

EIGHTH YEAR.

NELSON: WEDNESDAY MORNING JUNE 6 1900.

PRICE FIVE CENTS

HOW THE PLOT WAS FOILED

Full Court Proceedings.

The attempt at wholesale disfranchisement, which candidate Fletcher's supporters attempted in the Nelson riding has failed. This news was conveyed to Nelson yesterday in a number of telegrams, and later was confirmed by a telegram from A. E. Beck, registrar of the supreme court at Vancouver, and addressed to Harry Wright, in which he advised the collector of votes that the full court had allowed the appeal from the prohibition order of justice Drake. The news of their victory was received with great rejoicing by the supporters of candidate Houston, the conviction being general that such a fair expression of the voice of the electorate will add 300 to their candidate's majority.

The victory which S. S. Taylor, Q. C., acting for the Houston committee, gained at Vancouver, can hardly be over estimated. At the opening of the full court on Monday leave was obtained to make a motion to place the prohibition appeal at the head of the list of appeals, as it was pointed out that, if argued in its turn, it could not be reached until the day before or the day of election. This was moved by Mr. Taylor on the ground that it was a matter of necessity and of public benefit. The motion, however, was stoutly opposed by E. P. Davis, Q. C., and R. M. Macdonald, who appeared for the three objectors, and it was made manifest from the position they took, that they intended to take advantage of every objection that promised to delay the argument so that if granted the appeal would be barren of result. This feature was pointed out, and the result was that the case was set down for argument on Thursday. Thus the first attempt in the policy of delay was frustrated.

Thursday, however, was given over to the celebration of lord Roberts' success in South Africa, and it was Friday before the case came up. When Mr. Taylor was opening his argument another attempt at delay was made by Mr. Davis, who asked for an adjournment in order that he could secure a copy of the notes taken by Mr. Justice Drake. The argument upon this point became rather warm, the counsel for the appellant contending that the request for delay was not made upon substantial grounds. The court refused this delay and similar applications through the argument were treated in the same way.

The argument occupied two days, and although the appeal has been granted, it is not yet known upon what grounds. The whole of the argument was of a technical nature. Mr. Taylor contended that a procedure by way of a writ of prohibition was one which affected the prerogatives of the crown, and was only granted to restrain the proceedings of an inferior court where there had been a glaring abuse of jurisdiction or where there was an absolute want of jurisdiction. This, he contended, was the only possible point of argument. He further argued that the supreme court crown rules governed the matter, and made it imperative that applications for writs of prohibition should be made by summons to a judge, and not by notice of motion, as had been done in the present instance. The difference was one of considerable importance, and the court held that the objection was properly taken.

It was then contended by Mr. Davis that Mr. Justice Drake was right in amending the procedure, but Mr. Taylor replied that the procedure by notice of motion was a nullity and not an irregularity, and for this reason the court had no power to amend. Several authorities on this point were quoted, including a very strong opinion by the late lord chancellor Herschell.

Mr. Taylor then directed attention to the fact that section 25 of the Election Act provided that if any person was dissatisfied with the decision of the collector of votes at any court held by him, he had the privilege of appealing to the county court judge upon giving six days' notice. He argued that where such privilege was provided, the extraordinary remedy of prohibition should not be granted. He said it was interesting to note that the counsel for the objectors and the organization behind them did not appear anxious to seek any such speedy remedy, although the county court sat in Nelson on May 25th, when the matter could have been disposed of. They apparently desired some slower process or remedy, and, but for the fortunate circumstance of the adjournment of appeals by the full court from the 21st of May to the 28th, the argument on the appeal from the order of prohibition could not have been disposed of before election day.

The question was then taken up which was dealt with fully before Mr. Justice Drake, whether or not the parties objected to had to receive the 30 days' notice before they could ask for a trial of the objections alleged against them, or whether they could waive such notice. Mr. Taylor contended that this notice was for the benefit of the persons objected to, and that it could be waived. He also contended that this point in no way affected the jurisdiction of the court of revision. It was simply a matter of procedure in the collector's court, and if he violated the statute he was merely doing something irregular, and consequently the process of prohibition could not apply.

