it was and still is the finest charter boat afloat. When you chartered Colly, you caught fish. He could cast a line and land it on a dime. Colly was a big game guide, superior fisherman, skipper and quiet and dedicated to his business. He was renowned for his handlebar mustache, admired by his friends for his skill and knowledge and will be sadly missed by everyone on the B.C. Coast and the Interior. Taylor's wharf will never be the same again, God Bless you Colly.

Geo. R. Taylor,
Garden Bay, B.C.

BED AND BREAKFAST

The best view in Garden Bay is from the Sunshine Inn which has a historical background as it was formerly the old St. Mary's Hospital. It overlooks Hospital Bay and is only minutes from the wharf and store. Bed and Breakfast is available there with coffee galore from a bottomless cup. The breakfast is cooked the good old-fashioned way. Rental and charter information also. If you would like more information on this spacious renovated building please phone Dick at 883-9676 who is ready to hear from you 24-hours a day.

ON HOLIDAYS FROM STAFFORD

Syd, Cathy, Phil and Graham from Stafford, England are pleased once again to be in their favourite holiday heaven, Pender Harbour. They have been coming to Pender for quite some time now and have made many friendships with the local people here. When they arrived this time via Tyee to Madeira Park they had a welcoming from long time friends: Myrtle and Chick Page, Peg and Ron Pockrant and Ernie and May Widman. Phil and Graham are staying at Madeira Marina and Syd and Cathy at May and Ernies.

ALEXANDRA (GRANDMA) BECK

Funeral services were held for Alexandra Beck in St. Andrews Church, Madeira Park on June 14, 1979 with Reverend John Patkeau officiating. Alexandra came from Finland in 1924 and married Arvid Beck in 1925. Moved to Hotham Sound in 1927 and then made their home in St. Vincents Bay during the depression in the 30's and came to Pender Harbour in 1950. Later, because of poor health Alexandra moved to Squamish in 1967 where she stayed with her daughter Arvida. Her grandaughter, Cecile Girard wrote a poem for her and it was read at the service.

GRANDMA

May God grant you all the peacefulness that you've been waiting for,
Reach out and carry you gently
thru his wide and open door
And when you've passed thru his Golden Gate to begin your Life anew
Nothing will cause you grief again for God now walks with you.

Drain all fatique that you once felt recently from day to day
Many days of rest lie ahead for you
Cause God's love will show the way
And once you've reached these Heavens that await you from above
May you rest forever and peacefully
In God's Home of Warmth and Love.

Cecile Girard

PENDER HARBOUR LIONS CASINO NIGHT

The black jack tables were filled with eager gamblers hoping to beat the dealers, crown and anchor wheels were spinning and the mousies were up to their old tricks trying to tease you as Casino Night got into full swing on Saturday evening. Cathy McQuitty won the Texas Mickey (third time in a row) Dot Silvey won the vegetable hamper and Bruce Kobus was winner of the $200 door prize. I got the costume prize as there was no competition. The P.H. Lions club wish to thank all who supported them.

Country Fair

By MARY TINKLEY-SHANNON

Last week, with the Country Fair looming nearer and the weather growing even worse, there were furrowed brows and many anxious tune-ins to the weather forecasts. However, on Friday night the weatherman relented just in time for a cloudless Saturday morning to encourage the workers to go ahead with the setting up of the Fair. In its new setting at the Halfmoon Bay school grounds, it proved a great success offering ample room for all the attractions and a good-sized sports field for the sports and races.

Around noon, Alex Ellis welcomed the visitors and introduced Sechelt's Timber Maid, Els Mercer, who declared the fair open. Immediately the crowds around the home-baking, farmers' market and white elephant stalls went into action and the first two or these were the first to sell out. Meanwhile there was bingo called by Bill Fraser and Geri Smith and many attractions to amuse the young fry. Heidi Goodman, Cheryl Grognet and Louise Rutherford operated a contest corner with a fishpond, a penny toss and a balloon-popping competiton. There were sports organized by Els Mercer including sack races, shoe races and bob-apple. The sports program finished off with a volleyball match between the volunteer firemen and the Halfmoon Bay Recreation Commission with the firemen victorious. Els Mercer presented them with a trophy donated by Mary Walker.

There was a hush over the crowd as Joan Mackereth announced the drawing of the raffle winners. The lucky winner of the child's table and chair set was Marguerite Jacques of Redroofs while the grocery hamper was won by Neill Johnston of Cedarbrook. Pat Thibodeau of Egmont was the winner of the child's fishing rod. For the nearest guess of 570 jelly beans in a jar, the prize went to Susan Gore. The watermelon weighed 13.73 pounds and two contestants tied for the nearest guess. They were Kathy Varcoe and Vicky Ridding.

Perhaps one of the most fascinating elements of the Country Fair is the number of people who can be found there from far-away places. There were visitors present from all over the Sunshine Coast with many reunions of old friends.

Among the people we talked to were Diana McDonald and her friend Linda Barclay from Motherwell, Scotland who were guests at the home of Diana's mother, Ronnie Dunn. From Jersey, Channel Islands, were Brian and Lesley Hamilton, guests of Brian's father, John Hamilton. Ena Armstrong was accompanied by her grandchildren, Linda and Mark Cunningham, just arrived from Washington, D.C. where their father, Commander Jo Cunningham has been attached to the Canadian Embassy for the past three years. Johas now been transferred to Victoria where he and his wife Marilyn are househunting while the children enjoy a visit with their grandparents. Jo Cunningham is the brother of the late Bob Cunningham and Marilyn is a sister of Joan Clarkson.

Also met at the fair were Mabel Aikenhead with her sister, Elsie Confry of Vancouver and Freda Rhoades with her niece, Thelma Milne of Delta.

The Welcome Beach Community Association and the Halfmoon Bay Recreation Commission wish to thank all those who supported the fair and helped to make it such a success. They extend special thanks to the group of men who worked so hard to set up the stalls, sunshades and tarpaulins and to Art Perry who did all the electrical work. They express their gratitude to Eva Lyons who read teacups the whole afternoon — in fact, she still had a line-up of customers when most of the people had gone home and the stalls were nearly all cleared away.

Special tribute is due to the children who helped — Margaret Connor and Sonja Sorensen with the sports, Michelle Grognet, Donna Nygard, Dawn and Brian Goodman with the children's corner, Susan Perry and her guest, Wendy Pow who operated the popcorn and lemonade stall with such cool efficienty, and Earl Perry, announcer and music operator.

The proceeds of the fair will be used for the Welcome Beach Hall and for organizing sports for the young folk.

Pinwheel Crystal Vases, Ashtrays, and Bonbon Dishes will always be much-appreciated gifts. We have a very good display of such items at the moment. — Miss Bee's, Sechelt.

Nygren-McKay wedding

It was a bright sunny summer day June 23, the Saturday chosen by a bright sunny pair to wed. The couple were CindyNygren and Cliff McKay and the church was the Bethel Baptist in Sechelt.

The bride looked like a dresden figure wearing her mother's wedding dress from her day in Springside, Saskatchewan, October 17, 1945. The skirt was tiered with net frills from the waist to the floor with a form fitted brocade top and long sleeves and the full length veil was a new addition.

The bridal bouquets were simply gorgeous and were the work of Jean Hertog, containing Cynbidium orchids, pinks, bridal pink roses, purple baby's breath and ivy.

Cindy's matron of honor was her sister Joanne and the bridesmaid was sister Tiny Hughes with Amber Hughes a very pretty flower girl and her brother Tony Hughes the perfect ring bearer.

Joanne and Tiny's dresses were in a lovely shade of mauve mist in interlocking jersey with flowing full drape blouse on top over a slim long skirt. Mother of the bride, Lenore Nygren, wore eye-catching, blue pleated long dress with cape-like pleated top while the groom's mother Renie McKay was in an oyster-white satin full-flowing dress with high waisted front gathering.

The groom Cliff McKay, best man Brad Ackerman and usher Mike Kelly were in grey suits with white shoes (something odd about the footwear, closer inspection found they were sneakers!) White running shoes at a formal wedding! Showed an excellent sense of humour an asset for any couple.

The ceremony was performed by a friendly and sincere Fred Napora. Musician on the guitar singing the Hawaiian Wedding Song was Earl Hughes, brother-in-law to the bride.

The crowd that filled the church were mostly relatives on both sides with a good sprinkling of friends.

After the ceremony, a gaily-decorated car awaited the young couple with a bouquet of tin cans to clang and bang behind the car as it whisked them off to the Canadian Legion Hall for the wedding reception.

A beautiful smorgasbord was already set up in the hall with the wedding cake at the head table, stunning with a pair of swans made out of blown glass decorating the top, a wedding gift from Terry Koch. The wedding cake supplied to each guest was made by "Aunt Jean" Wyngaert.

Master of Ceremonies Earl Hughes called on Uncle Fred (Pahl) to say grace. Another uncle, Frank Wyngaert of Gibsons, was asked to toast the bride. The bride, digressing for a few words to explain how her parents came to be in this area, said Frank had come out riding on a freight car in 1930 like one-third of the people of Saskatchewan who are here in Vancouver following the same pattern.

Then in 1935 Paul and Celia Stroshein (Cindy's mother's sister) ventured westward — an ad in the paper bringing them to Gibsons. Frank met up with Paul chopping wood, and said Paul was always getting in touch with wife Jean. Roy Nygren was here when Lenore, at 15, came out to visit her sisters — a visit that led to their marriage in 1945.

The groom thanked Mr. and Mrs. Nygren for having such a lovely daughter.

The best man then led the toast to the bridesmaids.

There were so many out of town guests that every motel and hotel in the vicinity were booked with the Nygren-McKay wedding party.

