GOLD COMMISSIONER'S REPORT

The Balance of the Revelstoke Recording District Described.

STANDARD BASIN

This is situated about 5 miles from the Keystone, and is a little higher, perhaps 700 or 800 feet. In this camp there have been 3 new locations recorded and 21 certificates of work issued during the past season. The locality has been brought into notice by the Boston and B. C. Copper Mining and Smelting Company, the property of which is by far the best developed of any in the neighbourhood. All arrangements for steady winter's work seemed complete, crummocks having been built, and an ample supply of provisions sent up, but, owing to some most unfortunate hitch in the Company, all work was suspended and the men discharged. The cause was certainly not the want of visible ore on the claim, as there is a very fine showing.

CARNIS CREEK

On this creek the principal set of claims is that known as the Rosebery Group, comprising 10 claims, all owned and being developed by the Carnis Creek Consolidated Co., Limited. Development work has been continued throughout the past season with a view to placing the property on a thorough working and producing basis. On the Rosebery itself an upper tunnel was driven to prove the lead, and continued for over 100 feet, assays being made frequently of the ore (crushed) parties, carrying gold, which were highly satisfactory. The lower tunnel was driven to prove the ore body continues for at least 200 feet from the surface, there should be a mine here in the near future. Very unfortunate for the Rosebery, however, the tunnel has been built on a fault, and the property, whilst a third tunnel has been commenced at a still lower depth, a large ore bin has been constructed to receive the output of the mine, and it is proposed to construct an actual roadway to a convenient point on the North Fork of Carnis Creek, whence the existing trail to the mouth of Carnis Creek can be readily widened for reaching the ore out to the Columbia River. Once there, river steamers can take it to Revelstoke, or connect with the C. P. R., or can pursue their way down the river to the mouth of the Columbia. The development of these claims has been prosecuted under unavoidably high transportation expenses. Seventeen certificates of work have been issued during the past year to claims other than the Rosebery Group, and 16 new locations recorded in this camp.

In the south-east of the Rosebery Group are located numerous small mineral claims held by individual prospectors, many of which, with the limited amount of work performed on them, show ore similar in character to that in the Rosebery, and being held at valuations which cannot long remain overlooked by mining capital. Extending from the Rosebery Group across the North Fork of Carnis Creek and up the slope across the ridge that separates Carnis Creek from Standard Basin is a mineral belt of iron capping with strong indications of copper, the greater portion of which is occupied by recent mineral locutions.

LAFORCE CREEK

This creek empties into the Columbia River about 8 miles south of Carnis Creek and 20 miles north of Revelstoke. There are 30 claims upon it, of which 11 were new locations last year. The claims are generally assayed in silver, copper and lead. The camp also contains ore very similar in appearance to the Rossland ore, and is certainly one of the promising camps of the Big Bend. In the immediate neighbourhood is the Adair or Eureka Group of claims, on which very considerable work has been done, especially on the Eureka claim, where over $2,000 are said to have been expended, and substantial preparations made for the more permanent development of the property next season. When work was concluded for this winter, the owners reported having tunneled into a vein of chalcopyrite over two feet thick.

JORDON PASS

No new locations have been recorded in this camp owing to the lateness of the season, which kept many of the localities beneath the snow all the summer. For the same reason very little actual development work was done, the assessments being performed by labour applied on trails, of which the number were built, and which will prove of the greatest service in the future by supplying much more convenient access to the claims.

ISAAC CREEK CAMP

This camp is situated some 12 miles from the mouth of Isaac Creek, which empties into the Columbia River about 10 miles south of Revelstoke. Some 14 new locations have been recorded, and 15 certificates of work issued for this camp during the past season.

The greatest amount of work performed on any one location was that done upon the Hecla, one of the Hecla Group, where a tunnel was run in 112 feet, which is expected to cut the ledge in another 40 feet, at a depth of 140 feet from the surface. Surface croppings from this group yielded an assay from $5 to $14 in gold values, and while these are not very high, yet the size of the leads and their character, which is chiefly arsenical pyrites, render it an extremely promising camp.

The following yearly statistics for the Division are reported by Mr. Fred Fraser, Mining Recorder:

NOTE AND COMMENT.

The Vancouver government organ, The World, admits the complete defeat of the Martin administration but is dropping hints that Mr. Martin may yet make an arrangement with some of the Independent members, which will enable him "to secure the strongest following in the present legislature." The HERALD does not know who these Independents may be, nor does the World condescend so far to details as to attempt to enumerate them. But it does know that this province distinctly declared on the 9th that it wanted no more of the smart aleck politics which placed Mr. Martin in power last session and has kept him there ever since. Mr. Martin must not be allowed to stand upon the order of his going. He must go at once.

If Sir Wilfrid Laurier's word goes for anything it is obvious that Mr. Martin's defeat drags Lieut. Governor McInnes down with him. He must go to. In every violation of the constitution, in every piece of political chicanery which Mr. Martin's perverted genius devised and his colossal impudence carried through, the Lieut. Governor has proved himself a ready tool and an eager accomplice. When he gave Mr. Martin the unlimited time for forming his cabinet, which he denied to others, when he accepted as his advisers and as ministers of the crown men of straw whom he knew were only selected at so much a month as stopgaps, when he signed warrants for public works of no immediate or vital necessity in contravention of the law, Mr. Innes displayed a partisanship, which only success could palliate. He has lost and must take the consequences. And the Laurier government need not go afield to search for his successor. The appointment of Mr. Bostock would be satisfactory even to that gentleman's political opponents and would go far to assist in restoring the confidence of the outside public in the stability of British Columbia from an administrative and financial standpoint.

