The Tribune.

A SPECIAL meeting of the city council was held yesterday afternoon for the purpose of considering the request of the mayor of the city of Cumberland for the relief of the sufferers of the recent coal mine explosion at that point.

At yesterday's meeting it was decided to respond to the call for assistance with the niggardly vote of $100, an amount which THE TRIBUNE ventures the assertion is out of all proportions to the sympathy of the people of Nelson.

will be in keeping with the distress occasioned by the calamity. Nelson in this instance has been requested to respond to the necessities of the Cumberland sufferers, and the people of the city look to the aldermen to do the right thing, and to remember that it is not an individual that is giving, but the entire community.

H. BROMLEY DAVIS, who left Nelson on December 26th, 1899, and served honorably with the second contingent in South Africa, called at THE TRIBUNE office last evening to protest against the complimentary smoker which the members of the fire department and the city officials have announced for Wednesday evening for W. J. Thompson, late chief of the fire department, who has enlisted for service in the Baden-Powell police.

UPON the question of the invasion of James J. Hill into the coal fields of East Kootenay, the Vancouver World disagrees with the opinion of professor Odium, who has probably contributed more than any other writer to the columns of the World during the past year.

Death Penalty for Kidnaping. The senate of the Missouri legislature has given partial effect to the agitation of the last year by passing a bill which permits the death penalty for kidnaping and fixes the minimum penalty at ten years' imprisonment.

The history of criminal law shows that where it is meted out indiscriminately for great and small offenses the remedy defeats its own purpose. But if kidnaping is given a bad eminence by the side of murder it will soon become a crime shunned by criminals, and it is certain that it deserves as severe a treatment as murder itself.

The Labor Leader's Views. Slovan Drill.

Chris Foley's opinion upon the Crow's Nest coal question has been sought and given widespread publicity. Naturally, he holds to the principle of the public utilities for the public. Time has brought its own reward to Chris, as those who opposed his principles four months ago now see fit to indorse them.