The groom's parents are Harry and Renie McKay from Queensborough, his grandmothers are from Richmond, and from Langley. Cindy's grandmother Mrs. Nygren and daughter Gunny and Nate Granboys, five aunts and one uncle from Saskatchewan on the bride's maternal side were there with one of these aunts, Grace, married to Roy's brother, Henry Nygren. Cliff McKay's sister and many other relatives on both sides were all there, plus a good representation of fellow workers of both Cliff and Cindy's from the Kelowna Growers Co-op in Kelowna.

Ceremonies over, there was an evening of dancing. The bridge changed to her going-away outfit of white dress and jacket. The couple were planning a honeymoon trip to Powell River then on to Vancouver Island.

The wedding guests gathered at the Roy Nygrens Sunday with good weather co-operating for the 100 people that spread out onto the grass for an outdoor lunch.

Sechelt notes

Coast-style 25th

by Peggy Connor 885-9347

Sunday, July 8 we were invited to be at Cortinas Landing, Narrows Inlet, at 12-noon. The occasion was the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of Cor and Martina Zuidema. This was to be a surprise but Cor had to be in on it as he had to make the arrangements to get the guests up the Inlet, but Martina thought it was just the immediate family coming up.

Cliff, Margaret and I (Mary unfortunately had to work) left home in the morning to meet Bruno Kay and Donald Dombroski at Egmont as they were coming down from Malibu in an eighteen-foot Sunrunner. We were a wee bit too soon to go through the Skookumchuck but luck was with us and we skimmed over the boiling waters with-out incident, except for Cliff losing his new cap.

A summer rain fell steadily for most of the day, but did nothing to mar out trip. A large rock along the lands edge was roost for several dozen seals, some rolling lazily into the water as we came closer to take a picture.

Shortly after rounding Highland Point we spied the MV Cortina 2, loaded with many family members. We trailed along behind until close to our destination then shot across the Inlet to hide behind a bluff until the other boat coming up from Tillcum Bay had arrived and the first boat had time to unload. Bruno managed to catch a couple of dogfish and a sole in the short time waiting.

We moved out to head for the dock as the second boat passed and the plane was just coming into land. Well, Martina was standing on the dock with tears running down her smiling face as she met this wave after wave of people.

Cor's Mother Mrs. Zuidema had arrived a week before from Utretcht, Holland and was in on the secret but had kept it from Martina; also longtime friends from Calgary, Alberto and Mayo Kieboom formerly from Holland had arrived earlier.

Everyone got in out of the rain into their beautiful log home with the black heater sending out the same warm, friendly waves as did the folks inside.

The coffee pot couldn't begin to serve enough for everyone but daughters Els and Martina had forseen this problem and provided bigger ones, as well as seeing there was extra food for the delightful lunch enjoyed later.

Now was the time for opening of gifts; a beautiful handcrafted quilt brought more tears to her eyes as she recognized the work that had gone into the making, as in the earthen goblets, stained glass wall planters with plants, beautiful towells, chinaware, silver spoons, sheets, a most gorgeous rug for the floor, redwood outdoor furniture for relaxing and many more lovely gifts. Just when Martina was catching her breath and her emotions, one more envelope was handed to her, the card was read from Jerry and Els (Mercer), Glen and Martina (Dubois), Yoka, Rob and Mark (Zuidema), and with the card a certified cheque for $700 to be used to buy a generator to bring electricity into the house.

"Uncle" John Mercer had the honor of leading the toast to the bride and groom of twenty-five years ago. Cor replied thanking everyone for coming and said he was pleased to see their friends from Halfmoon Bay as they feel welcome in all our homes.

Now to describe this home on the edge of the Inlet with the forest behind. The main room is 25' by 30' with kitchen and dining area on one side, Cor feels his wife should be able to enjoy the company while preparing the meal. Also on the main floor is one bedroom, bathroom with shower ready to be hooked up, a utility room with dryer and washer, upstairs with room for three bedrooms in future.

Covering a good part of one wall in the main room is a huge moose hide shot at Babine Lake. Also several excellent oil paintings, the work of Martina and her father. The huge beams are nearly all scraped to bare wood-one of the jobs saved for a rainy day.

Cor and Martina moved up to their property three years ago. They remember it well as it was their anniversary. Next to the house there was a big swamp which they have filled in by hand, cleared the land, built first the shop which they lived in while building the loghouse in his spare time, as Cor still worked at his trade as a carpenter in the Sechelt area.

The home will be finished in another two years, then he will stop working and enjoy life in the bush.

There are four streams of water running down the back and side of the house coming from a 300-foot waterfall, the source of their future electricity.

An attractively laid-out vegetable garden flourishes beside the house with plants artiscally arranged around the stumps bordering the lawn in the front of the house with the waters of the inlet at the edge. Across the Inlet the land is covered with forest, and rises up to one of the tallest mountains in the Earle Range, Mount Drew, 6185 feet.

They are not far from the head of the Inlet where the B.C. Forest Products Narrows Inlet Camp is situated and where the Tzoonie River flows into the Inlet. Later, friends Ed Seykora and Myrtle Riemer from the camp came along with their good wishes. Married in Holland in 1954, they moved to the Sunshine Coast in 1965, after five years in Calgary.

Cor's two brothers came out for this special time, Peter and Ernestine with daughters Liette and Michelle and son Kevin from Namao, Alberta, and Eddie and wife Willie with Sylvia and Cynthia from Calgary. Other good friends present were Bob and Jerry Lou Wickwire and their niece Tammy Wilson from Salem Oregon, with John Mercer was his wife Irene doing extra duty besides their own pleasure in attending by representing the rest of the Mercer Clan, Jack and Jean, Bob, John and Nancy, who all would have loved to have come but business at the Marina is at its busiest on Sunday.

It was a nice mixture of two languages heard throughout the day, and when it came time to eat Grandma Zuidema said grace in her native tongue and though the words were foreign the strong feeling of thankfulness and blessing came through loud and clear.

When it came time to return home, there was one less boat load as the far away relatives and friends stayed for a few days. Margaret was delighted when Rob changed places with her, coming home on the boat with us. Her flying down with Tyee made a complete end for a wonderful day. The young people had canoed, boated and hiked around the property.

Marina was quite dazzled by the day saying "It was the most wonderful thing to happen to me."

LOCAL MAN MUSICAL RIDER

Robert Nestman of the Sechelt area has been picked to be one of the horsemen with the RCMP Musical Ride. He finds it a tough job that he is enjoying very much. Robert has been home visiting his parents Leo and Doreen Nestman but has now left for Ottawa. It takes three months of hard training but the results are well worthwhile, he says.

Doreen Nestman has returned from Fernie where she has been looking after Christine and Carol Bender while their mother Eileen was delivering a bouncing baby boy. The new member of the family is called Jacob Jerome Bender and weighed in at eight pounds. Father Jerome and Uncle are in the RCMP and this could be another member in years to come.

Halfmoon Bay happenings

No generation gap!

By Mary Tinkley-Shannon 885-9765

On the morning of July 11 Astrid Kadin told her husband Anton that there was to be an NDP meeting at the Welcome Beach Hall that evening and that plans for the celebration of his 80th birthday would have to be postponed.

So, a little after 8 o'clock that evening, they drove to the hall which was remarkably quiet and dark, in spite of the fact that the parking lot was full to overflowing. On entering the hall, Anton was speechless with surprise as the lights were switched on and he was confronted with a huge crowd of his friends waiting to greet him. They were of every age from very young to Olive Clear's 91 years and they were of every shade of political adherence, for Anton Kadin has a gift of friendship which transcends age or politics.

A banner across the hall said "Happy Birthday Anton" and the same message appeared on the huge birthday cake which decorated the long table, set out with goodies of all kinds.

The party was sponsored by the Welcome Beach Community Association and president Grace Rutherford, on behalf of all his friends, presented Anton with a garden chaisette and expressed the opinion that she hoped she would look as young at 80 as he looked today. She read a telegram from some old friends in Edmonton and introduced the out-of-town guests present. From Calgary there were John and Diane McGillivray and their children Colin and David. John had known Anton all his life, for as a small boy he was a neighbor of the Kadins in Kimberley. Doug and Dolly Raincock were there from Penticton and Greg McNeil from Kamloops who was a guest at the home of his grandparents, Fred and Eileen Greaves.

The Kadins' neighbour, Einer Eriksen proposed a toast in Norwegian, which very few people present understood, but one and all responded to the final word of the toast — "Skoal".

Olive Clear, still word-perfect despite her 91 years, recited a poem "Age" which most aptly fitted the occasion. Anton was born in Sweden and emigrated to Canada in 1917. He worked for many years in Cominco at Kimberley and Riondel.

FIRE DEPT. GARAGE SALE

On Sunday, July 22 there will be a grand garage sale at the Halfmoon Bay Firehall from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The firemen have an interesting collection of beds, furniture and useful household items for the sale. Support your Fire Department by patronising this sale. Coffee and hot dogs will be available.

25TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Narrows Arm of Sechelt Inlet, where Cornelius and Martina Zuidema settled when they decided they wanted a pioneering life, is a quiet backwater and oftentimes a lonely spot. Let us imagine it on July 8, a dreary drizzly Sunday, just before noon, with smoke curling up from the Zuidema chimney and not another sign of life around.

Suddenly at noon, there is an invasion, with three boats and a Tyee seaplane arriving almost simultaneously at the Zuidema's wharf. Considering two of the boats and the seaplane came from Sechelt and the Bruno Dombroskis brought their boat from Malibu through the Skookumchuck Narrows, it was a masterpiece of organization.