Mr. Gilman in Vancouver, defeated Chas. Wilson the leader of the straight Conservatives, by six votes. The figures were 1402 to 1450. In such close polling as this there is room for a subsequent reversal of the count, which may yet leave Mr. Wilson in possession of one of the Vancouver seats. It was a subject of great regret on Saturday night that Mr. Wilson was left out. He is the recognized leader of the straight party line Conservatives, a section which fought a clean, straight fight in the contest and stood for an independent, progressive platform, under dictation of or obligation to neither clique nor corporation. In this election straight Conservatism stood for independence and progress. Mr. Wilson carried its standard nobly and was one of the very men needed in the legislature, to bring order out of chaos and introduce a general trend of legislation, which while working for the best interests of the people and favorable to their just demands, would yet maintain the prosperity of the province by avoiding a foolish and demagogic antagonism to capital. It is sincerely to be hoped that we may yet see Mr. Wilson filling a seat in the house and cabinet at the next session of parliament.

Another great loss was sustained by the province in the defeat of Hon. C. H. Mackintosh in Rossland. Mr. Mackintosh is a man, who has done more good work in bringing Rossland to the front than any other dozen men in the province put together. His election would have helped immensely to reinstate British Columbia in the eyes of investors. Had he been elected he must have come directly to the front as cabinet minister, perhaps as premier. All Kootenay would have hailed a summons to him to form a cabinet with delight. As free of any section in the now victorious opposition but yet having political affinities with a very large proportion, the preponderating proportion of its members, as a man with a big stake in the country, of conservative common sense and yet of progressive ideas and a staunch friend of the people, Mr. Mackintosh could have formed a strong and stable government party out of the opposition to Martin, or perhaps no other man of prominence among them can hope to do. He would have had a majority in the house, the full confidence of the province, and his talents and abilities would have been devoted to furthering the progress of the country and the welfare of the people together. The Nelson Miner calls the defeat of Mr. Mackintosh "The most striking piece of political insanity in the records of the province." This is strong language but British Columbia certainly owes a grudge to the frantic demagogues who in the supposed interests of labor robbed the province of Mr. Mackintosh's services and left progressive Conservatism at such a serious disadvantage as that in which it stands at present in the legislature of the province.

ROBERTS AND BULLER

Join Hands at Last—Registration of the Schreiner Disloyalists in Capetown—Serious Complications Expected in China—A Battle may be Fought Near Peking on Sunday.

LONDON, June 14.—The following from Lord Roberts is dated Pretoria, June 13.—The enemy evacuated their strong position during the night and retired eastward. Buller's forces and mine afforded each other mutual assistance. Details of the casualties have not reached me, but I understand they are moderate.

LONDON, June 14.—Gen. Buller reports that Gen. Lyttelton yesterday received the formal submission of the town and district of Wakkerstroom.

TIAN TSI, June 14.—An international force of marines, consisting of 915 British and 908 of the other powers, half way to Peking, was held up on account of the railway being torn up by Boxers and is not expected to reach Peking before Sunday. It is reported that 30,000 Chinese troops are outside the city to prevent their entrance. Guns have been trained on the British-American and Japanese Legations.

HONG KONG, June 14.—Four companies of the Hong Kong regiment and a mountain and field battery start for Tien Tsin tonight. The casualties are expected to sail on the Terrible on the 18th.

LONDON, June 15.—Mr. Schreiner, the Cape premier and his colleagues, resigned last evening. Sir Alfred Milner accepting their resignations.

Gen. Buller's casualties on June 10th were 23 killed, 120 wounded and 2 missing. None of the morning papers or the news agencies have a word from Peking direct today.

BIG STRIKE ON NETTIE L.

A Lead of Three Feet of Galena and Gray Copper in the South Drift.

Manager Pool of the Great Western Mining Ltd. stated on Wednesday the pleasing intelligence that another big strike of ore had been made on the Nettie L. The lead was uncovered in mining the south drift on the upper workings, which has the same characteristics as the lead in the Nettie L. There are three feet of galena and gray copper; and H. Morrison, of Ferguson reports the strike as the best yet made in the mine from personal inspection.

Echoes of the Fray

Tuesday's World in a double lead and a double victory. The party announced that Lieut. Governor McInnes may resign.

There is a Vancouver rumor that if Mr. McInnes resigns and if Mr. Bostock succeeds him, Mr. Martin will take the field for the Dominion House in this constituency. There are a good many "ifs" in this report. Eighteen candidates led $200 in the race—Fahnestock, Taylor, Lachore, Graham, Burnett, Ford, Fraser, and Bantson, among the Liberals; Raymer, Robertson and Higgins, Independents; MacClain, Williams and Dixon, Labor candidates; and Armstrong and Cosigan (Cons.) servative, while Wilkinson, Conservative, and Beebe, Martineau are still trembling in the balance.

There are some opposition and seven Martinites is the tally at present, but there is likely to be a recount in Vancouver and a protest against McInnes. So far a grand total of $2,000 has been made for the opposition and 17,000 for Martin.

The Isabella Kerr Concert.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Presbyterian church afforded to those present at their entertainment in the opera house on Tuesday night, a very pleasant evening's amusement. Miss Isabella Kerr, the Toronto elocutionist, filled the star role of the programme. Perhaps the Soul of the Violin was the best enjoyed of all her numbers. The talented young violinist, A. Mathews, was warmly welcomed on his first public appearance in Revelstoke since his illness. His pieces were greatly enjoyed and showed that his year's study in Toronto had rendered him a performer of immense promise. Both his numbers were loudly enjoyed. A guitar and mandolin solo by her husband, Mr. Taylor, E. Humphreys and J. G. Barber, and two songs by the popular leader of the Presbyterian church choir, S. L. Saunders were all well received and completed the programme. The entertainment deserved a better house than it got.