The collector of votes, upon receiving the telegram from the registrar of the court, promptly certified to the supplementary list, and, acting upon instructions from Victoria, has had the same printed in accordance with the statute.

VICTORY IS NOW ASSURED

Enthusiastic Rally.

Members of the Provincial Party in Nelson were celebrating the victory at the full court at Vancouver last night. Both of candidate Houston's committee rooms were jammed to the doors with enthusiastic supporters, the walls were decorated with mottoes and cartoons and everywhere was unbounded satisfaction that the machinations of the Conservative machine had been set at naught.

The meeting was presided over by W. A. Gallihier, and speeches were the order of the day. Besides the chairman, S. S. Taylor, James Wilks, John Houston, Dr. Forin and W. A. McLean spoke, and rounds of applause greeted every point made.

The enthusiasm was infectious and there was a feeling of victory in the air. Hundreds of voters visited the committee rooms during the evening, and one and all were outspoken in their confidence that candidate Houston's straightforward fight on behalf of the rights and privileges of the electors had carried the day. Always confident of the result, yesterday's news made the assurance doubly sure that much hard and legitimate work would not be thrown away.

It was otherwise in the rival committee rooms. Candidate Hall's quarters were almost deserted, while in candidate Fletcher's retreat knots of discomfited schemers were to be seen, gloomily trying to face the situation and realizing too late that the attempted dirty work has lost them both the Provincial and Dominion elections in this riding.

Kootenay Creameries.

OTTAWA, June 5.—[Special to The Tribune].—Montague in the house today said that the products from creameries in Kootenay district which were under the government's control, were being given to one firm that had a pretty high scale. When anyone was asked to buy from the government they were told to go to J. Y. Griffin & Co. He objected to this. Fisher promised to speak to professor Robertson.

New Brunswick Appointments.

OTTAWA, June 5.—[Special to The Tribune].—It is understood that premier Emerson of New Brunswick will be appointed to the supreme court bench of New Brunswick in place of justice Vanwert, and that A. S. White, attorney-general of the province, will be the next premier of New Brunswick.

Guest of Lord Pauncesote.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The princess Albert, who is visiting the British embassy, spent today in sight seeing. The ambassador and Miss Pauncesote showed their guest through the congressional library and the capitol buildings. Tonight lord and lady Pauncesote gave a dinner in honor of their guest.

IMPERIAL YEOMANRY TAKEN

Captured by Superior Force.

LONDON, June 5.—12 o'clock midnight.—The following is a dispatch from lord Roberts announcing the surrender of the 13th battalion of Imperial Yeomanry:—

"Pretoria, June 5.—12:55 p.m.—I regret to report that the 13th Imperial Yeomanry had to surrender to a very superior force of Boers on May 31st near Lindley. On receiving confirmation of the battalion being attacked, I ordered Methuen to proceed with all possible speed to its assistance. Methuen was then on the march from Heilbron to Kroonstad, and, half an hour after the receipt of my telegram, on June 1st, he started off. By 10 a.m. of the following day, he had marched 44 miles but he was too late to rescue colonel Spragge's Yeomanry.

"Methuen attacked the Boers, who were about 3000 strong, and, after a running fight of five hours, completely routed the enemy. It was a very regrettable circumstance, but I hope it will not be very long before the Yeomanry will be released from captivity."

QUEEN DRANK TO ROBERTS

Notes of the War.

LONDON, June 6.—4:35 a. m.—Queen Victoria, surrounded by the duke of York, the duchess of York, princess Christian, princess Victoria and many notables of her court, drank to the health of lord Roberts and the army at Balmoral last evening. A great bonfire, lighted at her majesty's command, blazed on Craig Gowan mountain, illuminating the whole country for miles round. The nation joins in the toast, glorifying lord Roberts and turbulently rejoicing in his victory.

The dispatches of lord Roberts, telling of the incidents before the surrendering of the capital by three civilians stand alone, as the correspondents with him have not yet had their turn with the wires.