The occasion was the 25th wedding anniversary of Cor and Martina Zuidema and their friends and relatives had planned this get-together to honour them. Cor's mother had arrived from Holland a week before and when the rest of the party had disembarked, 31 people sat down to lunch. Among those present were the Zuidema's daughters, Els, with husband Jerry Mercer, Martina with husband, Glen Dubois, Cor's brothers, Eddie from Calgary and Peter from Edmonton with their families and old friends from Red Deer, Alberta. From the Halfmoon Bay area came the Jack Mercer clan, the Bob Wickwires and Cliff and Peggy Connor.

The Zuidemas were born in Utrecht, Holland where their first four children were born. Mark, the youngest, was born after they had settled in Canada. They lived on the Redrooffs Road for several years, but three years ago sold their home to the Harold Ives and embarked on their pioneering venture in Narrrows Arm.

SUNDAY CRUISE

The Norsal Cruise will leave the Halfmoon Bay wharf at 10 a.m. Sunday, and all passengers with reservations should allow plenty of time to park and get aboard by that time. As parking space is limited, neighbors are asked to double up with cars and there will be a parking director in the area who will tell drivers where to park. Fishing enthusiasts should bring their rods as there may be an opportunity to do a little fishing. All passengers have been telephoned regarding what they should bring towards the lunch. The loan of a few more deck chairs would be appreciated.

VISITORS

Merrill and Lois Meuse from Prince Rupert were in the Bay last week visiting Merrill's sister, Evelyn Pallant. It was their first visit here for 18 years but they are no strangers to Halfmoon Bay for it was here they met when Lois, then Lois Minish, was a teacher at the Halfmoon Bay School and Merrill was a halibut fisherman working with this father, the late Peter Meuse. They plan to move to West Vancouver shortly so they are likely to be more frequent visitors at the Pallant home.

Visiting Maria Mahar have been relatives from her native Port-aux-Basques, Newfoundland. Her guests were her brother Albert Marshall with his wife Classie and daughter Julie and her sister Winnie with husband Ed Butt. At the time we interviewed them, they were not impressed with our B.C. weather, but the sun did shine in its full July splendour before they left to visit more relatives at Sooke last Saturday. One of our most faithful visitors is Darin Piper of Burnaby who loves nothing better once school is out than to get away from it all and do some fishing with Grandpa Bill Fraser.

the route selection recently announced by Hydro.

After considerable discussion, directors passed unanimously a three-part motion:

That BC Hydro and related government agencies show this board the economic need for additional power to Vancouver Island,

That the board is not in favor of the proposed route put forward by B.C. Hydro,

And that the board arrange a meeting with Environment Minister Rafe Mair and other appropriate parties to discuss the matter.

The third part of the recommendation could indicate a meeting with Premier Bill Bennett.

Nicholson had said earlier that since previous communication with Mair "doesn't seem to have made an impression" maybe they should go to the Premier.

At the request of dir. David Hunter the board is also expected to communicate to the Defence Department "that we don't need a shooting gallery in our (Georgia) Strait" in reference to the ruling on the Reception Point route for the line.

hearings in their own local area; the benefits and hazards will be experienced everywhere, not just in the uranium mining areas."

Of several points made in the brief, one states that protests all over the world are slowing the industry down mentioning a new reactor in Austria that was stopped by a public referendum, six USA reactors shut down for safety reasons, and that orders for new reactors have virtually dried up.

"Canada is peddling its CANDU reactor to countries in revolution (Korea, Argentina, Pakistan, Taiwan, communist Romania) and at a loss.

"Westinghouse, General Electric and several large American manufacturing companies are not making money from reactor sales.

"So if uranium is not going to be needed, why start mining it in B.C."

The brief is followed by a request for mayors and councils to hold hearings by contacting Brig. Gen. E.D. Danby, Executive Secretary, Royal Commission on Uranium Mining, 3724 West Broadway, Vancouver, BC V6R 2C1.

Another point in the submission states that uranium mining and mill tailings would need to be isolated from the environment "for spans of time beyond human history."

"Residents of BC downriver from uranium mines (all Fraser Valley towns) and downwind (all BC) would receive odorless, invisible, tasteless, free samples of radiation, air-borne or water-borne.

"Surely we all have a right to understand exactly what can happen, and make judgements about what we find 'acceptable' doses of radiation."

Stink potters, rag baggers

by Marion Alsager, 886-2458

The Arbutus Yacht Club members enjoyed an evening barbecue on Keats Island last Monday. About 30 adults and children attended and some arrived on a "stink potter" (power boat to you). There were five "rag baggers" (sail boats) and the secret password was "Happy Birthday Mo." After the drowning in the downpour, everyone retired to the Keesie for coffee

QUEEN CONTESTANTS

The Sea Cavalcade Queen Contestants and their chaperones were graciously entertained at the Poppel residence last Sunday afternoon. The judges were also present and at the beginning of the social event the girls felt rather nervous, however, Eileen Poppel's charm soon relaxed everyone.

Harvey McCracken of Pacific Picture Taking Co. was on hand to take some informal photos of the Queen contestants in the lovely gardens. After the picture taking was over the guests were served a delicious luncheon. The girls were given a tour of Poppels home and then they quickly changed into their bathing suits and enjoyed a swim in the heated pool.

DANCE SPECTACULAR

Helen Weinhandl, Edna Husby, Bobbi Cramer, Gwen Nimmo, Sandra Nield, Freda Scott and Marion Alsager attended the Dance Spectacular at the Hotel Vancouver Ballroom last Saturday. There were numerous catagories of competitions but the most fabulous treat was to watch the World Champion dancers Pierre Dulaine and Yvonne Marceau perform. They had just returned from Blackpool, England where they defended their title for the third consecutive year. They are "Theatre-Arts" champions of the World.

Eight ladies of the Sunshine Coast Golf and Country Club went to play at Langara Golf Club on Thursday. They were Norma Gaines, Eileen Evans, Wilma Sim, Marg Arbuckle, Lil Bullied, Kay Bud, Vera Munro, and Mary Horn. Though it was a close match and our ladies played well, Langara won by 4½ points.

ART COURSE

Wanda Best who is presently teaching an Art course at Chatelech school for Continuing Ed, studied art at the Ontario College of Art, University of Manitoba, University of Saskatchewan (all three campuses) and University of Oregon. She has taught in Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Yukon and for one year at Elphinstone.

Wanda worked as assistant editor for a non-profit organization publishing and exhibiting art and creative writing. At the moment her major work in art is silk screening and ceramic sculpture.

Wanda says that there is an exciting and mushrooming interest in art on the Sunshine Coast. We are sure that all her students are enjoying the course and will all feel richer for having taken it from this very enthusiastic and knowledgeable person.

KIWANIS VILLAGE

Kiwanis Village extension will be a personal and intermediate care facility. Plans are moving slowly but are progressing. The final sketch drawings are waiting for approval and the preliminary budget is going to be sent to the provincial government for approval.

The proposed plans are for a 36-bed unit with an open courtyard design and continuous walkways for the flow of pedestrians. Also there will be outside walkways. The individual rooms will have washroom facilities and there would be lounges and hobby rooms, and of course the dining area.

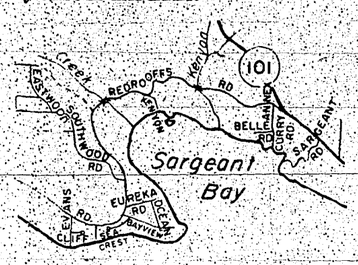
The natural heritage of Sargeant's Bay

By JESSIE LAFEBER



Sargeant's Bay has been in the news recently in connection with a proposal for a Regional Park and plans for commercial development. The two seem to be in conflict. What is so special about this area that it warrants this much attention. Not too many people even know of its existence. It is located on Redrooffs Road, seven kilometers west of Sechelt, almost exactly halfway between Langdale and Earls Cove. Its original name was North-West Bay and the maps consistently call if Sargeant Bay. Most people prefer the spelling, Sargeant's Bay.

The bay looks out on the Trail Islands in the south-east wind direction. During stormy weather, the seas can become quite heavy. Wave erosion is evident on the sandy south-west side and all the way west of the bay towards Reception Point. This is where the material came from that now forms the beach and a solid gravel berm at the bay head. The berm started as a sand bar which, when it rose above high tide level, left a shallow salt-water lagoon behind it. Over the years, vegetation changed this into a marsh. The marsh contains mostly fresh water due to the influx from Colvin Creek, but the water level varies along with the tides. During the higher tides, seawater runs into part of the marsh, particularly since the mouth of the creek was diverted in 1977.

This type of coast formation is not uncommon along the Pacific Coast, but it is rare in British Columbia and unique on the Sunshine Coast. It provides a variety of habitat for all sorts of sea and wildlife as well as a beautiful sand and gravel beach. Log pollution is heavy as the bay acts as a trap for everything that can be carried by the sea. The logs will hopefully become fewer over the years as the logging companies are cleaning up their act.

MARINE LIFE

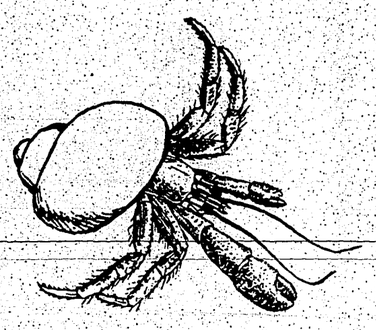
There is much more to the Bay than meets the eye. This goes particularly for its marine life. The intertidal zone is only a tiny sample of what hides under the surface. Two distinct marine habitats that reveal themselves to the underwater explorer are the shallow, sandy bottom with its eelgrass beds and the deeper rocky bottom on the north side of the bay. The eelgrass beds can readily be explored by almost everybody, requiring only goggles and a snorkel. The rocky bottom requires a scuba outfit.

