HIS MANY SUITS

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is a remarkable man. When he is in the United States he tells his audiences that he will never be happy until Canada and the United States have the closest possible trade relations.

Last night in Toronto, Sir Wilfrid made a Canadian speech—and a good Canadian speech, too. He went completely back on the sentiments of his American speeches, and announced, in effect, that no more would he bend the knee of application to Uncle Sam, but that, henceforth, "the honor and dignity of the Canadian name will ever be the guiding star of the government."

That is quite encouraging to the Canadian Conservatives, who have been for years advocating the very thing for which Sir Wilfrid is now preparing the way. The ease with which Sir Wilfrid changes his opinion is, to say the least, remarkable.

FALL AND WINTER STOCK

We now beg to call the attention of the Public to our New Lines just received in the following articles:

A NATION OF COWARDS

G. O. S. Conway, writing in the St. John's News, Q.B., says some very blunt things about Canada's action or rather lack of action in allowing the Americans to get all the best things in the Clondike.

"That for many years it has been my hope that I would not close my eyes, that I would not sink into the grave before I had seen Canada lifted up to the state of a nation well I may now die, for this day have I seen."

is condemned even by his friends for the black eye he has attempted to give the Canadian route in ignoring it for the death-trail via Skagway.

A QUICK CHANGE

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Boston Speech Recalled--Some Astonishing Contrasts