Lord Roberts' postscript announcing the loss of the Yeomanry battalion came too late for the public to know it last evening. The newspaper commentators consider the incident deplorable, but as having no weight to speak of in the results. The battalion numbered between 400 and 500. General Botha and most of his men got away from Pretoria. This is inferred from lord Roberts' messages, but the presumption is that the Boer commandant general cannot escape the British positions without a fight. Operations elsewhere seem to have dwindled to nothing.

General Baden-Powell joined general Hunter on Sunday at Lichtenburg. Sir Redvers Buller has not moved.

Mr. Bennett Burleigh, wiring Johannesburg, says: "President Kruger took £27,000,000 to Middleburg." Mr. Burleigh and Mr. Seull, an American, entered Johannesburg the night before general Roberts occupied the city and made a tour of it unmolested by the armed burghers.

Boer Generals Would Resist.

LONDON, June 5.—The latest dispatches from a representative of the Associated Press, at Pretoria, dated June 3, quote general Botha as saying: "So long as I can still count on our thousands of willing men, we must not dream of retreat or throwing away our independence. General Botha, it is added, annulled the regulations appointing a special committee to preserve order, substituting military control for the committee. General Lucas Meyer, addressing the burghers on the church square, urged them all to stand fast. Thus, though their efforts were pitifully futile, it is evident that a few faithful Boer generals were working desperately to resist the overwhelming force of lord Roberts' army.

What Tupper Wanted.

OTTAWA, June 5.—[Special to The Tribune].—There were two or three changes which the leader of the opposition suggested in the instructions to the royal commission appointed to investigate election frauds. He wanted, for instance, that judges should give the witnesses immunity from prosecution, that witnesses should state how they voted, that evidence taken by the Privileges and Elections committee should be used, that Brockville and West Huron should be taken up first, and that the judges consult with the leader of the opposition of the house as to counsel. In answer to this Laurier said he would refer all these questions to the minister of justice and would be guided by what he said. He, however, would not think himself of conferring with judges as to counsel and did not think it should be done. That should be left to the commission. He was of the same opinion as to giving instructions as to what case to go on with first. He wanted the commission to have full power to do its work in the way it thought best.

ROBERTS ENTERS PRETORIA

Official Announcement.

LONDON, June 5.—12:17 p. m.—The war office has issued the following dispatch from lord Roberts:—

"PRETORIA, June 5.—11:40 a. m.—We are now in possession of Pretoria. The official entry will be made this afternoon at 2 o'clock."

LONDON, June 5.—It was announced verbally at the war office this afternoon that lord Roberts entered Pretoria at 2 o'clock, South African time.

LONDON, June 5.—11:10 p. m.—The war office has received the following from lord Roberts:—

"PRETORIA, June 5.—12:55 p. m.—Just before dark yesterday the enemy were beaten back from nearly all the positions they had been holding, and Ian Hamilton's mounted infantry followed them to within 2000 yards of Pretoria, through which they retreated hastily. De la Rive sent an officer with a flag of truce into the town, demanding its surrender in my name.

"Shortly before midnight I was awakened by two officials of the South African Republic, Sanberg, military secretary to commandant general Botha, and a general officer of the Boer army, who brought me a letter from Botha proposing an armistice for the purpose of settling the terms of the surrender. I replied that I would gladly meet the commandant general the next morning, but that I was not prepared to discuss any terms, as the surrender of the town must be unconditional. I asked a reply by daybreak, as I had ordered the troops to march on the town as soon as it was light. In his reply Botha told me that he had decided not to defend Pretoria, and he trusted that the women, children and property would be protected."

"At 1 a.m. today, while on the line of march, I was met by three of the principal officials with a flag of truce, stating their wish to surrender the town. It was arranged that Pretoria should be taken possession of by her majesty's troops at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Mrs. Botha and Mrs. Kruger are both in Pretoria.

"Some few of the British prisoners have been taken away, but the majority are still in Waterval. Over a hundred of the officers are in Pretoria. The few I have seen are looking well."

Heavy Canadian Losses.