The most common inhabitants of the eelgrass beds are the yellow shiner perches and pipefishes. Pipefishes are close relatives of the Mediterranean seahorses. One can really see it when one looks them in the face. Some people claim they are biologically more advanced than humans. After fertilization of the eggs, they are deposited in a pouch of the male pipefish. There, they hatch and he gives birth to a few hundred little pipefish fry.

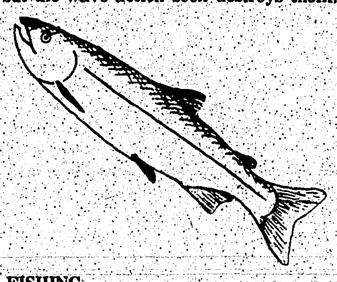
Sometimes one can see large schools of sandlances, long bodied silvery iittle fish that bury in the sand when they are forced to hide. With their sharp noses they literally pierce themselves into the sand and disappear in no time at all.

Of the less common eelgrass fish, the beautiful Silverspotted Sculpin is worth mentioning. With graceful waving motions of its large fins and tail, it makes its way through the eelgrass.

The Spiny Lump Sucker, with its almost spherical body, is certainly the funniest looking little fish. It has a sucker on its belly, with which it can attach itself to a rock or shell. This would indicate that the sandy bottom is not really their preferred habitat, but we have found them there all the same.



In the deeper waters of the Bay, one can find huge sea cucumbers, scallops, and multicoloured nudibranchs. There is also the bright orange and red coloured Pagurus Crab. This is a hermit crab which is quite particular about its housing. It uses exclusively old Moon Snail shells. So, if you find Parurus Crabs you know there must be Moon Snails — and there are! Their shells become as large as a good sized orange, and their bodies are several times larger. They can only hide inside their shell by squeezing lots of water out of their large foot, which is a slow process. They are protected by spending most of their lives under the sand. They feed on clams, which they kill by drilling a small hole through the shell with their specially-designed tongue. Sometimes one can find the Moon Snail's egg collars on the beach, but the wave action soon destroys them.



FISHING

Emerging from our dive, we can see many people who, from a variety of craft are trying to lure the fish out of their element and into their boats. There are often successful. Fishing in probably the most popular pasttime in Sargeant's Bay. I need not say much more. Before sunrise one can hear the rumbling of small boats being dragged over the rocks on the beach. Most of the sport fishing is done from small rowboats.

There is not much commercial fishing in the Bay, but the odd fishboat can be seen once in a while. Sometimes "Prospector II", from Nanaimo, sails into the bay in search of perch. This is the last perch fish boat that is still active in B.C. waters. When the skipper, who runs the boat all by himself, spots a school fo perch from a little rowboat, he rows around the school paying out his net. Well-behaved perch will stay in one place when he does this, so they get trapped inside. However, not all perch seem to get the point.

BIRDS TO ENJOY

There are, of course, times when the fish just don't feel like biting and the sport fishermen may be given to boredom. Not so in Sargeant's Bay. Apart from the beautiful scenery there are the Bay birds to enjoy. Fall, winter, and spring are the best times to observe them, as they are more numerous, closer to the shore and as some are only winter visitors. There are four kinds of grebes, the Western, Red-necked, Eared and Horned Grebe. The graceful Western Grebe can often be seen in large numbers, the others more occasionally and in pairs. Common Loons and Cormorants are around throughout the year. So are Belted Kingfishers and the Great Blue Herons, which can usually be seen catching small crabs, gunnels and other small fish. Common ducks include: Barrows Goldeneye, Common Goldeneye, Bufflehead, Common Scooter, Surf Scooter, and White-winged Scooter, present during the winter season. Less common, but very colourful, are the Old Squaw and Harlequin Ducks. Of the real sea birds, the Marbled Murrelet can be seen and its high pitched call can be heard all year round. The Pigeon Guillemot and Common Murre are less common.

Of the larger waterfowl, Canada Geese and Snow Geese fly over in large numbers during migration and occasionally touch down. Shorebirds are not common, but we have seen Spotted Sandpipers and Black Oystercatchers on occasion.

All of the bay ducks eat mostly small fish. Their presence indicates an abundant food supply, on which the larger fish depend also. In turn, some of the ducks fall prey to the Bald Eagles. We have seen a Bald Eagle catch a Surf Scooter, a Glaucus-winged Gull and a big dogfish. Osprey are seen regularly. Some of their prey consists of flounders, caught in shallow water.

The marsh supports, besides Redwing Blackbirds, a variety of small birds. Once, when the marsh had open water, it must have supported a thriving waterfowl population. It is the only marsh of its size on the Sunshine Coast, that we know of. Common Merganers, which are basically fresh water ducks, breed in the marsh and can be seen feeding on small crabs in the bay. We have seen several broods each year over the last five years. Since the dredging, their numbers seem to have decreased.

In the winter of 1977-78, a Trumpeter Swan was seen in the marsh. It may have been attracted by the temporary shallow open water caused by the dredging.

It is claimed that the marsh can be enhanced as a waterfowl breeding habitat by creating some open water. Pond or puddle ducks need this for feeding. Some islands can be created for nesting sites. The water level would also need to be controlled so the nests cannot be flooded. This would provide habitat for Mallards, Canada Geese, Cinnamon Teals, Shovelers, Blue-winged Teals, and Gadwells. A nest box program might be troduce the colourful Wood Duck as well.

ANIMAL LIFE

Of the "fur bearing" animals, the River Otters are the most notorious. You can sometimes see them in pairs and sometimes with as many as three juveniles. The have a voracious appetite for flounders, which seem to be their staple food. Mink are common on the beach and Harbour Seals can often be seen in the bay. Deer are in the forest north of the Bay. Last summer, many people on the beach watched a beautiful male deer with huge antlers swim all the way across the bay.

AND PEOPLE

On summy summer days, the beach is the main attraction for sun worshippers and swimmers. At low tides the finer sand is exposed and the bay is shallow a long way out — ideal for small children! Some people worry about the snakes that often share the sunshine with them. Let them be assured that there is no need to worry. Those snakes are all varieities of the harmless Garter Snake. They are not poisonous, but can bite when handled. Their teeth are sharp and can draw blood. Even that need not happen if you pick them up by the tail, with the head hanging down. They are not strong enough to raise their heads high enough to reach your hand. Do not kill them, their staple food is slugs. They also eat snails, earthworms, salamanders, etc. The largest of the Garter Snakes is the Coast Garter Snake. This is the one that most prefers the beach. It also catches larger prey like mice. Its food on the beach consists of crabs and small fish. We have seen one swim in shallow water with a fairly large size sculpin in its mouth.

Most people who enjoy the beach on one of these fine sunny days that give the Sunshine Coast its name, end up climbing the rock at the north end of the beach. It has a breathtaking view over the bay on one side, and over the beach and the marsh on the other.

What makes this bay so unique is its variety of different features: rocks, beach, marsh, and forest; fishing, boating, swimming, and sunning; marinelife, plantlife, birdlife and beautiful scenery. Where else can one find such diversity all in one area?

This account of the attractions of Sargeant's Bay is by no means complete. I hardly wrote about the fishing and not at all about the plants and the Bay's history. Maybe this will encourage someone to climb on his pen and write his own thing. If you know of interesting experiences and observations at Sargeant's Bay, please drop me a note.

Time
Every car has tiny, uninvited guests living in its body panels and undercarriage. Who are they? Ugly, rusty Corrodents, that begin as tiny rust spots on the welds and folds in your new car, quickly growing into larger areas of rust and corrosion. Rust-rats can infest any car, eating away at its body, and resale value as well.
CORRODENT
ALL RUSTPROOFING IS NOT CREATED EQUAL.
There is one way to keep those rusty Corrodents from infesting your new car - 1-Time Rustproofing from ECP Incorporated— ECP means Entire Car Protection.
• 1-Time is supported by research and development started in 1935, which helped to tackle the big jobs, like rustproofing all types of military vehicles and even the Navy's mothball fleet!
• 1-Time has the best, most effective auto rustproofing system and the largest network of authorized new-car dealers . . . over 2,000 nationwide. ECP technology does the job and gives you the No. 1 treatment, 1-Time. Millions of satisfied customers have kept us No. 1 in rustproofing
THE 1-TIME TREATMENT
Your dealer can treat your car with 1-Time Rustproofing featuring:
• A TWO PRODUCT SYSTEM: Interior and exterior areas are subject to different conditions and need different, specialized treatment and products. Other companies only have a one product system.
• CAPILLARY ATTRACTION PROPERTIES. 1-Time interior formula is drawn by capillary attraction into the tiniest weld and fold in your car's body, sealing them against rust. Other products don't offer this capillary attraction property.
• DEALER APPLICATION. Think about it. Who knows your particular car better, your dealer or someone who handles dozens of different makes? Trust your dealer and his specially trained rustproofing technician to do the most thorough application. It's even more convenient to have your dealer treat your car with ECP 1-Time, too!
• Inside Trunk Compartment • Inside Quarter Panels • Inside Headlight Wells • Inside Hood Edges • Inside Wheel Wells • Inside Dog Legs

Cheers and applause for 90-day zoning hold

By HELEN PARKER

Cheers and applause greeted Hank Hall's question to Sechelt residents attending a public hearing whether a 90-day moratorium should be placed on all rezoning until the community plan is ratified.

Approximately 120 persons crowded the Senior Citizens's Hall last Wednesday to voice their opinions on what now are controversial zoning amendments bylaws.

The crowd audibly made its feelings known, groaning or cheering in response to the speakers on the floor.

Sechelt Village Council repeatedly told the residents the meeting was a public hearing, not an information meeting and that council could not act on the final question from the floor to pass a resolution supporting the moratorium.

Hall dominated the floor with submissions against each of the zoning amendment bylaws on grounds they contravene the Sechelt Vicinity Plan (subregional plan) and the present draft of the community plan.

