THE CITY COUNCIL

The First Meeting of the City Fathers-elect for 1902—The Committees for the Coming Year Arranged by the Mayor.

The new council held its first meeting according to statute on Monday evening.
Present the Mayor, Ald.
McLeod, Hume, Taylor, McMahon, Law and Manning.

The first proceeding was the swearing in of Ald. Taylor, McLeod, Law and McMahon by his worship.

The Mayor said in opening the meeting that the council would have a number of important transactions to be considered. It would be necessary for the committees to do their work in order to get these matters disposed off promptly and harmoniously. He hoped the council would work together and that the friction of former years would be avoided. He then declared the council open for business.

COMMUNICATIONS

J. Savage applied for position of janitor of city firehalls, referred P. W. committee; Government Agent re account for keep of prisoners, referred Finance committee; School Trustees asked for use of council chamber for their meetings, granted by resolution; Gordon Dill, book agent, protested against the prohibitory license required by the city bylaws, filed.

PETITIONS

From Ward II asking to revert to old pit system, the present system being in their opinion a most unsanitary one. Another of the same tenor was read from Ward I. The two petitions were signed by 82 names.
The clauses in the Health Bylaw relating to this point were read and the medical health officer was called on who said that he was opposed to the pit system and considered that the present system, if carried out properly, was better. As it is the bylaw is not enforced. The city scavenger had only about 80 houses which had adopted it. People objected to the system as unnecessary and expensive.
The council should decide whether to enforce the bylaw or revert to the pit system. He did not think there was as much danger in Revelstoke from the pit system as in other places owing to the porous soil and the absence of surface wells. Still he thought it a dangerous and repulsive system and he would urge the council to take immediate action. The scavenger had thrown up his job because he did not have enough houses on his list to make it worth his while. Something had to be done and if the council did not come to some decision tonight, he would have to do so himself.

J. C. Hutchison said the reason he quit the job was that there was not enough work to make it worth his while to keep it on. A great many of the names on the petitions had had the work done and never paid for it.
He did not think there was any kick coming to them.

Ald. Taylor thought the bylaw was all right, if people would comply with it.

Ald. McLeod supported the pit system. Kamloops had to drop the box system. The ratepayers had asked for the bylaw to be changed and their ideas should be complied with.

Ald. Manning said the box system had been proved a failure in several eastern towns. Half the expense of disinfectants, with the pit system which the scavengers fees amounted to would render the pit system quite sanitary and far cleaner than the box system. In the winter the box system was an impossibility.

Ald. Taylor supported Ald. Manning and McLeod.

Ald. Hume said the existing grievance arose from the neglect of the present bylaw. He believed in the box system but it had never been given a fair trial in Revelstoke.

Ald. McMahon said that even when the boxes were cleaned once a month the system was unclean. With a little trouble the pits worked very well.

Dr. Carruthers said he believed that the pit system could be made tolerably safe in this town but there ought to be one system or the other adopted.

The mayor thought that there should be a wider expression of opinion on the subject than 80 names.

Moved Ald. McLeod, seconded Ald.
Manning that the health officer be instructed to get all boxes cleaned at the expense of occupants in accordance with bylaw No. 1. Carried.

Moved Ald. Law, seconded Ald.
Manning that tenders be received at the next regular meeting for the appointment of health officer.
Carried.

MOTIONS

Moved Ald. Hume, seconded Ald.
McLeod that the note for $3000 authorised by the bylaw to be borrowed from the Molson's bank be renewed and the time for payment extended to June 1902, with interest at the rate of 5%.

INQUIRIES

His worship asked the F. W. & L. committee to have a report prepared for the next regular meeting on the fire alarm system, whether to amend it or abolish it altogether and put something else in its place.

After reading some accounts and listening to an eloquent plea for a safe from the city clerk, it was resolved to pay the Smelter Co. $25 for ground rent of the land on which the small pox pest house stands and to burn the pest house.

Big Bend Mica.

The British Columbia Review, of London, Eng., chronicles the fact that a shipment of mica had lately been received there from near Revelstoke, in this province. The quality, adds the Review, is said to be unusually good and the deposit is to be worked on a large scale. Mica deposits, where the product of the latter kind, are quite valuable. There is a deposit in Cochrane which is said to be the largest in the world. Sheets of mica usually size almost as clear as glass, can be obtained from it. The inaccessibility of the deposit, however prevents it from being utilized. When Cochrane is given railway facilities the deposit will be worked and another important resource added to those of the pit village.