OTTAWA, June 5.—[Special to The Tribune].—Lieutenant colonel Otter cables from Johannesburg on June 4th, reporting the following wounded on May 20th: Private Davis, Royal Canadian Dragoons; private Robinson, 21st Essex regiment; private Bordan, 2nd Queen's Own Rifles; private Hill, 9th Voltigeurs, Quebec; private Haydon, 62nd St. John's Rifles; private Richardson, No. 57 Military (No. 57). Lieutenant colonel Otter reports Evans as wounded, but the department cannot identify him. Colonel Otter also says that the effective strength of the battalion at present is only 450 of all ranks.

Warren's Casualties.

LONDON, June 5.—The casualties of the British in the fighting under general Warren at Fabserspit May 29th, when, with 700 men, he was surrounded and attacked by 1000 colonial rebels, who were repulsed, included one man killed and ten wounded among the Canadian artillery.

Rev. D. J. Morrison Dead.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 5.—Rev. Daniel I. Morrison, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church of this city, died tonight. He was a native of Nova Scotia and graduate of Auburn theological seminary.

ANOTHER OUTBURST OF JOY

Scenes in London.

LONDON, June 5.—At 2 o'clock this afternoon, almost eight months after the declaration of war, lord Roberts entered Pretoria. The commander-in-chief fulfilled the promise he made to the Guards at Bloemfontein, to lead them into the capital of the Transvaal, and England is celebrating the event with enthusiasm. Throughout the length and breadth of the country, the news spread like wildfire. Based on the recollection of European wars, when the occupation of the enemy's capital signified the end of hostilities, lord Roberts' terse message is universally taken to mean the practical finish of the war which has tried Great Britain's resources as they were never before.

In London, the Mansion House and war office almost instantly became the centres for jubilant throngs. Flags again appeared as if by magic, and the traffic had to be diverted through other streets. Hatless and coatless men and boys ran through the city, all eyes to see for themselves the bulletins announcing the good news, and stayed to join in the thunder of cheers and singing "God Save the Queen." Hats from thousands of heads were waved in the sun, while old men on top of the omnibuses and aldermen from the windows of the Mansion House encouraged the crowds to still further efforts.

Lord Roberts' Six-mile Spruit dispatch was hardly printed by the extras before the Union Jack over the war office was rapidly hauled up the flagstaff, and the brief message was passed from mouth to mouth: "Pretoria is occupied."

Every one who had a chance to see lord Roberts' account of the resistance encountered yesterday was that moment commenting on the probability of a fierce fight before the city should be occupied, and was wondering at the Boers' capabilities to make such a firm stand when Pretoria was hemmed in on all sides. The pressure of general French north of the Boer capital came as a surprise, and explained the commander-in-chief's reticence about the position of the energetic cavalry leader. It was evident that lord Roberts himself delayed at tracking until his columns were ready to co-operate.

Judging from lord Roberts' phraseology, the occupation of Pretoria was not accompanied by loss of life. Presumably the Boer forces, which so insistently opposed the British advance at Six-mile Spruit, got away.

LONDON, June 6.—England has been celebrating tonight the fall of Pretoria very much as she did the relief of Mafeking. Brunkness has been a trifle less conspicuous than when Baden-Powell was the hero of the moment, but in London and in the other large towns the scenes last evening were practically a repetition of those which marked the other victories, and, long after midnight, uproarious yelling, tooting of horns, and discordant chants ascended from the city streets, usually as silent as the grave.

All during the evening processions marched along the Strand, Piccadilly, and the other leading thoroughfares. In fact, so great was the crush, that the easiest method of locomotion was to join one of the processions, for whose strident choruses and waving flags, all traffic was stopped. Cabs and coaches were freely chartered in honor of the joyful occasion, and these were soon so packed with invited and uninvited guests, that they assumed the aspect of living pyramids of Bacchanals. Babies in arms, white headed women, girls of the street, club men in evening dress and Whitechapel costermongers, gaily intermingled along the flaring thoroughfares, bent on celebrating the victory.