His opening remarks included a protest that five bylaws were "too large a load" to be dealt with at one meeting.

He urged council to either follow the subregional plan or approach the regional board for amendments. The bylaws before the meeting, he said, contravened the subregional plan, the community plan, "the the wishes of your planner and those sitting on the community plan committee."

Council's opinions on the meeting later were varied.

Alderman Joyce Kolibas said she felt the residents attended the meeting with "blood in thier eyes."

"It doesn't bother me when someone shouts at me, but I am not going to rant and rave back," Kolibas said.

At one point, where Hayden Killam "made the remark about Mr. Roy being inept," Kolibas said, "I was about to rise to my feet."

However, she said, she concurs with Miss Helen Dawe's immediate defence that Roy "has the village at heart and knows what he is doing."

"I strongly believe, and I've said it before, that council is making a mistake in accepting his resignation," Kolibas said.

Kolibas said council will have to "hang on" until it has a planner before decisions are made on the bylaws, but she does not know "whether it will take 90 days."

Alderman Morgan Thompson agreed that except for the bylaw concerning the village's property for the joint-use facility, no decision would be made on "these bylaws until a planner is hired."

He said he has not considered the aspect of a 90-day moratorium. He was not surprised at turnout, he said, because of the previous "ballyhoo" in the newspapers.

Mayor Harold Nelson said it is not possible to "shut down the village for 90 days."

"People think things are done overnight . . . it probably takes 90 days (before bylaws are adopted)," he said.

"We have never turned down anyone who wanted a hearing. Unfortunately people think once it goes to public hearing, it has been decided."

The public hearing was "just like a zoo", Alderman Frode Jorgensen said.

"It would have hoped to hear more than one man's opinion for the two hours it lasted," he said. "I hoped to hear more input from the public.."

Sechelt Ratepayers chairman Chuck Dowman, who said at the meeting the group supported Hall's presentation, told The Times council was in a dilemma.

It can pass the zoning amendments and be unpopular with the residents, elect a 90-day moratorium and "save face" or "rescind everything" and be unpopular with the developers, he said.

The following is a summary of the opinions expressed at the hearings.

Zoning Amendment Bylaw 146.6, 1979 rezones the Rockwood Lodge property from Public Assembly to Residential IV.

Correspondence on this already received would be noted in council's deliberations, however Miss Dawe said she had seen six letters protesting the rezoning and these letters have been lost.

Access to the property from the rear (Pilot Ave.) is "dangerous," Miss Dawe said. Bus drivers to Chatelech have a "standing order" not to proceed up the road if there is any snow on it.

There was only a narrow access to the property at the rear and the previous owner had determined it to be between 13 and 16 feet wide.

Surveyor Robert Allen informed the hearing it was 15.19 feet wide.

"Whether access is from the back or front," Miss Dawe said, "it is a traffic hazard to elementary and junior secondary students."

Zoning amendment 146.7, 1979 deletes the word contractor from Section 2.9.1., Subsection 10, and substitutes "offices, shops and yards."

Hall said he was against this bylaw since this has been dealt with in a previous bylaw (176) which went to Victoria last year for approval, came back and was never adopted.

Bylaw 176 would have deleted the Industrial zone completely because council felt sufficient village land was industrially-zoned and added service Industrial to allow for lighter industry.

Where only offices for contractors on the site are allowed previously, this amendment would allow offices, shops and yards.

Killam said he supported the amendment, though the competition "makes it more difficult for me to operate.",

Zoning amendment bylaw 146.8 provides for the addition of a Residential IV zone, changes the parking space size from 10 feet to nine feet wide and from 20 to 18.5 feet long, rezones lots 26-29 of Block G, DL 304 from RII to RIV and rezones the one acre parcel plus access easement of Block 7 DL 303 and 304 from RI to Public Assembly.

Hall said the addition of an RIV zone contravenes the subregional plan and the community plan both of which are attempting to "minimize the impersonalization" of the community and limit higher density. Apartments presently are allowed only in conjunction with commercial buildings.

Since the area is tourist-oriented, Renee McCall said, smaller parking spaces will create a problem for campers and motor homes.

"We need parking for the decent-sized car, not the Mini-Austin," Bea Wilkinson said.

"There's a gas shortage and it's going to get worse," Killam replied. "You can't evey buy a big car any more."

The audience groaned in response.

"You can't buy a 22-foot car and that's a fact and I have the floor," Killam said.

One member of the audience suggested a sign be placed at the entrance of Sechelt advising that only those persons owning smaller cars should move to the village.

Presently there is no RIV zone, so how can the property owners seek a rezoning of lots 26-29 to RIV," Hall asked.

He said again the amendment contravened the subregional plan. He read from the plan which stated that area in particular was a "sensitive environmental area."

From the bylaws presented that night, he said, it sounded like there would be an Industrial Park next to an apartment building which would turn the area into a "slum".

Killam told the hearing that 10 or more persons on the community plan committee did not agree with the plan as it was presented and "the planner was not ready to accept this."

Killam said Roy was "inept" and both Hall and Miss Dawe rose to defend Roy.

Dowman said he was against the rezoning for the joint-use facility because the community plan stated existing commercial areas should be built up before expanding further.

Miss Dawe objected because one of the properties the village plans to trade for this acre was sold to the village at less than market value for the present library.

Hall objected because Block 7 was originally slated as a civic site.

Stan Anderson said he and his partners are willing and have gone on record stating this, to deed a 30 foot buffer strip around block 7 to the village for a park.

Christine Hunter said she did not trust the developer "to see we get a fair deal and I don't trust council to do if for us either."

She said the residents in the area of Block 7 have "been this route before with Trail Bay Mall," when it was promised the trees would be left standing and they were removed.

However, once the land is deeded to the village, the village is responsible for what is done with it.

Hall also stressed the necessity of maintaining the "downtown core concept" before increasing commercial space.

Zoning amendment bylaw 146.10 amends the lot size in the Industrial Zone 7,535 square feet.

Hall repeated that Bylaw 176 deals with this and that it contravenes the subregional plan.

Water line held up

A "dangerous precedent" is how Hank Hall of Pebble Holdings described possible expropration of lot 49 by the regional district to allow continuation of the 14-inch water main through the Utility Corridor to supply Sechelt and West Sechelt.

He indicated to the board meeting last week that as an ordinary citizen he should be allowed to negotiate an easement agreement through the property enabling the line to go through.

Works superintendant Gordon Dixon reported to the board the water line was complete up to lot 49 and from the time of agreement on the disputed easement, water would flow in "about three weeks."

The West Sechelt area has been serviced by a smaller line and the insufficient water pressure has raised concern among residents and developers for fire safety and improper service.

A management committee recommendation to the board last week was to offer Pebble Holdings a $7,750 appraised value for lot 49.

An expropration bylaw before the board was tabled pending further discussion with Hall and a possible agreement.

Police news

Gibsons RCMP reports a quiet week "for this time of year" while Sechelt RCMP are warning people not to park overnight in the lots near Tyee Air because of the risk of vandalism and theft.

A pick-up truck stolen from the Tyee Parking lot was recovered damaged on Hydro Rd., Reserve No. 2 July 7. Damage was conservatively estimated at $800.

A rock was thrown through the driver's window of a red Volkswagen parked at the Tyee Lot July 8 and there was a report the same day of minor vandalism to a boat docked at the Porpoise Bay private wharf.

A wall of the Sechelt Legion was damaged when a vehicle was driven into it July 13.

Fishing equipment, a Kodak Instamatic and money from a wallet was reported stolen July 12 from the canopy of the back of a Ford. The items valued at $150, were taken when the truck was parked at the Pender Harbour Legion or Pender Harbour Hotel.

Two bicycles were reported stolen from the Whittaker Road, and Hwy 101 area July 11. The bikes are a Mark II, Eliminator and a blue Nomad, serial Number N601091.

The wharfinger's hut at the Porpoise Bay Gov't wharf was reported broken into July 11, though nothing is missing. A building under construction on Cooper Rd. was reported vandalized July 10. Forms were damaged and a sledgehammer and carpenter's hammer stolen. It is suspected younger children are involved.

A 25-foot boat stolen from Vancouver was recovered at Coho Marina July 9. Theft was reported from the highway project at Middlepoint July 8. Diesel fuel was stolen from a D-7 Caterpillar and the fuel cap is still missing.

A number of items have been turned in at the Sechelt detachment. An orange tarp containing camping equipment was found July 6 in the Trout Lake area. Owners wishing to identify it can refer to File 45P.

An Olympus camera was found on the side of the road near Redroofs Road. and Hwy. 101 July 6. (File 1919). A green plastic bag containing camping gear was found July 3 on Browning Road. (File 1879).

A Volkswagen stolen from Wyngaert Rd. July 11 was later recovered on South Fletcher Road., Gibsons RCMP reported. A gray Samsonite briefcase was stolen from a motor vehicle on Hwy 101 July 11. Papers contained in the Briefcase were later recovered near the scene of the theft.

The theft of chain link fencing from Stewart Rd. July 10 is under investigation. A 25-foot Powercraft, stolen from the Gibsons Gov't Wharf July 6 was later recovered in Pender Harbour.

Friday the 13th bad day for motorists

Friday the thirteenth lived up to its reputation for some motorists and it didn't waste any time getting started.

John Hautala suffered minor injuries when the 1973 Camaro he was driving left the road about 1 a.m. on Hwy 101 just south of Trout Lake. He was taken to St. Mary's Hospital and later released.

About 1:20 p.m., Julie Johnson of Campbell River was seriously injured near Beach and Park Avenues in Roberts Creek when whe went off the road on a mini-bike.

Oscar Cargyle, 59, of Sechelt was taken to hospital following an accident in his 1968 Mercury truck at 2 p.m. near Brooks Road. and Hwy. 101. He was later released.