Junior Conservative Club.

The committee appointed by the Liberal-Conservative Association for the purpose of forming a Junior Conservative Club desire to meet all the young members of the party at 8 p. m. sharp on Tuesday evening at the association rooms, on the ground floor of the Oddfellows hall. An invitation is extended to all young Conservatives, who wish to join the club and have the use of the hall for recreation and reading room to be present.

City Poundkeeper Protests.

To the Editor of the HERALD:
Sir: Referring to an item in last issue of the HERALD offering a reward for untaxed dogs. This was inserted by the City Clerk, C. E. Shaw, without my knowledge or sanction. Unless Mr. Shaw acknowledges this through your paper it is my intention to prosecute him, as this is very damaging to me.
Yours truly,
ROYAL SAINSON.

Hurray For Taylor!

COMAPLIX, B. C.—When the news of Taylor's victory was announced three hearty cheers were given and the boys all went up to the Queen's and drank to Mr. Taylor's good health. A torch light procession headed by the Comaplix Brass Band, under the leadership of Cory Menhenick, marched through the town and after a few appropriate selections were played Mr. J. Lewis addressed the boys in a very able manner.

Lord Roberts

The Master of Men

By Julian Ralph

We who are in and with the army could feel an instant and bone deep change in the men around us when it became known that Field Marshal Lord Roberts was coming out to take of the forces.

The sentence "Bobs is coming" was like an abracadabra, opening the way ahead, levelling the kopjes, van-quishing the Boers, ending the tiresome disappointing struggle—all in anticipation, of course, and yet in an anticipation steel girded with confidence.

It was not only the men in the ranks who showed and exulted in this reinvigoration; their officers were just as certain that it was the master who was coming.

From that day to this I have made it my task to study this unique man, who is, I believe, more beloved and admired than any living man, trusted most implicitly, followed more unquestionably, and obeyed more cheerfully (especially when he sets his army the hardest task) than any living man of whom we have any knowledge.

Charms the Correspondents.

The first time the correspondents saw him was at a railway car window at Modder River. He sent for them and addressed them as one who speaks to friends. It seemed to them that he lifted every disability and brushed away every limitation which had hampered and almost crippled them in their work up to that time.
They were to write what they pleased, he said, and this was not to be censured. Only their telegrams would be scrutinized. They were to go wherever he went, wherever they willed to go.

Many had never seen him before, but all surrendered to the spell that surrounded the atmosphere around him—during this brief interview, in which he revealed that sympathy, trust, and frankness and beneath that breadth of view which are among his most marked traits. They looked on his face as upon the face of a Man-Leader: a man born to ride in the van of men, to be followed and obeyed.

To me his face suggests the front of a granite mountain, seamed, hard, battered by storm, stain, and racking change. It records acquaintance with every trial to which mortals are put, all suffered in the solitude of undivided responsibility. Care, worry, sickness, danger, unceasing reflection, all had left their marks there, yet all were written across a gentle, sympathetic countenance, never gay or merry, yet seldom stern, and wholly ignorant of passion.

I have known many great faces, but that of Lord Roberts is a face apart.
I fancy that, in the minds of their worshippers, some of the sober gods of the old mythologies had faces like his.

Delights the Attaches.

He was as frank and liberal in his welcome to the foreign attaches as he had been to the war correspondents.
The attaches had waited in Can-Town until he sent for them. They came, thinking that they were going to be shunted aside and left out of the excitement, as they had been with a lesser general elsewhere, in the field.

But when they met Lord Roberts he said in effect: "You are to do as you please and go where you like—only please do not get in the way of any bullets, as I am responsible for your safety."

One night at a private dinner tendered to him, Sir Alfred Milner, and Rudyard Kipling by Percival Landon, of the Times, H. A. Glynne, of Reuters, and James Barnes, of Harper's Magazine, and myself, he said, in effect, that as we shared the dangers of battle, exposure and hardship with the soldiers, he would like to ask:

"May I call you comrades?"

And at that dinner, when the roses hung over every man's head in token of the liberty with which all were entitled to speak, without fear of an echo reaching the outer world, I was told by one of his friends that Lord Roberts never objects to the publication of anything he says before a gathering of men, because it is his rule never to say anything that he would regret to have repeated.

"Little Bobs."

In person he is "Little Bobs." He is one of those small packages in which the gods have so often packed military genius, as if it were a rare commodity, not obtainable in bulk. He dresses in serge khaki, which, plain as that always must be, he renders the more plain by ridding it of all orders and decorations.

There are men on his own staff—there was even an American newspaper reporter with one of the armies —who wear a line and a half of ribbons. But the chief who is entitled to perhaps four lines, appears every day, for every duty and function, with a tunic as rare of decorations as that of any civilian. He is so neat and precise in his dress that I suspect he must have been a dandy in earlier life.
He is quick and nervous in his movements, and his constant habit is to thrust either one or both hands under his belt—a practice which makes it easy for artists to familiarize his figure with the public. He is instan-taneous and direct in conversation, and goes as straight to the point in view as a well aimed bullet to a target. I have noticed that when he meets new people he advances towards them eagerly, listens intently and in three minutes either engages the new acquaintance in earnest conversation or has done with him with a decisive nod of parting.