Into the faces of all were constantly thrust huge peacock feathers, described, for no known reason, as "Kruger's preservers." Girls were indiscriminately kissed, jostled and tossed around amidst the ecstatic jubilation of the midnight crowd. A species of confetti which stuck to the clothing of the procession proved a popular form of showing one's joy until the stores of the peddlers ran out.

Effigies of Kruger were burned, and innumerable telegrams of congratulations were sent to the little field marshal who had made England so happy.

Lord Wolseley received the news while visiting Henry James at Rye. He improved the occasion by attending the local municipal meeting and joining in the cablegram to lord Roberts.

The Rev. Dr. Talmage, who was shut up in the Mansion House by the density of the crowd after a luncheon with the lord mayor, said to a representative of the Associated Press:—

"It is the most inspiring, most wonderful exhibition of enthusiasm I have ever seen. In some respects it reminds me of the peace jubilee in Boston at the close of the American civil war."

UNION JACK WAS HOISTED

Scenes in Johannesburg.

JOHANNESBURG, June 5.—On Friday, June 1st, the entry of an armed force yesterday into this large, modern, populous town, afforded such a strange contrast to the previous incidents of the war as to make the occasion peculiarly memorable. Soon after 10 o'clock lord Roberts and his staff left the camp followed by the guards and Stevenson's brigade and a few newspaper correspondents. Preparations had been made on a large scale to welcome the field marshal. The space round the court house was thronged and the balconies were filled with ladies. In front of the court house the "Vierkleur" Free State flag still floated. At about 2 o'clock cheers in the distance heralded the approach of lord Roberts. The din increased and became deafening as the commander-in-chief, calm and collected, led the column into the square and reached the front of the court house. The crowd became almost unmanageable, trying to break through the cordon formed by the body guard in order to get a closer view.

Cheers and cries of welcome and "Well done Bobs" resounded on all sides. After his introductions to the chief officials, lord Roberts dismounted and entered the court house, and made a short speech accepting the surrender of the place and requesting the officials to retain their offices for the present. General Roberts afterwards left the building, remounted, and the "Vierkleur" was hauled down amidst hurrahs from the nondescript population.

But there was visible emotion on the part of many rugged burghers. Tears streamed down the faces of these big bearded men at the sight of the loss of the flag they had fought for so well. After a brief interval the rattle of drums and the shrieking of fifes heralded the approach of general Pole-Carew's guards. The troops were drawn up around the flag staff and the Union Jack was hoisted by lady Roberts, the fife played—"God Save the Queen," and, as the music ceased, a great roar of cheers broke out followed by a chorus of "God Save the Queen."

During the singing of the national anthem a tall Free State artilleryman, who was listening to the ceremony, refused to lift his hat. Bystanders tried to force him to do so, when a British Guardsman peremptorily interposed saying, "Leave him alone. He fought for his flag. You are too cowardly to fight for any flag."

A march past subsequent to the march through the town closed the ceremony. Lord Roberts' headquarters were at a small inn in an orange grove.

There was a characteristic scene there at the close of his victorious day. One of his staff officers approached in order to discuss a matter of importance, and found the field marshal with the innkeeper's little daughter on his knee, trying to teach her to write. When they were interrupted, lord Roberts looked up smilingly and said, "Don't come now; can't you see I'm busy?"

Otis Out of Quarantine.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4.—Major-general Otis came out of quarantine at Angel Island today, and was escorted to the Occidental hotel. General Shafter and his staff met general Otis, and he was accorded full military honors.

Boer Delegates at Cleveland.

BUFFALO, June 5.—The three Boer delegates left Buffalo for Cleveland tonight. They cut short their stay at Niagara Falls in order, they say, to save time.

FIGHT AT SIX-MILE SPRUIT

Boers Driven Back.

LONDON, June 5.—11 a.m.—It is officially announced that lord Roberts occupied Six-mile Spruit on June 1th.

LONDON, June 5.—The war office has issued the following dispatch from lord Roberts:—

"SIX-MILE SPRUIT, June 4.—8:30 p. m.—We started this morning at daybreak and marched about ten miles to Six-mile Spruit, both banks of which were occupied by the enemy. Penry's and Ross' mounted infantry, with the West Somerset, Dorset, Bedford and Sussex companies of yeomanry quickly dislodged them from the south bank and pursued them nearly a mile, when they found themselves under a heavy fire from guns which the Boers had placed in a well-constructed, commanding position.