Laura Small, 16, was taken to hospital suffering serious head injuries after the 1973 Vega in which she was a passenger left the road south of Trout Lake on Hwy 101 about 7:50 p.m. The vehicle was driven by Kenneth Matthews, 20, of Vancouver.

ANOTHER REASON TO SHOP CO-OP

Elphinstone Co-op is pleased to introduce to the Sunshine Coast a new concept in meat sales. Instead of, as is common practice in the retail food business, offering you only a few "lost leader" specials each week, we are going out on a limb and for a period of 3 months

ALL MEAT ITEMS WILL BE REDUCED BY 15%

And when we say all meat items we mean every meat item in our meat department including cold cuts etc. Further, we will not be inflating the price of meat to do this but will be offering a straight 15% off our everyday retail competitive prices. If this experiment works it will continue into other departments.

WE'RE NOT KIDDING WHEN WE SAY " "DON'T JUST SHOP—SHOP CO-OP" THERE IS A DIFFERENCE

Please note that due to the small mark up this discount will not apply on sides or hinds of beef or pork.

The assessment system

Though a good deal of publicity has been given on the change in the assessment system to a provincial common standard, no one paid much attention until individual assessments appeared in the mail. Reaction varied from surprise, to anger, to jubilation.

Spokesmen for Assessment Authority offices explain that actual values as noted on your assessment have been determined by professional appraisers, but in the final analysis, the value of property is determined by the marketplace.

If you are planning to sell your home in the coming year and you feel the "actual" value was listed as too low, the real estate industry reminds you that there could be a marked difference between that actual value figure and the market value.

It will be indicative of the range . . . but the marketplace and consumer will dictate the price you will get for your home for sale.

Planting energy trees

Energy — like money — does not grow on trees, but trees can be an energy saving device.

Deciduous trees planted on the south, west or east side of your home will grow to be an energy reduction feature . . . and tall evergreens planted on the north side perform the function.

Shade produced by deciduous trees during hot summer months reduces the amount of solar heat your home absorbs and lessons the burden placed on cooling equipment. Evergreens block icy winter blasts from the north side, reducing the work your furnance will have to do to maintain reasonable warmth in your home.

RESOURCE CONSERVATION

Resource conservation makes sense because preservation of depleting supplies will maintain our present lifestyle for future generations. The quality of life can be maintained if the quantity of resources used is curtailed.

FORMER PLANNER Doug Roy, right, said the local community was in a state of ferment" and wondered aloud what is going to come out of it and what is going to be left, but it didn't discourage about 30 guests from champagne toasting the Sechelt Marsh and lunching in the sunshine Sunday on a visit from Second Century Fund's Pat Good. Certificates acknowledging valuable contributions to the Marsh went to Bill Neilson, Joe Fisher, Ted Osborne, Vic Walters, and Henry Hall.

The Business Information Access Program is running in all parts of the province under the auspices of the Ministry of Tourism and Small Business Development and the B.C. Chamber of Commerce.

This program is a referall service organized by the government where business persons can seek help with problems. The Centre has access to many sources of information so that clients can be advised of which agencies they can go to for help.

The program is not just for those wishing to start a new business, but is also for those who wish to upgrade and improve existing businesses. For example, counselling is available through Federal Business Development Bank seminars. Individual counselling services are also available through the Counselling Assistance to Small Enterprise (CASE) program which provides skilled persons to help business owners for only $5 per hour.

All client inquiries are kept strictly confidential.

Inquiries should be directed to Judy Mathon, Business Information Officer, Box 360, Sechelt, B.C. V0N 3A0, or phone 885-3258 for appointment. The office is open from 1 to 5, Monday through Friday.

Wave Lengths

By SHARON GURNEY

The Elphinstone Aero Club had a very succesful Fly In on July 7. Due to weather conditions on Sunday, July 8, we were forced to cancel our pancake breakfast, which we apologize for. We would like to thank the following for their help and donations:

Sea Cavalcade Queen candidates, Sechelt Legion, Sechelt Lions Club, EAA — Bob Carey and Bob Haslam, PEP — Art McPhee, Gibsons Fire Dept.

Sechelt Fire Dept., John Farrer - computor, Gordon Mullins - video, Carl Chrismas - Master of Ceremonies.

Also, all the pilots who provided the air rides, the Penn Kings who provided the music for our dance which was a sellout.

A very special thank you for Charlotte and Terry Raines for all their help at the barbecue; the pilots of the Harvard aircrafts who provided entertaining performances. Another special thank you to the people of our communities who came out to our first Fly In, and gave us the support we need.

We hope you all enjoyed the day's activities enough to come again next year, when we hope to provide a better program of events.

BEAU BRIDGES, Sally Field and Ron Liebman are the stars of 20th Century Fox's romantic drama "Norma Rae."

Norma Rae a clash between two fiercly opposing forces

Sally Field stars in the title role of Twentieth Century-Fox's "Norma Rae", a film suffused with humor and glowing with warmth, even though a clash between two fiercely opposing forces rages at its core.

The heroine of the film is an appealing worker in a Southern Industrial town whose life is dramatically altered when circumstances bring about a relationship with a man unlike anyone she has ever known.

Although his ways of thinking and living are foreign to her view of life, he becomes her mentor and guides her into an awakening sense of her dignity and worth as a human being. The bond which unites them, however, also involves them in an even larger drama with far-reaching implications which extend beyond their own lives.

In filming a screenplay in which the characters are so carefully delineated, the casting becomes particularly crucial and "Norma Rae" draws much of its strength from a brilliantly evolved central performance by Sally Field in the title role.

"Players" a first

Robert Evans' "Players" is a first.

It is very difficult for films to be wholly original, but what Evans has achieved in "Players" has never been done before. The film's central character, Chris Christensen, is fictional while everybody surrounding him in the world of tennis is real and played by the actual people themselves.

Because of this, "Players" presents a unique authenticity about the international tennis world, a blending of reality and fiction that has never before been captured on screen.

Pancho Gonzalez, one of the greatest tennis players of all time, portrays Dean-Paul Martin's coach. He was a tremendous help in technically orchestrating the tennis sequences and in bringing to the screen the understanding of what goes on in a tennis player's mind.

Usually producers in Hollywood would have cast someone like Burgess Meredith or Jack Warden as the coach, but not Evans. His concept was totally different. Evans peopled his film with the real champion tennis players, and they are the ones Dean-Paul Martin competes against in the film.

Much of the film was shot at Wimbledon, at the official men's singles finals in England. No one believed Evans would be able to convince Wimbledon officials to let him shoot his film at the real tournament. Wimbledon being to sports what the Vatican is to religion. Evans was told it would be impossible to invade the privacy of Wimbledon, but he did it. Shooting at Wimbledon is a first, and the cameras shot on-court, locker-room and background sequences during the run of the real event.

Minister asked for early start on bypass highway

Area F regional director David Hunter has written Highways Minister Alex Fraser asking for a meeting and a start on "desperately needed" bypass highway between Langdale and Gibsons.

With the Gilmore-Sunnycrest connector road now approved, Hunter is seeking an expiditious start on the road to alleviate heavy ferry traffic that must use what he called "these two dangerous highways"—Marine Drive or the alternate (North Road) route "that has curves so sharp that most trucks cannot use it and other vehicles must use extreme caution on it."

The letter called the Marine Drive route "narrow and shoulderless, with dangerous curves and steep hills . . . during cold or snow periods very hazardous and almost impassable."

He said long-weekend ferry traffic is backed up for two to three miles along Marine and said the local highway patrol was "most uncooperative" in assisting residents to get through the traffic into their homes and communities.

"I personally experienced this treatment from the Highway Patrol on duty this (May 24th) weekend," Hunter said in the letter.

He is backed up by a resolution from 100 Area F property owners asking for the bypass as soon as possible.

Christian Science

"But oh for the touch of a vanished hand, and the sound of a voice that is still". (Tennyson)

Have we lost someone very near and dear? The following words may be of comfort. "When the light of one friendship after another passes from earth to heaven, we kindle in place thereof the glow of some deathless reality. Memory, faithful to goodness, holds in her secret chambers those characters of holiest sort, bravest to endure, firmest to suffer, soonest to renounce." (Pulpit and Press by Mary Baker Eddy)

Coopers Green campers may be breaking bylaw

The regional district board has advised their staff to look into possible violations and infractions of health or highways bylaws by overnight campers at the Coopers Green campsite.

Called a "sensitive local issue" by chairman Ed Nicholson, the summer camping crowds have been the subject of a number of complaints.

Nicholson, also Area B director, said recent clarification indicates that one camping space is allowed for 900 square feet of property.

He said the complaints would indicate the allotment is being exceeded and that trailers are being parked on Crown land.

There has been no success to date in getting any local agencies or the province to take action, Nicholson added.

Planner Bill Lindsay will contact the owners of the Green about the possible trespass.

Director Joe Harrison commented on the problem: "We'd better damn well do something or the people will lose respect for the rules."

Sergeant Ron Nicholas moves on for 12th time

After 22 years in the RCMP, the last three years in Gibsons, Sergeant Ron Nicholas is moving on for the twelfth time in his career to take a promotion to the Staff Sargeant's position in Parksville.

Sgt. Nicholas said he has spent a "very challenging three years" in Gibsons.

"I've always enjoyed the small community way of life and that certainly was offered in Gibsons," he said. "Very friendly people — down-to-earth, that's something you don't really see in a bigger community."

Sgt. Nicholas, his wife and seven children will be leaving for Parksville sometime in August.

Replacing Sgt. Nicholas is Sgt. D.N. McDermid who is being transferred from plain clothes duty in serious crime investigation in Vancouver.