Lord Roberts' Court.

With the army in South Africa his headquarters form a court—almost as if he were a part of the Royalty he represents. You do not call upon him.
You sign your name in a book, and he sends for you later if he wants to see you. It may be a duke whom you find in the central salie of the residency—as it was in my case—and who offers the register for you to sign.

The Field Marshal works continuously, and to do so has to be free from interruption; therefore visitors meet him only at lunch or dinner. In Bloemfontein, where he was living, between walls, his table was a small one standing a few feet from the head of the very large long table at which sat his staff—his ponderous, impressive staff of distinguished men of the aristocracy. You dined with "Bobs" in khaki, of course, at his small table —if you were highly honored; or you may dine with his staff, and be presented to him after the meal for as long or brief an interview as he pleases.

That is precisely the amount and extent of state about his surroundings.
But all state vanishes when you touch the hand of "the Little Man," and talk with him about the two subjects which engross him—the war around him and politics at home.

A Keen Politician.

If you wonder that politics find such spacious lodgement as they do in his mind, you have not remembered how politics have affected him in his career as a general, here in South Africa—when he could have prevented this war by a vastly smaller one—in Kandahar, in many fields.

Lord Roberts never smokes tobacco, and with drink he has little to do. A glass of wine with two of the three meals suffice for him. He preaches temperance to his soldiers, and they all know that he shows no patience with those who drink to excess. He presides at meetings of the Army Temperance association and extols so-berity, but, like all broad minded men, he refrains from advocating the impossible—one form of which is total abstinence.

He has never been known to use an oath, and indeed, there must be comparatively few men whose religion influences them so deeply as does his in every affair of life. He never para-dizes his piety, never forces it upon those around him. Yet on every Sunday since he joined his army he has attended Divine service. Not a word has he spoken to his staff suggesting or ordering their presence—yet he is certain to attend the weekly service—an example to the army so modestly and so persistently presented that it cannot help but be powerful. When he took the sacrament at Bloemfontein, the other day, in the face, one might say, of the whole army, it was without a hint of the parading of religion.
All saw in it an act of simple faith.

It is almost as hard to reconcile his gentleness and sympathy with the firm—sometimes stern—course which a general so supreme in command, and at the head of so large an army, must often have to follow. I have asked many of his friends—how he can be both sorts of men at once—how he can possess traits which we imagine must war with one another.

"He does possess them, that's all," is the best answer I have had; "I don't know how, but he does."

Why We Like Him.

"He is all things to all men, in the best sense of the phrase," said one who knew him well. "He has the royal gift of remembering everybody, the humane quality of flawless tact, the superior, almost superhuman gift of justice. Good men like him because he is good; kindly men find a responsive chord in his nature; and those who are stern feel that he, too, is stern upon occasion." He has complimented a Tommy on his soldierliness in such a way as to win the man's loyalty to the end and surrender of his life, and on the very same day he has ordered home a general knowing that the order carried with it the ever enduring disgrace on a man who meant as well as himself, but had not the capacity to realize his ambition.

His army will do anything for him; march longer, starve harder; go without tents, blankets, and rum more days and weeks, and die in greater numbers, for him than any other man alive. They will do all these things willingly and gladly where other armies might protest and grumble and go ahead with sullenness. He can set more out an army, from the Guards down to the roughest scouting force (as he did between Modder River and Bloemfontein), than any Russian or German general could have extorted with iron discipline and adamant authority. It was the so-called "London pets"—the Guards—who broke all European records in a three days' march into the Free State. Instead of grumbling they made it a matter of boasting. Whenever other privates would dam another leader, Roberts' men say, simply: "Bobs knows what 'e's about." "Bobs will do the job."

It suffices the majority merely to sum him up with this phrase: "E is a man!" He can make no mistake that his army will recognize. Whatever he orders or does is regarded as the refection of superhuman inspiration.

How His Men Love Him.

Even if he fails he is certain to be considered infallible at the end. There may have been more than one Wellington at the head of Britain's armies in the past, but there has never been a previous Roberts—never in English history has there been such idolatry, or any such magnetic leader.

"The men feel that they know him and that he knows them," I was told.
"It is a case of love returned for love and admiration exchanged for admiration." He scrupulously returns the salute of every Tommy he meets. He speaks to hundreds about whatever he sees them doing, or whatever interests him or rouses his curiosity. He thinks whoever does anything for him and compliments all who are smart or soldier like in manner and brave in service. He knows the names of a multitude of men.

"Sometimes," said a general, "when I have been with him inspecting regiments in a new command, he has said:
'Now, in this regiment are those fellows who did so-and-so at Kabul, or Tirah, or anywhere. And he asks for them by name and talks to them. He is sharp on offenders, and can detect looting, defects in dress, misbehavior of any sort with so quick and keen an eye that the men feel—in this as in his courtesy—that he is one of them.
They know that he is to be reckoned with in every way."

"Loot."

We have all been slightly misled by the Boer word "commandering." It makes stealing seem less offensive—infact, under the new name of "com-mandering," stealing commands itself to many of us. Lord Roberts has been awfully down on it. He seems not to have caught the spirit in which we would not "steal" a pin have been commandeering Dutch Bibles, horses, and any other portables in our path. At a certain point on the Veldt one of Roberts' staff was riding ahead of the Field Marshal and saw a Canadian with two fat fowls hanging from his saddle.

"Here," said the officer, "where did you get these fowls?"

"Commandeered 'em, sir."

"Well, for goodness' sake, hide them.
Here's Lord Roberts just behind us.
He'd have you shot."

Up cantered Lord Roberts with his face troubled. "What is the man doing with those chickens?" he asked sternly.

"Sir," replied the staff officer, "he has understood that you are on very short rations, and he desires to offer the fowls for your dinner. He got them off a farmer close by."

"Why, how very kind," said the Field Marshal, pleased to the heart, and smiling warmly. "What is your name? I am very much obliged to you."

New, no more of that, do you hear?" the officer whispered to the Canadian, who rode away, leaving his plunder, and doubtless very glad to part with it as he did.

His Influence With Officers.

The officers are as anxious to please the Field Marshal as the men, and one class thinks no less of his genius and his marvellous personality than the other. Those who are near to him say that when he is talking to an officer about his work, "he makes you feel that you have his entire confidence, and that he believes you will do the business better than any one else could do it. But, if you do it wrong he will tell you so frankly, and will point out the why and wherefore of his displeasure. And I don't envy the feelings of a man who knows he has displeased the chief." In using man he is as broad as the sky. His estimate of a man's fitness or value for whatever purpose he needs him is never in the least affected by any knowledge he may have of irregularities in the man's private life.
Above all else, "Bobs" is a man of action. His life is all activity, and his mind works with his body—that is, in the heat of affairs and of movement his brain is coolest and works most quickly. His compact, nervey little body is all a reservoir of strength, and you can speak of his physique of a giant. Indeed, he lives on his nerve and draws upon his strength, as if both were inexhaust-ible. He will sit and write for 10 days on end, dealing with a multitude of varied subjects—civil, military, covering the enormous range of view of a soldier, and an administrator; and then, if the need comes, he will bounce on a horse and ride 50 or 60 miles, tiring lieutenants whose lives are spent in the saddle.

"Plain Livers and High Thinkers."

He lives very plainly, asking for few comforts and no luxuries. When he visited Modder River he found Lord Methuen established in the hotel, and that general had been at the pains to clear out a part of the building and appoint it for the Field Marshal's lodgings. But Lord Roberts, thanked him, and remarked that he had ordered his tent to be set on the veldt, and that there he meant to stay.
When his army is in motion, marching and fighting, he travels with a covered wagon and a tent, the first being his house and the second his workroom. The wagon is a light four wheeled contrivance whose top is a roomy and complete enclosure and defence against rain and cold wind. On the side board is painted "F. M. Lord Roberts," so that we may all know it when it comes along.

Such is the famous "Bobs"—like so many other men at so many points, so ordinary in a hundred little human ways, yet so separated from us all in other respects—in other respects which seem to us superhuman, that are antagonistic to much of what we know of him, that are inscrutable, that seem illogical when we try to account for him.

"Marie, our new cook's cooking is horrible!" "Oh, George, do look up her as Lenten discipline and let's say no more about it."

At the Love—"You dreadfully stout the general is getting!" "Yes, isn't it fortunate? Otherwise he wouldn't be able to wear all his medals!"

"What do you mean by a 'hypothetical question'?" "Why, it's one of these questions they ask you when you're trying to keep off a jury."

Jack: "Let's bet on the game." "If we win, I marry you." Mary: "And you can dance, so suppose we have The Double Eagle Company has been formed for the purpose, not only of mining its present properties but of acquiring promising claims and developing them to an extent that will justify their sale to English and other companies at a profit. The company already owns and has paid for in full, the Trilby and Old Saul properties in the famous Fish River district, and a three-quarters interest in the May Bee mine, in the Laramie district one and a half miles from Ferguson. Sufficient promoter's shares have been set aside for the purchase of the remaining quarter.

The May Bee is the sister claim to the now famous Nettie L, which has broken all records in British Columbia for large bodies of phenomenally rich ore. The May Bee and Nettie L were located together in 1892 by Mr. W. B. Pool (who has been appointed manager of the Double Eagle Co.) Both claims carry identically rich ore on the surface and the same remarkable ledge runs through both, carrying high values old, copper, silver and lead. The promoters have already spent $4,000 in developing the May Bee, with excellent results, and in order to place the mine quickly on a shipping basis the company now offers the public an opportunity of investing to a limited extent in fully paid and non-assessable treasury shares (par value at 10 cents each.

Shares will be sold in blocks of 100 and upwards.

The company reserves the right to withdraw the sale of shares from the market at any time without notice.

War News

Lorenzo Marques, June 9.—United States Consul Hollis, who returned here yesterday from the Transvaal, had a two hours' interview with President Kruger at Macadrop. It is stated Mr. Hollis was the bearer of friendly despatches from the United States government urging Mr. Kruger to treat for peace.

Cape Town, June 9.—General Warren with a strong force, including the Canadian artillery, is reaching through Griqualand West. He encamped at Campbell yesterday, no opposition being offered. Numbers of rebels are handing in their arms to the British commander.

Mafeking, May 29.—Colonel Plumer occupied Zeerust yesterday without opposition. This district is regaining its normal condition. Supplies are arriving daily.

Hammonton, Orange River Colony, June 8.—General Kundle made a strong demonstration against the Boer position employing 500 of General Brabant's Queenstown mounted rifles, two guns and the Cape mounted infantry under Colonel Dalgetty. The Boer outposts were driven back and their laager was located, but the troops returned without a battle.

London, June 9.—The dribbles of news from the Transvaal do not throw much light on the situation in and around Pretoria.

Interest is largely felt in the fate of the British prisoners, but it seems probable that about 3,500 have been recovered, including 920 officers. The Federals have removed about a thousand as hostages.

The Lorenzo Marques despatch to the effect that United States Consul Hollis has been conferring with President Kruger is creating some comment, but in view of the Associated Press Washington despatch there is little disposition to regard Mr. Hollis' message in any way official.

A special from Pretoria says curiously enough the only shell that broke in the town the day prior to the occupation of Pretoria hit the United States consulate.

A despatch from Cape Town announces the work of organizing the government of the Transvaal is proceeding. A portion of Sir Alfred Milner's staff has gone to Pretoria to start the machinery, so the proclamation of the annexation of the Transvaal may be speedily expected.

A special from Pretoria describes the visit made by officers of Lord Roberts' staff to the presidency on the 6th of June. It says we were received by a Dutch pastor and were shortly joined by Mrs. Kruger. The lady wore a black silk dress and a white cap. She composedly exchanged greetings with her visitors who notified her of their intentions to replace the burgher guard by a guard of British troops. The burghers thereupon laid down their arms near the lions guarding the entrance.

London, June 9.—General Buller has at length taken the offensive and by manoeuvring, he has secured a position west of Laing's Nek, by which he believes he can make the Boer position untenable. Presumably he will immediately follow up his success.

Lord Roberts has communicated nothing for three days nor permitted the correspondents to wire what is going on.

London's inference is that he is waiting, although it is possible that he is disposing his army for a reach after Commandant General Botha.

There is a blockade of the wires owing to the rush of official correspondence, which may account for the scanty press despatches.

London, June 9.—The war office has received the following from General Buller: "Yellow Boom Farm, June 8.—On June 6, General Buller's force, with the 10th brigade and the South African Light horse seized Van Wyke's hill and the enemy made some resistance and a good deal of sniping occurred. Our casualties were about four killed and 13 wounded. During that day and the following, we got two 4.7 and two 12 pounder naval guns to Van Wyke's hill and two five inch guns on to the south western spur of Inkwelo. Under cover of their fire General Hildyard today assaulted all the spurs of the berg between Botha's Pass and Inkwelo. The attack was planned by Hildyard and carried out with immense dash by the troops, for whom no mountains were too steep. They outflanked the enemy who were forced to retire from their very strong positions. I think we did not have any casualties and I hope I have obtained a position from which I can render Laing's Nek untenable."

Pretoria, June 5.—(Delayed in transmission)—Pretoria surrendered last night after the forts had been bombarded a day by siege guns. General Hamilton, on the left, seized a ridge of hills, and Witwatersburg on the extreme right of the enemy's position was captured by the Gordon's and Cornwall's, who held the ridge at the west of the enemy's position. The Australian lancers and mounted infantry galloped down a ravine between the ridges and turned the Boers' flank. Two hundred British officers who were prisoners were released. It is reported that the rest are at Waterval. A portion of the army, including the Canadians, marched past the court house. It was a magnificent spectacle.

London, June 11.—The war office has received the following despatch from Sir Redvers Buller: "Headquarters in Natal, June 9.—With reference to my message of June 8 we halted yesterday to go over by train up the pass which is very steep. I find the enemy were about 2,000 strong in a carefully prepared position which they must have been very disappointed not to have held longer than they did. Have all retired and are 25 miles to the north west. I find our casualties were more than I first thought. They were one officer wounded and two men killed and 12 wounded."

General Sir Forrester Walker wires to the war office from Cape Town under yesterday's date: "Information received from natives early yesterday (Saturday) reports the enemy in three columns near Honing Spruit. The railway has been almost completely destroyed between America and Rooval."

It is reported in London that Lord Roberts has imprisoned on the race course all the male residents at Pretoria.

London, June 12.—The fourth battalion of the Derbyshire regiment, which was guarding Lord Roberts' line of communication at Rooval, has been wiped out, all the men being either killed, wounded or taken prisoners except six. Lieutenant Bianchi, of the Canadian infantry, was among the wounded.

Lord Methuen reports having successfully engaged an army of the enemy 10 miles from Hellbron on Sunday. Heavy fighting is expected in Basutoland, where the Boers are rallying. British troops to the number of 50,000 men are rapidly closing in on the marauding Boers in the vicinity of Kronstadt and it is expected that they will soon be crushed.

At Ficksburg 1,000 Boers have surrendered to General Brabant. It is officially announced that President Kruger has located his capital at Marchdorp, where he has a body guard of 1,000 men and is rapidly collecting stores.

London, June 12.—Fifty thousand British troops are within 50 miles of the marauding Boers north of Kronstadt, and they are expected, of course, to make short work of them. Nevertheless, outside of the slender war office advice no one knows what is going on. South of Kronstadt there is a wide gap. The railway is only partially defended and as General Kelly Kenny has hurried the available troops northward the assumption is that there is danger of a second raid. The loss of the Derbyshires is estimated at from 600 to 700 men.

A Reuter despatch from Maseru, dated June 11, says: "Fifteen hundred Boers surrendered to General Brabant today in the Ficksburg district."

Marchdorp has been finally proclaimed the capital of the Transvaal. A Lorenzo Marques despatch says that the village of Marchdorp has swollen into a small city, the majority of the inhabitants living in tents.

An official Boer telegram asserts that the British have been defeated with considerable loss at Donkerfontein, in the southern extremity of the Free State, 10 miles from Norval's Point. It was thought this district had been cleared of Boers and rebels long ago. The Boers still cling to Laing's Nek, but General Buller's forces are still working around in that direction.

Lord Roberts has wired Cape Town that prior to Wednesday he liberated 251 officers and 3,500 of the rank and file. The Boers consequently took off only 900 prisoners.

There is still scarcity of food at Mafeking, but the railway is repaired. Seventy-two rebels have been arrested in the Vryburg and Mafeking districts. Sixty-five were marched into Mafeking.

All of General Carrington's force had landed at Beira a week ago. The organization to invade the Transvaal from the north is already far advanced.

Ventersdorp, June 11.—Two hundred and fifty Boers have surrendered to General Hunter and the remainder in this district have promised to give up their arms.

London, June 12.—The Lorenzo Marques correspondent of the Times says: "At Marchdorp President Kruger has a body guard of 1,000 burghers. Stores are being moved as quickly as possible from this point to Lydenburg. The Portuguese authorities have sent a further body of troops to the border of their territory."

London, June 12.—General Sir Frederick Forrester Walker reports that in the disaster to the British troops on June 7 at Rooval, where the Boers cut Lord Roberts' line of communications, the fourth battalion of the Derbyshire regiment were all killed, or wounded or taken prisoners, except six. It is inferred that the Boers captured over 500 men and as late as June 10 were cutting off the British forces north of Kronstadt from reinforcements.

The news that the cutting off of Lord Roberts' communications with the outside world was accompanied by such a serious loss came like a thunder bolt from a comparatively clear sky. In London tonight the news came, it had been thought that the destruction of the railway had been accomplished by Free Staters who were avoiding rather than annihilating the British regiments stationed at the point attacked. The Boers appear to be sufficiently strong to separate all the British forces north and south of a long stretch between Rooval and Hellbron.

The Templar Publishing company, of Hamilton, has been dissolved by the court, and $40,000 of shares cancelled.

THE CHINESE TROUBLE

Tien Sing, June 9.—It is reported from Chinese official sources that 4,000 Boxers surrounded 1,500 Chinese troops between Iofa and Yang Tsin yesterday. Fighting is still going on this morning. Five hundred Boxers were killed, but the despatch gives no account of the Chinese loss. Thirty of General Niep's troops encountered a body of Boxers three miles from here on the Taku road and killed 21 of them.

The French cruisers Denter Casteau and Jean Bart, and the Russian cruiser Russla have arrived at Taku.

DEATH IN ARISTOCRACY

London, June 8.—Henry Wellesley, third Duke of Wellington, died at Stratfield House, Mortimer, Berkshire, yesterday morning in the 55th year of his age.

RUMORS OF WAR

New York, June 9.—The possibility of war between Japan and Russia and the effect of the rumors on the financial world are discussed rather fully in The Herald today. Its London correspondent cables the anxiety from events in the far east spread yesterday still further. Over and over again the opinion was expressed that nothing could avert war between Japan and Russia. In diplomatic circles nothing else was talked about. There exists in financial circles all the preliminary of a panic. Public sentiment is urging the government to take more active interest in Chinese developments.

THE WORK OF IMMIGRATION

A Real Estate Agent Gives His Views to a Journal in Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, June 7.—Alex Plimpton, Canadian real estate agent, who has been looking over the twin cities for a few days, has given some interesting figures concerning the money his government annually spends in its emigration campaign in this country. Mr. Plimpton says Americans are not really converted into Canadian subjects, and he regards the effort made by his government as a foolish one so far as the United States is concerned. Mr. Plimpton asserts that not more than 1,000 actual home-stead entries can be traced to citizens induced to settle in Canada, who formerly lived in the United States, although the records of the department officers show ten times that number. The Canadian government pays salaries and commissions on emigration business and has some 250 agents at work in the various states. Some of the agents receive both salaries and commission and make a very good thing out of the work. For example, the agent at Stevon's Point gets $1,200 a year and last year his commissions amounted to $1,500 more. The agent at Kansas City gets $75 per month salary and he also has a nice expense account. A great majority of the agents, however, are paid commissions at the rate of $3 per head for male emigrants, and $2 for female emigrants, over 18 years of age, and $2 each for all others. Mr. Plimpton says the total cost of immigration in Canada last year amounted in appropriations to more than $350,000.

"Poor old General Dehilly," exclaimed Mrs. Partridge, "it is surprising how long he lives, and what excitement his illness creates; the papers are full of remedies for him."

She: "So you have crossed the ocean 64 times. You must be getting used to it." He: "Yes, considerably. I have lately got so that I can recognize half the waves we meet."

HORRIBLE MURDERS

A Family of Eight Killed and Mutilated with an Axe by the Hired Man, Near Moosomin

Moosomin, Assa., June 11.—One of the most horrible and shocking tragedies in the annals of Western Canada was enacted about 14 miles from this town about 12 or 1 o'clock Saturday morning, when Alexander McArthur, postmaster of Welwyn, and eight members of his family were brutally butchered. Mrs. McArthur and two boys were killed outright. Mr. McArthur and Russell McArthur have since died, and three other members of the family lie at the point of death. The eldest daughter, a girl of some 15 years, escaped. The story of the murder is as follows: The hired man, one John Morrison, confesses to have done the act. Friday evening he was playing football some four miles from the place he was working at, and left for his home at McArthur about half past eleven. It would seem as though he had made up his mind to kill the family as he took off his boots outside of the entrance to the house and had an axe with him. From the porch he entered into a kitchen. On the north west corner of the house is a double bed room with beds in the north west corner and south west corner, leaving a space between the two beds of some five feet in which was a cot. Mr. McArthur occupied the bed in the north west corner, and was apparently lying on the right side. In bed with him was a little boy of 4 or 5 years. The other was occupied by Mrs. McArthur and her babe of about two weeks, and at the foot of the same bed slept a little girl of about 7 years. On the cot before mentioned slept a little boy of about 3 years. It is apparent that Mr. McArthur was struck first, and on the right side of the head with the back of the axe. From all appearances he never moved after being struck. Whether Mrs. McArthur or the little boy was the next victim matters not, but the little boy who slept with his father, was struck over the left eye and from the ugly gash left must have been struck with the sharp part of the axe. The little fellow cannot recover. Mrs. McArthur received four blows. The right ear was partially cut. There is a gash on the head, another over the right eye, and a deep cut on the skull as though done with the blade of an axe. The blow at the baby was not very well aimed, as there is a gash about two inches about the temple and partly through the skull. Neither was the blow aimed at the little girl sleeping with her mother, very exact, as from the marks left it would appear as though he intended to strike with the blade of the axe, but miscalculating the distance, the blade overreached its mark and struck with the handle of the axe on the neck. From those he seems to have gone to the little boy in the cot. There is no skull wound on the child, but the whole side of the face is black and bruised and apparently was struck with the flat of an axe. The murderer thought six of his witnesses were now dead, and yet he was not satisfied, for he went upstairs where the other members of the family were sleeping. Upstairs, turning to the left and immediately to the right, are to other bedrooms. In the first slept the oldest boy of the family, about 13 years, and Morrison's bedroom. He was found lying on his face with a gash about 5 inches long and one inch deep near the middle of his head. Of this room was another occupied by the elder girl of the family, some 15 years, and her brother, about 11 years. The boy was Morrison's last victim and was found lying on the floor with his face lying on his hand. On the back of the hand was a deep hole, likely made with the corner blade of an axe. McArthur's life was short. When the police returned to the place they began to search for the murderer and found Morrison with a bad flesh wound as if he had tried to carry out his previous intention of self destruction. Beside him was a revolver with three cartridges and the hammer pulled, a double barrel shot gun with the right barrel discharged and the axe with which he had done his bloody work. His recovery is doubtful, but he was able to be moved and was taken to Moosomin in charge of Sergeant McInnes and lodged at the barracks.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT

Ottawa, June 12.—In the house of commons yesterday the reply of the Hon. Mr. Mills, minister of justice, to the suggestions of Sir Charles Tupper in regard to the election commission was read, in which Mr. Mills pronounced all of the suggestions as being without value. Sir Charles expressed himself as being disappointed and Mr. Blair replied at some length. The committee reported the eighth and measures bill, into which a clause has been introduced providing for a standard weight and length for binder twine. The premier gave notice that he would bring down a bill dealing with Chinese immigration. On a motion to go into supply Sir Hilbert again brought up the Yukon matters, and wanted an investigation. Mr. Sutherland replied that an investigation had already been held.

"Do all your employees drop their tools the instant the whistle blows?" "Oh, no, not all of them. The more orderly ones of them have their tools put away before that time."

A powerful argument in favor of the government ownership of railways comes from Norway. On the state railway in that country married couples are allowed to ride together for a fare and a half. It might however be advisable for advocates of government ownership using this argument, to make up their minds which of the couple is supposed to be the half, before propounding it to a mixed audience.

A prominent B. C. Conservative told the HERALD the other day that he did not look for a general Dominion election this year. In his opinion the Laurier government will arrange to have the census taken as early in 1931 as possible, that a redistribution bill based on the figures of the census will be introduced at a session called as soon as the returns are complete and that then the house would be dissolved.

To the Ratepayers

Don't forget that the improvements to the city for 1930 will be decided on Monday next by your vote.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Subscription Lists Opened for the Relief Famine Fund.

At the Epworth League in the Methodist church on Monday night E. Baker gave a fine biographical sketch of Saul, the first King of Israel. Mr. Johnson did the same for Joseph, recommending the sterling qualities of character seen in Joseph for the imitation of all young men.

At the close of the regular meeting Rev. S. J. Thompson, the pastor of the church, introduced the question of the India Famine Fund. A committee of three were appointed to prepare subscription lists, and Messrs. H. L. Lovering, F. Baker, W. Savage and W. Bews, with Misses McIntyre, Glover, Sawyer and Carlson were appointed collectors. F. Baker is the treasurer of the League and will duly keep account of all monies paid and see to the forwarding of the money through safest channels to the Missionaries who are laboring in India in the famine district, who will administer the relief to the most needy.

Subscription lists will be held at Field & Bews store on First street, and at Savage Bros store on Second street, for the convenience of any who may wish to aid in this noble effort of the young people of the Epworth League.

A Faulty Ballot.

Under the above caption the Columbian comments very severely on methods adopted by the Martin government in the election to destroy the secrecy of the ballot, even hinting at ballot box stuffing in that city. However the last charge may be, what it says about the ballot papers is certainly correct: "In New Westminster at any rate, there was no secrecy about it, but the mark of every elector could be seen by the deputy returning officers and the scrutineers, according to statements made to The Columbian on reliable authority. The cross made by the elector, it seems could be plainly seen through the ballot paper, when it was exhibited to the deputy returning officer for verification of the official mark."

As every elector must have been able to notice for himself the paper on which the ballots were printed was of the thinnest possible kind, the surface was glazed rendering it difficult to make a mark with a pencil without leaning heavily on it and the pencils were of the hardest variety made. Everything conspired together to make it absolutely impossible to mark the ballot without the cross showing through on the opposite side.