"Our heavy guns of the naval and royal artillery, which had purposely been placed in the front part of the column, were hurried to the assistance of the mounted infantry as soon as possible as mules could travel over the great rolling hills surrounding Pretoria. The guns were supported by Stevenson's brigade of Pole-Carew's division and, after a few rounds, drove the enemy from the position.

"The Boers then attempted to turn our left flank, in which they were foiled by the mounted infantry and yeomanry, supported by Maxwell's brigade of Tucker's division. As, however, they still kept pressing our left rear, I sent word to Ian Hamilton, who was advancing three miles to our left, to incline toward us and fill up the gap between the two columns. This finally checked the enemy, who were driven back toward Pretoria. I hoped we would have been able to follow them up, but the days now are very short in this part of the world, and after nearly two hours' marching and fighting we had to bivouac on the ground gained during the day.

"The Guards brigade is quite near the southernmost fort by which Pretoria is defended, and less than four miles from the town. French, with the third and fourth cavalry brigades and Hutton's New South Wales Mounted Rifles, is north of Pretoria. Broadwood's brigade is between French's and Hamilton's columns, and Gordon's is watching the right flank of the main force, not far from the railway bridge at Irene station, which was destroyed by the enemy.

"Our casualties, I hope, are very few."

A Boy Hero.

MEDIA, Pennsylvania, June 5.—Two children were dragged from a burning house on the farm of T. Steer Bickslee last night by their eight-year-old brother, who, driven out by the flames, was compelled to leave his mother and a baby to perish. Mr. Bickslee's farm is about a mile from Media. From the little hero, who saved two lives and made a gallant effort to snatch two more from the flames, was learned the story of the tragedy. His mother, carrying her baby and a lamp, fell on a stairway, the lamp setting fire to the house. The carpets, saturated with oil from the lamp, burned fiercely, and the boy, realizing that the house was doomed, dragged out a brother and a sister, who were intent on rushing through the fire to their mother. Then he returned for his mother, whose arms clasped the baby. But her weight was too great for his little arms, and as the flames were closing in on him, he gave a last despairing look at the doomed woman and fled, heartbroken, to a place of safety. The husband and father was absent in Philadelphia, where he had gone to deliver a load of vegetables.

Moors to Attack French.

LONDON, June 5.—Special dispatches received this evening from Algiers portray a serious situation. Thousands of Moors are massing at Figuig and in the neighborhood, and are preparing for a determined attack upon the advanced post of the French.

The Tribune.

The action of the full court of British Columbia, in allowing the appeal from the order of prohibition granted by Justice Drake, is a complete justification of the protest which THE TRIBUNE raised against the action of the local Conservative Association in attempting to disfranchise close upon 500 electors without a hearing. Now that the conspiracy has failed there will no doubt be an attempt made by the officers of the local Conservative Association to shift the responsibility. It is worth remembering, however, that so long as the scheme promised to be successful none of the officers of the association took any pains to denounce the perpetrators of it. They seemingly were prepared to countenance anything likely to assist in securing the election of candidate Fletcher. They strove to avert defeat by sharp practices, but they have only succeeded in adding discredit to defeat.

The men who are on the stump for the Wilson-Turner Conservatives and the Martinites lay great stress upon the fact that they have more candidates in the field than the Provincial Party. On Saturday evening they will recognize the difference between having candidates in a contest and supporters in the legislature.

CANDIDATE HOUSTON'S election is now assured. His only formidable opponent in the race was candidate Fletcher, who upon the admissions of his own supporters had no chance unless 500 of the electors were disfranchised. The full court has decided, however, that the names of these voters shall be placed upon the list, and by this action the Fletcher party is hopelessly beaten. Men seldom vote for candidates whose supporters attempt to disfranchise them.

ASHANTI NATIONAL CUSTOMS.