WHAT MR. DUNSMUIR FORGOT TO SAY

The reference to the mining industry in Mr. Dunsmuir's manifesto is characteristic. Characteristic that is not more particularly of Mr. Dunsmuir or Mr. Dunsmuir's administration than of the whole tone of the ideas with regard to this important industry prevalent in the atmosphere at Victoria. The only mention made of it is in connection with taxation. It is true that this time there is a hint of reduction, a suggestion that it is gradually dawning on the Victorian intellect that the mining districts are not a kind of Tom Tiddler's ground, where all that one has to do is to go around "picking up gold and silver," a vague suspicion that there are possibly mines and mines and that every kind of mining is not surrounded by exactly similar conditions and perhaps not equally amenable to a cast iron flat rate of taxation. These are cheering symptoms of a coming lucid interval in the dealings of our governments with the mining interests. At the same time the fact remains that the only aspect under which the industry presents itself is that of something to be taxed. The idea that it requires to be assisted or fostered in any way by the government has not risen above the Victorian intellectual horizon.

Of course in a manifesto like Premier Dunsmuir's it was not possible to go very extensively into detail. The HERALD will suppose for the sake of argument that he had forgotten to insert in his open letter that fine old eructed gag about doing everything in his power to further the interests of the mining industry and will venture to suggest certain lines along which he might have stated that his government intended to proceed under this head. Something after the following style would be very much in order:

"I cannot fail to recognize the fact that the mining industry of British Columbia is at once the most important in the province and the one to which in the past the least attention has been paid by our administrations. I propose to make a great change in this particular in the future and I would like to enumerate certain methods by which I intend to assist and foster this industry, if I remain in office."

1. Our mineral resources in the first place are not half advertised. We have fallen into the error of imagining that because we know something about them in British Columbia, the outside public is as well acquainted with them as ourselves. I propose to do something to remedy this defect by taking a leaf out of the book of Manitoba. A very usual and effective method employed by that province to advertise its agricultural resources is to despatch through the other provinces of the Dominion and the states of the Union, from which settlers are likely to come, railway cars filled with an exhibit of the grain, grasses and vegetables of the province. This expedient has never failed to attract great attention and to bring settlers into the province. As an object lesson it is worth all the printed literature ever published, though the latter is useful as an handmaid and adjunct of the cars and serves as a lasting memorial of their visit. I propose to fill two cars, one with an exhibit of ores from Kootenay and the Boundary and one with another from the other mining sections of the province and send them, accompanied by good talkers, well informed on mining matters in the province, through the mining states and centres of capital in the United States and I believe their tour will be of great advantage by opening the eyes of the mining men and capitalists in America to the wonderful richness and variety of the mineral resources of British Columbia.

2. Under the same heading of advertisement I intend to make our annual mining report of a broader scope than at present. Instead of a mere chronicle of the doings in the different camps, it will contain in future articles containing information to mining men of a general character on the nature of the mineral discoveries already made in the province and on the reasonable expectations which may be formed for the future from what is already definitely ascertained. We know enough now to be able to direct capital as to the sections, in which the permanency of the leads has been fairly established and the nature and character of the ore likely to be found in this camp or that. The mining report of the province of Ontario contains articles along these lines which stamped as they are with the weight of government approval, give a very clear idea to mining men whereabouts in the province to go for what they require.

3. In another way also I intend to take Ontario for my model. Their bureau of Mines acts as a means of information to the mining men and prospectors of the province with regard to markets for their ore, prices, demand and so on, particularly with regard to the less known minerals, many of which modern manufacturing methods and inventions are calling for with continually increasing urgency. It also forms an obvious and recognized agency through which mining men and buyers can get information as to where they can purchase the ores and minerals immediately required by the market. The monthly bulletins issued by the bureau through their assay office at Belleville form the medium of communication on these practical topics and also furnish timely and valuable information on the mineralogy of the less known minerals in demand from time to time. I propose to initiate the Ontario government in this respect by establishing a sub-office of the Dept. of Mines at some suitable point in Kootenay with a complete assaying outfit in connection and a thoroughly qualified man in charge, whose business it will be to keep in constant touch with mining matters and by means of monthly bulletins furnish information on every possible point which in his opinion will be valuable to the mining men of the province. I propose that this office shall contain the best and most complete collection of British Columbian ores that can be made and a second equally comprehensive collection of specimens of all the ores and minerals in demand in the market, which are not well known to our miners and prospectors. A well selected exhibit of these latter will also be placed on view in every recording office in the province.

4. The fourth method of assisting the mining industry which I intend to adopt will be borrowed from Australia. A number of professors and experts in mineralogy will be engaged, who will travel through the province giving classes in that science, which will be free to the public. The object of these classes will be the instruction of our miners and prospectors and the course will be altogether of a practical nature, chiefly on the simpler methods of analysis and determination of the character of the minerals encountered by them in their daily occupations. In Australia almost every man in a mining camp understands the use of the blowpipe and the easily feasible methods of determining the qualitative nature of ores in the field. This knowledge has been gained by them through attending the travelling schools of mining established by the government and the result is that very little ore or mineral of any value escapes notice. The system has been found to be a great assistance to the progress of the industry in Australia and I intend to adopt it in British Columbia.

The above are the methods, which I mean to put into operation at once, to further the mining interests of the province. None of them will prove very costly with the exception of the last and that I expect will soon begin to repay the province for any outlay incurred on its behalf. None of them are merely theoretical. They are all in active operation and have proved

MOLYBDENUM

Another Extract From the Monthly Bulletin Issued by the Ontario Bureau of Mines.

The following extract from the monthly bulletin issued by the Ontario Bureau of Mines is of interest, partly because the information contained in it with regard to molybdenum is just what our own miners and prospectors are asking for and partly as an illustration of one way in which a government, which is really alive to the importance of the mining industry can help it out in its early stages:

"The following enquiries of general interest have been received. Letters in reply from mine owners and prospectors will be forwarded to proper parties or addresses given free of charge.

"Two American metallurgical and chemical works utilizing raw material, offer current prices for molybdenite, a free from rock matter and other objectionable mineral as possible.

"A New York dealer in minerals for school purposes, etc. will purchase molybdenite, wolfram (tungsten) and other uncommon ores, both for home trade and export.

"A Chicago dealer in oils, lubricants, etc., asks for information regarding deposits of ozokerite or gilsonite in Ontario.

"The Assay office is preparing a list of factories, chemical and metallurgical works, dealers, etc., in the United States, Great Britain, Germany and France which use ores and minerals known to occur in Ontario.

"The list will also include uses and approximate market values of minerals at present commercially valuable.

"Molybdenite or sulphide of molybdenum having the composition Mo S2 and containing about 50 per cent of the metal molybdenum when pure is at present of commercial value.

"Its chief use is as an alloy, ferromolybdenum, which, according to the reports of expert iron masters, gives toughness to steel combined with the property of selfhardening, acting in many respects like ferro-tungsten. It is also used in making molybdic acid and other commercial chemicals, some of which are said to be used at present in dye works. Present production does not equal the demand and market values run from 10cts. to 30cts. per lb. It is found in numerous localities in Eastern Ontario associated with sulphates, such as pyrite and pyrrhotite and also occurs in small segregations in galenite.

"It is steel gray color, soft and greasy, marking on paper and generally found in flakes or scale. It resembles graphite, but is heavier, lighter in color, and gives a sulphur reaction with silver coin after fusing with soda carbonate.

"Large beds of this valuable mineral might prove profitable by a system of concentration as the demand is not likely to decrease.

Remember the hospital ball on the 21st inst. Everybody welcome. A charge of 50 cents will be made for spectators occupying the gallery, which will include supper.

Inquest on Death of W. Stephens

Dr. Cross, coroner, held an inquest into the cause of the death of W. B. Stephens in the C. P. R. railway yard last Friday morning. The following jury were empanelled: W. R. Reid, foreman, C. R. MacDonald, R. S. Wilson, J. Morgan, J. Guy Barber, T. W. Bain. The witnesses examined were Fred Somes, yardmaster, Nels. P. Anderson, section foreman, and J. W. Bennett, tobacconist. None of them added any fresh facts to the published reports except perhaps Mr. Bennett, who stated that the deceased had only just escaped being run over by the No. 2 as it came in to the station a short while previously that same morning.

The jury brought in a verdict that the deceased came to his death by being run over by a sleeping car in the C. P. R. yard, while walking down the centre of the track and no blame could be attached to the C. P. R. or any of their employees.