St. Nicholas is replacing Parksville's retiring Staff-Sergeant Lou Biggeman.

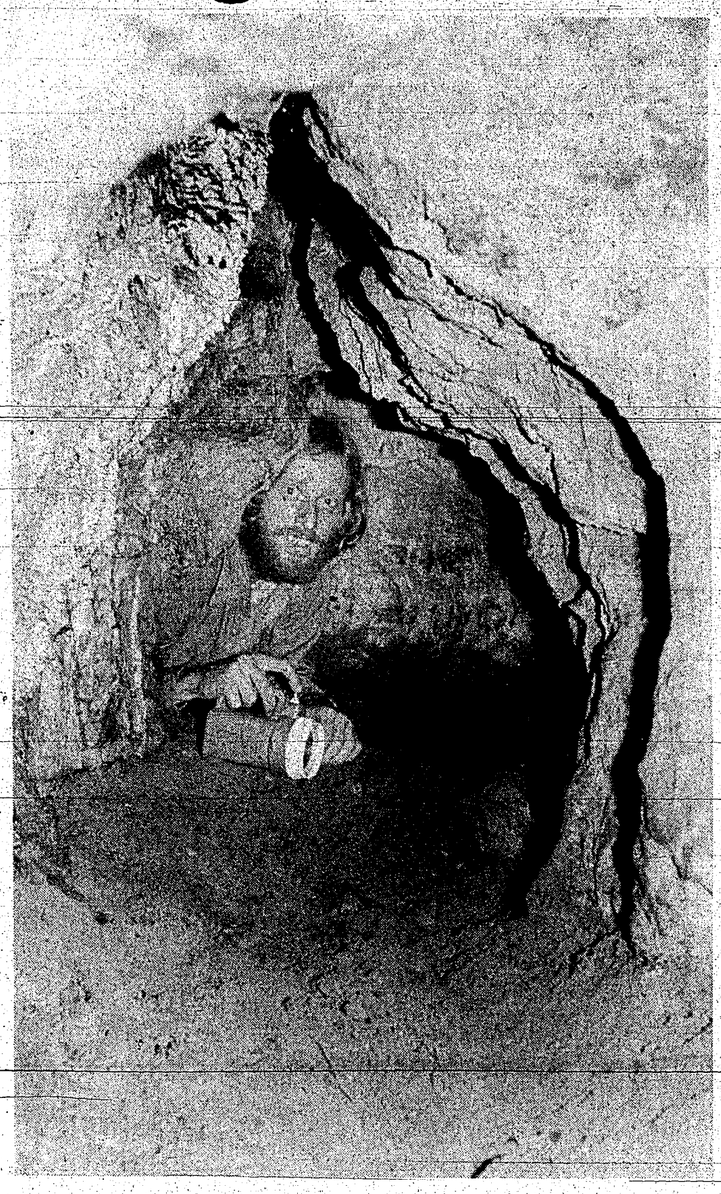
Hiking Trails of the Sunshine Coast



From the new book (available at bookstores) by Rita Percheson, Pam Gross and Sandy Barrett with permission of Harbour Publishing, Madeira Park.

ACCESS: Take Highway 101 west from Sechelt six and eight-tenths miles. The turnoff road is the second road on the north side of the highway one and three-tenths miles past Brooks Road, and has to be closely watched for. Follow this turnoff road one mile up to the cut off for the picnic site and trial as marked on the map.

HIKING TIME: One half hour for the circle route which is one mile long.

DESCRIPTION: Primary. This trail is well-defined except for that portion that runs around the pond, where you may have to consult your map to pick up the trail again. Numerous small trails in the picnic site area lead to the creek or just twine through the woods.

POINTS OF INTEREST: Nicknamed the "Gumdrop Caves" for their small size, these twelve limestone caves are one of the highlights of this hike. The two largest caves are around forty feet long and are inhabited by large cave crickets.

The B.C. Forestry has provided picnic tables and cleared areas for campfires near a waterfall and further down the creek a log jam has created a tempting swimming hole.

Behind the mask-maker

By EVI BLUETH

"Our imagination can grow here in Canada, where we aren't restricted by a cultural tradition of mask making," says local mime teacher and mask-maker Gerardo Avila. He is much more concerned about the expression of his masks than the finish, and makes them for theatre, not to hang on the wall as objects. He likes to have a wide selection for use in his theatre groups and is not interested in selling them commercially.

Gerardo began his career as a clown and puppet maker in 1969. He studied communications and drama at a university in Mexico City where he was born. When he arrived in Canada in 1975 he became part of an independent mime group call "Ephemeral". They appeared at the first Canadian Mime Festival in Toronto and put on a show called "Family Ties". In this show a child receives gift masks from his parents. Each year he changes and receives a new mask that animates him accordingly.

"Your personality is revealed by how you respond to a mask" says Gerardo, who has taught mask-making at both UBC and Brittania Community Centre in Vancouver. The course included instruction on how to make a mold with plasticene followed by paper-mache applications. Most of his masks have seven or eight coats of paper, but he says the long lasting commercial masks are made with 25 layers and an inside coating of gold leaf.

"Subtlies like the smell inside the mask are very important for long stage use," he says in praise of master artists who make smoothly finished well-fitting specimens.

"You can't wear someone else's mask. A mask is a very personal object."

In Mexican tradition, the actor often made promises to the mask before performing. It was regarded as a very sacred object possessing great powers, and was treated with the utmost respect, the mask-maker says.

The audience respose to certain masks is intriguing, and often surprising. Gerardo never knows what the theatregoers will find amusing.

"Once you're familiar with the history of masks, you can begin creating," says Gerardo. He is most influenced by Greek artists, second by Italian classical, then Mexican and Balinese.

He has put together an enormous portfolio with photographs and drawings of masks from different countries, and he hopes to have a mask exposition here on the Sunshine Coast.

The problem of the way humans relate to machines is fascinating to Gerardo and he is planning to portray all the ways of communications, from electricity to computers, by means of masks. This unique presentation will be seen in school performances in the area, possibly next term.

Gerardo's ten-week mime course was sponsored by Continuing Education last winter. Next season he hopes to have a separate course that will focus completely on the art of mask-making.

During the opening ceremony of the new Arts Council Centre, the Horizon Theatre will bring Picasso paintings to life with their exciting collections of masks. This welcoming celebration will be led by Gerardo and his five-man troop.

"It takes time to stimulate interest in mime here on the coast, but the children are responding well and the spontaneity is inspiring," he says.

He feels that mime is really developing now in this country and he is glad to have the opportunity to share his interests with the Sunshine Coast community. He uses the Grantham Landing community hall for rehearsals and is planning a new series of skits that will be performed in local schools. Anyone who would like to display their masks in the exposition of Coast Masks can contact Gerardo at 886-8085.

Provincial Court

An impaired driver involved in a serious accident was fined $1,000 and given a one-year suspended sentence in Sechelt Provincial Court last week.

Cecil Raymond Mark, 24, of Fort St. John pleaded guilty to driving while impaired and driving dangerously after an accident in May in which he and his passenger and the driver of the oncoming car were injured.

Mark was attempting to pass a police car at an estimated speed of 70-80 kmh in a 50 kmh zone when he noticed the oncoming car. He swerved right to miss it, struck the front fender of the police car, bounced back into the path of the other car and collided with it.

Mark received the fine for impaired driving and the suspended sentence for dangerous driving.

Mark also must report to the probation officer in Fort St. John, not leave the town unless he has the permission of the officer, not become intoxicated and submit to a breathalyser test if a police officer asks. A reading over .01 is considered a breach of probation.

Callum Duncan Robertson, 17, was fined $100 when he pleaded guilty to being a minor in possession of liquor.

Richard Dougan, 18, pleaded guilty to driving without insurance, a charge under the motor vehicle act, and was fined $100.

Donna Herberts, 27, of Surrey was given a conditional discharge after six months when she pleaded guilty to operating a boat on Sakinaw Lake towing a person on waterskis without another person aboard to keep watch on the skier.

Golf news

By ERNIE HUME

Thursday, July 12 nineteen of our club members visited Seymour Golf and Country Club for an inter-club match. Seymour defeated our club 15 points to 8½ but afterward supplied an enjoyable roast beef dinner. A return match is being arranged at the Sunshine Coast Golf and Country Club at a later date.

The house committee is working hard to make the Giant Garage Sale at Roberts Creek Hall a success. Don't forget the date is Sunday, July 22 and it's on from 10a.m. to 4 p.m. They are still interested in receiving any articles that may be lying around your basement or shed that could be of value to your neighbor. Also you green thumb people bring your slips and plants down to the club house or phone the Laidlaws at 885-9405 and the Hennikers at 886-9893 for pick-up service.

Jim Munro, ex-president and long-time member of the club, managed the thrill of a lifetime earlier this summer. He hit his tee shot on the 8th hole for a hole in one. Belated congratulations, Jim.

The Cedar Crest Golf Center will be opening their driving range soon. This will be a welcome addition to the golf facilities on the Sunshine Coast. Get rid of that bothersome slice and improve your golf score at the golf course.

This year to date 31 new members have joined the club. Our object of 40 new members is slowly being achieved. If you are thinking of joining, drop in and talk to us or phone 885-9212.

Glad to see that club manager George Leigh is recovering nicely from his recent operation and Mrs. Jim Leith (Priscella) is home from hospital.

'Creek Daze '79

See what you missed!

By JEANIE NORTON

Once again Roberts Creek Daze proved a resounding success. The weather was magnificent, the food was delicious, the organization was superb, the crowd was phenomenal, and the all-round feeling was positively euphoric. You weren't there? Perhaps a guided tour will show you what you missed.

7 p.m. Friday night. What's that crowd of people lining the fence at the School? Why, it's the game between the Roberts Creek Ladies Softball Team and "The Beachcombers" of course. Aren't the ladies flashy in their slinky Disco dresses with sequins and feathers and glitter? Even their coach is dressed up—as Granny Disco". Don't you kovet his green metallic blouse—a thrift store special if ever you saw one. The way he's clutching that purse though, all the team's secrets must be inside.

Oh yes, he just slipped Marlene a "White" grapefruit. And didn't "Jesse" Pat John take the pitch beautifully—all over the backstop. A few antics like that lighten the mood. The ladies got behind 4—0 but a few tricks by the four buxom cheerleaders loosened them up and they finished with a reputable 9-7 score in favor of The Beachcombers.

Where's everybody going now? Well, the Teen Disco has been going up at the Hall since 7 but it looks as if most of the adults are headed for the Legion. Yep, look at the cars. And the line-up at the bar! There's not even room to dance. No more chairs? Well, we can just table hop and visit with everybody—what better way to meet people?

10 a.m. Saturday morning. Uh-huh. It's your own fault for staying to boogey till all hours last night. Never mind, have a nice refreshing piece of watermelon and sit in the shade to watch the parade. Oops, stay out of range of the fire truck. Oh, that one's all right — it's the Metcalfe Road Volunteer Fire Department and he's too busy pedalling to spray you even if he does have water in that wagon behind his bike.

The clowns are good and that two-headed, three-legged roller skating entry is managing very well. Yes, that other lady on skates is Marlene, the pitcher last night. See how you begin to recognize people? The dog with the tennis visor slipping over one eye is Gyp — what a good sport! And that's the Peninsula Times staff on the "Dazed Planet" float with Superman, Lois Lane and Perry White I think the telephone booth is Judy. Well, we all have our niche in life.

Yes' it all went by too fast — maybe we'll see it again on T.V. They were video-taping it and the game last night. It would be fun if they'd show it on Chammel 10 next winter. We could all get together with the popcorn and reminisce. But on with the Daze activities.

Oh, better get off the road — this is now "Wipe-out Hill" for the Soapbox Derby. Yes, it's for kids and adults alike. See, they're having a grudge match between Roberts Creek and Gibsons Fire Departments. Some of those machines really get moving, others need a little push across the finish line, right Britt? It looks like a real family affair in the winners' circle — Patrick Cromie, Sean Eckford, and Michael Eckford all won their classes with their sleek black job. Everybody will have to soup up their vehicles to beat that one next year.

Oh, good idea, they have a "direction post" at the bottom of the hill. There are the kids' games under the trees — bean bag toss, crazy golf, nail driving (with a first aid station nearby) and face-painting. The fish pond is down by the bridge. The face-painting is sure popular — the kids are lined up in eager anticipation. The ladies are very good — everything from full clown faces to dainty butterflies with sparkles. What a bargain at 50 cents!

The adults' games are here too — Crown and Anchor and Bingo. We can come back when we want to relax under the trees. Time now for the canoe races across the mouth of the Creek. Oh, it's Edna Naylor and Lee Stephens splashing first to the finish and it looks like Rick Maitland and Loretta Harrison second and Sue and Kevin Shepherd third.

Might as well stay here for the toy boat races. They've got a lot of kids entered — it'll take several heats. There's a good breeze for it — looks like fun. Most of the boats were supplied but there, somebody with his own boat just won.

Well, if we wander down toward the wharf we should find the food booths. Yes, there's the dunk tank. We'll have to come back later and soak George Gibb. M-m-m, there's the barbecue. The shish kebabs taste like more. They go really well with the Greek salad. And there's the first corn on the cob of the season. And tacos. And barbecued salmon! What a feast!

We can wander around the crafts section while we eat. What a perfect setting for the booths against the bushes at the edge of the cul-de-sac with the sun beating down and the ocean in the background. There's a good selection of things — pottery, weaving, jewellery, toys, ceramics, stained glass. Really a good show of local talent.

Not many kids turned up for the swimming races. They say the water's pretty chilly. Chantelle Scott, Janice, and Holly Lacey could tell you — they came 1st, 2nd, and 3rd respectively.

The greased pole should be in full swing by now. Yep, there's Glen Dempster covered with axle grease. And there's Sean Longman at the top just grabbing the $10 bill. Ouch, slithering down may be a lot easier than shinnying up for him but it was hard on the rest of his totem pole of helpers — Kenny Dempster folded up like an accordion with Sean coming down on his head. Demir Shtenz made it up shortly after with his "second" John Andrews.

Time for a soothing cup of tea on the green behind the Post Office then down to the sandy beach again for the sandcastle contest What a picture — the wide expense of sandy beach with the curve of shore behind and the waves rolling in and everybody in their bright beach garb on their knees grovelling in the sand or standing back giving constructive criticism. You have to watch where you walk — there are castles and sculptures everywhere.

It was a tough decision for Helen Gordon and Betty Merrick but they made excellent choices in Scott McCulloch and Gabe Joe tied for first in the 5 and under class and Sarah Macaulay for imagination with her eagle in the 6 to 8 class.

But the open class sculpture — that is really a toughy The ogopogo by the Gourlay camp is truly magnificent. But Dave McCulloch and Otto Schmidt's "Reclining Nude" is a close second. Honorable mention goes to the "old tennis shoe" but the ship, the car, the frog, "save the whales", and all the rest are truly works of art as well.

5:00 p.m.. It looks like they're packing everything up. The backgammon tournament under the trees by the wharf is over — Paul Henry emerged champion. There were lots of winners in the raffle too. That handcrafted writing desk by Richard Birkin is really a beauty. You didn't buy a ticket? Well, you can't expect to win without one, now can you?

A little late to enter the golf tournament up at the Sunshine Golf and Country Club. It's been going all day and they had 49 golfers enter. In the Low Gross Class it was Ken Hincks, 71, Brian Covernton, 74, and Dean Warns, 75. In Low Net it was Don Douglas, 65, and John Petula, Len Mitten, and Norm Saltman tied at 67. Marg Arbuckle won the Ladies competion with 69 and in Calloway it was George Potter. A nice little bonus for those players and congratulations to all.

9:30 p.m. Boogey time at Roberts Creek Hall. The Creek is famous for its dances and this looks like a real stomper. The tickets were sold out early in the week and people are still clamouring to get in. Too bad, but the Hall only holds 200 people — that's why we want a new one. Meanwhile, let's enjoy ourselves. It's a bit crowded out on the floor but it's all good-natured and who can resist that beat. It's the Rainbow Ryders, local fellas, and they're really in good form.

What, 1:30 already? Where'd the time go? Oh good, they're playing a few more numbers for an encore. Now for the clean-up — of course we'll stay to help. And for the post-mortem in the kitchen afterward. We could have gone all night if the sandwiches had held out. Oh well, see you tomorrow (or today rather) for the cleanup at noon and the barbecue afterward. If we get a good crew of people we'll have all afternoon to sit on the beach and relax. We deserve a rest — it's been a lot of work as well as fun.

See what you missed? Aren't you sorry? And won't you make a point of being there next year? It's really a good time with something for everybody. And it's a demonstration of what a real community effort can accomplish. "The Dazely News" provides a good explanation of the background and impetus of the Daze and the new community centre. It's also a good souvenir. There are still copies available at the Seaview Market so pick one up.

Sea Cavalcade Queen contestants

Introducing...

MISS GIBSONS Lions Kim Mansfield.

Miss Gibsons Lions Kim Mansfield hopes to make a career in fashion design and recently finished a modelling course in preparation for the contest.

Kim, 17, has lived in the area for seven years and graduated from Elphinstone this year. At Elphinstone, she said, she was mostly involved in the grad committee activities.

Kim entered the Miss Sea Cavalcade contest for the experience of meeting people, she said, and feels the experience will teach her how to present herself in front of people.

MISS GIBSONS Fire Dept. Maureen Forsyth.

Miss Gibsons Fire Dept. Maureen Forsyth graduated from Elphinstone this year and plans to take first year science course at University of Victoria in the fall in preparation of a career in physiotherapy.

Maureen said she does not think the Miss Sea Cavalcade contest is a beauty pageant, so I don't feel I'm on display and I don't feel funny going in it."

Maureen is working this summer for the regional district and enjoys sports, reading and horseback riding.

MISS LEGION Branch 109 Darlene Duncan.

"We've known each other for a long time," Miss Legion Branch 109 Darlene Duncan said of the Miss Sea Cavalcade contestants.

"We're all a team."

Darlene, 16, has lived in Gibsons for 12 years and is concentrating on secretarial courses at Elphinstone.

She expects to gain confidence in meeting and talking to people through her activities in the Sea Cavalcade as well as learn more about the Sunshine Coast and other areas.

Refugee aid now society

Last week, on July 13, the Sunshine Coast Society for Vietnamese Refugees became legally incorporated. The purpose of the society is to coordinate a sponsorship program for Vietnamese refugees.

The society is a non-profit organization and any donating person will automatically become a member of the society. A copy of the society's constitution will be provided to members who send a stamped self-addressed envelope to the address indicated in the Refugee Aid Coupon.

A bank account has been opened and the society is now ready to receive previously pledged (or new) donations. A single donation can be made by cheque or money order as indicated in the coupon. For those who prefer monthly donations, please send 12 post-dated cheques. (This will eliminate a great deal of administrative work.)

The society has applied to Ottawa for a taxation number. When this application is approved, income tax receipts will be issued. Because the society is non-profit and based on humanitarian principles, there is little doubt that the taxation number will be granted. However, it can take up to six month for Revenue Canada to send their approval. The society is looking into ways to speed up this process. However, if it does take six months before the society can issue tax receipts, that time will still be before 1979 tax returns are due.

For more information please phone Susan Nichols 885-9798.