The present trouble in Ashanti—sometimes spelled Ashantee or Si-anti, West Africa, is a sequel to the wars of 1874 and 1895, in which kings Koffee and Premph respectively were whipped into submission by the British, whom it is said they attacked at the instigation of French traders.

Premph, the successor of Koffee, was ordered to pay a heavy indemnity in gold, and an attempt was made to secure the golden stool or throne-chair of the kings of Ashanti, in default of part payment of the required indemnity. Premph succeeded in hiding this valuable seat, and British agents are said to have kept up a still hunt for it until the first week of the present month, when they learned of its whereabouts and made an attempt to get possession of it, precipitating a rising for which the governor, sir Frederick Mitchell Hodgson, was poorly prepared. While the natives are besieging Kumassi, the capital, British troops are being hurried forward to disperse the savage warriors to whom the golden stool is a sacred emblem.

Until recent years the horrible practice of human sacrifice was so well established in Ashanti that a ruler could have his subjects butchered simply because he took a fancy to do so. The English have made strenuous efforts to bring the natives into some sort of civilization, but as there are some 3,000,000 of them the task has not been an easy one.

The king of Ashanti is said to have 3,333 wives, and he is so of feminine himself that a stranger is never certain of his sex until formally introduced. Yet this king caused the most atrocious crimes to be committed just because his fancy dictated. At one time a town possessed three different places of execution. The one for private execution was at the palace; the second, for public decapitation, was on the parade ground; and the third, for fetich sacrifices, was in the sacred village of Bantama.

One of the horrible instruments of butchery was the execution bowl, a large basin of brass some five feet in diameter, ornamented with four small lions and a number of round knobs all around its rim, except at one part, where there is a space for the victim's neck to rest on the edge. The blood of the victim was allowed to putrefy in the bowl, and leaves and certain herbs being added, it was considered a very valuable fetich medicine.

Any great function was seized upon as an excuse for human sacrifices. The king went every quarter to pay his devotions to the shades of his ancestors at Bantama, and this demanded the death of 20 men over the great bowl. On the death of any great personage two of the household slaves were at once killed on the threshold of the door in order to attend their master immediately in his new life, and his grave was afterward lined with the bodies of more slaves, who were to form his retinue in the spirit world. It was thought all the better if, during the burial, one of the attendant mourners could be stunned by a club, and dropped, still breathing, into the grave before it was filled in. In the case of a great lady dying slave girls were the victims.

Death penalties were dealt out upon the slightest provocation. If a man found a nugget of gold or anything else of value and did not carry it at once to the king he was liable to decapitation. The lust for blood seemed to grow upon the people, and at public executions tortures were resorted to in order to satisfy the spectators.

There were but two ways to escape execution when once a man was selected. One was to repeat the "king's oath," a certain formula of words, before they could gag him; the other was to break loose from his captors and run as far as the Bantama-Kumassi crossroads. If he could reach this point before being overtaken he was allowed to go free. In order to guard against their prisoners getting off by either of these methods the executioners used to spring on the intended victim from behind, and while one bound his hands behind his back another drove a knife through both his cheeks, which effectually prevented him from opening his mouth to speak, and in this horrible condition he had to await his turn for execution. When the time came the executioners, mad with blood, would make a rush for him and force him upon the bowl. Then one of them, using a large kind of a butcher's knife, would cut into the spine and so carve the head off.

Canadian News Briefs.

The Canadian Steel Company held a meeting in Toronto, yesterday and decided to erect a plant between Port Colborne and Welland, with a capacity for manufacturing 1000 tons of ore daily. This site was selected on account of the natural gas in the district, which it is estimated will save several hundred dollars a day in fuel.

THEY ARE ALL VOTERS NOWThe Great Conspiracy Fails.

The names of the men whom the local Conservative Association sought to disfranchise without a hearing, but who had their franchise restored to them yesterday, by the decision of the full court of British Columbia, appear below. Their names will appear on the voters' list as the result of the determination of candidate Houston's committee to frustrate the design of the Conservatives who, believing that their candidate could not win with a fair expression of the voice of the electorate, sought to deprive this large number of British subjects of their right to vote:
